

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: The Broken Prison System

DNA - November 30, 2019, 3:31 pm

So I've been thinking about how messed up the Prison System actually is, but with all the money in the government, why hasn't an appropriate solution been provided? I.e. Portable Cells inside of a prison ground

With all the drugs, violence and sexual assaults that occur in prison, wouldn't complete segregation be the most logical move?

Now I'm no Engineer or Specialist in Resource Management, but it seems to be that a prison system that runs on complete segregation would not only be cost effective, but safer too.

I understand prisoners require time of their cells, so why not say, have 240 Individual pods divided by 4 common rooms with 2½ hours a day or if only during daylight, maybe 180.

It's not unachievable and it seems like a more cost effective and efficient way to run a broken and unsafe system.

Thoughts?

Bossk - November 30, 2019, 4:09 pm

You should state which government you are referring to, prisons are very different around the world. Gonna assume you are AMERICAN.

And I don't see how your proposal would reduce costs, it still breaks down to how many inmates you have.

SUI-3183372 - November 30, 2019, 4:16 pm

What do you mean by portable cells and pods.

Unexplained - November 30, 2019, 4:46 pm

(Nov 30, 2019 05:16 PM)BV1 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What do you mean by portable cells and pods. I was was wondering the same thing

Sir - November 30, 2019, 4:49 pm

This guy is talking about isolation pods.
That sounds like torture.

Natas - November 30, 2019, 4:50 pm

Or guards in the cells 24/7 the guards do make some decent money I dont know why inmates are un attended in there cells.

DNA - November 30, 2019, 4:53 pm

(Nov 30, 2019 05:16 PM)BV1 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What do you mean by portable cells and pods. Idk I was just throwing out hypotheticals

(Nov 30, 2019 05:09 PM)Bossk Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You should state which government you are referring to, prisons are very different around the world. Gonna assume you are AMERICAN.

And I don't see how your proposal would reduce costs, it still breaks down to how many inmates you have.

Australian but prison system is similar, still just as bad.

How it would reduce costs:

Less medical staffing costs as prison violence increased the amount of medical staff and CO's.

Less Building costs if you could make some sort of portable cell system, it would be modular rather than a permanent facility that would otherwise be closed down over time, maybe even fully abandoned in some cases due to being an outdated facility.

There would also be less transaction of drugs as well as less violence which in translation means less legal fees if the prisoner wants to press charges for example.

I'm sure there are many ways that could more efficient than the current system.

(Nov 30, 2019 05:49 PM)Sir Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This guy is talking about isolation pods.

That sounds like torture.

I'm sure there would be ways without making it completely isolated from the world

Natas - November 30, 2019, 4:56 pm

Yeah a lot of prisons are really bad some are way way worse tho like inmates got guns in there cells you would have to look it up cause I dont remember where it was at but I seen one cell had like 200 people in a cell made for 20 99% of those people had TB.

I agree tho I feel bad for addicts familys who think there going there and can change when its really hard to change in prison because drugs are still around there.

DNA - November 30, 2019, 5:07 pm

(Nov 30, 2019 05:56 PM)Natas Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah a lot of prisons are really bad some are way way worse tho like inmates got guns in there cells you would have to look it up cause I dont remember where it was at but I seen one cell had like 200 people in a cell made for 20 99% of those people had TB.

I agree tho I feel bad for addicts familys who think there going there and can change when its really hard to change in prison because drugs are still around there.

Exactly, phones, guns, drugs.. there needs to be a massive overhaul of the system around the globe..

SIM-3257834 - November 30, 2019, 5:24 pm

Here's a better solution how about we shove all the criminals in Australia.

Rsynced - November 30, 2019, 5:26 pm

I think we really have a broken society here in the US. Under our current system, Crime becomes a business that basically creates self sustainability of itself.

Ravioli - November 30, 2019, 5:50 pm

People get comfortable with pre-existing perspectives and don't feel like there's need for change.

DNA - November 30, 2019, 6:09 pm

(Nov 30, 2019 06:24 PM)Cake Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Here's a better solution how about we shove all the criminals in Australia.

And look how well that idea turned out last time lol

(Nov 30, 2019 06:26 PM)Rsyncd Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I think we really have a broken society here in the US. Under our current system, Crime becomes a business that basically creates self sustainability of itself.

And in some prisons in America, the prisoners hold their own court sessions..

Fugg - November 30, 2019, 6:45 pm

If you put a bunch of criminals together you gotta expect a lot of crime.

Condasoftware - November 30, 2019, 6:47 pm

I've always been a stern believer that criminals should have participate in national military service or other forms of community service to repay their debt to society.

Ravioli - November 30, 2019, 6:48 pm

(Nov 30, 2019 07:45 PM)Fugg Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If you put a bunch of criminals together you gotta expect a lot of crime.They end up finding an unhealthy purpose of crime when they're forced to be in that community.

You improve your life by surrounding yourself with good people. This is the exact opposite of that. This is only one of the problems with the prison system. It's just disgusting.

wiz - December 1, 2019, 8:29 am

I heard that there are alot of privately funded prisons in the US, which becomes about lobbying for harsher laws to get more people in there to make a higher profit.

Natas - December 1, 2019, 8:30 am

(Dec 1, 2019 09:29 AM)wiz Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I heard that there are alot of privately funded prisons in the US, which becomes about lobbying for harsher laws to get more people in there to make a higher profit.

This is very true like marijuana also disorderly conduct is just a way for them to arrest you if they dont have any legit way to do so.

Soaaponarope - December 1, 2019, 8:31 am

The idea behind putting inmates behind bars alone is a broken system, no body understands from punishment of isolation, In fact that's why there are so many repeat offenders. The system is designed to keep you coming back, which is why they have strict regulations for probation and parole.

Speaking as someone who's done time in both Canada's Provincial and Federal system. If there was a way to properly rehabilitate inmates it would be a focus on the person and where there illegal activity stemmed from rather than a simple punishment of isolation to teach the accused a lesson.

When training a dog you're not supposed to hit the dog everytime it makes a mistake but rather reward the pup for making good choices, which results in an extremely obedient dog. I believe the same goes for humans, If you lock someone up for a period of time, There is a higher chance that the human will begin to build resentment and hate towards its capturer. Just like if you were kidnapped. Would you be grateful to your capturer?

I understand that jail isn't supposed to be a vacation however our system is designed to keep our inmates coming back,

The fact you house thousands of criminals in one living location doesn't benefit anyone! What do you think happens to someone who goes to jail for a simple theft and is locked up with murders and rapists? You guessed it, they'll begin to convert to more illegal ways When in rome do as the romans do I've seen NUMEROUS kids come in from great families, money that happen to make one small mistake,

After there incarceration they began doing drugs, stealing, robbing, honestly, Ive seen it alot. Everytime I meet up with one of these kids out here that I met in jail. They all tell me the same thing "when I got out everything went downhill" Jails are not helpful and are damaging our economy.

As for segregation that is ABSOLUTE torture! Himans are MADE for human interaction. segregation is literally damaging to ones mental health.

I served 107 days in the hole for my first fight. thats 3 months in a cell 23 hours and 45 minutes a day in a room you can literally touch either end of the wall at the same time. Picture your last 107 days and imagine spending that in a closet. eating, shitting and sleeping in it. For a FIGHT! but thats our prison system. go Canada, great white north.

VeryIdiot - December 1, 2019, 8:38 am

In my opinion there are people who actually deserve to be in a prison with hell like environment, but the system fails when people with minor crimes are sent to the same place. For example someone who kills and rapes people should be put in the most violent and bad prisons there are. And someone who steals a wallet with 100$ to feed his family should be put in a much more lighter environment, instead together in hell like place with rapists and murders.

Nate - December 1, 2019, 1:12 pm

The worst is the private prison system making our prisoners basically slaves.

Xo-Zo - December 1, 2019, 1:20 pm

Prison is a holiday camp, im 28 and spent 11 years locked up. Theres hundreds of sim cards,phones and deadly shanks. Its easy to become a top dog, run in the top dogs room and damage that fucker

DMAccounts - December 1, 2019, 2:39 pm

You mean money talks and bulls*it walks.

That should sum it up.

StickTalk - December 1, 2019, 4:11 pm

(Nov 30, 2019 07:47 PM)Condasoft Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've always been a stern believer that criminals should have participate in national military service or other forms of community service to repay their debt to society.

That wouldn't be a bad idea.

DNA - December 1, 2019, 4:26 pm

(Dec 1, 2019 05:11 PM)Shine_ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That wouldn't be a bad idea.

Does anyone else not see a problem with a convicted murder or rapist performing military duties? Lol

Nate - December 1, 2019, 5:26 pm

(Dec 1, 2019 05:26 PM)Jelly Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Does anyone else not see a problem with a convicted murder or rapist performing military duties? Lol

Killing and raping civilians comes to mind

Ravioli - December 1, 2019, 5:54 pm

(Dec 1, 2019 09:31 AM)Soaaponarope Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The idea behind putting inmates behind bars alone is a broken system, no body understands from punishment of isolation, In fact that's why there are so many repeat offenders. The system is designed to keep you coming back, which is why they have strict regulations for probation and parole.

Speaking as someone who's done time in both Canada's Provincial and Federal system. If there was a way to properly rehabilitate inmates it would be a focus on the person and where there illegal activity stemmed from rather than a simple punishment of isolation to teach the accused a lesson.

When training a dog you're not supposed to hit the dog everytime it makes a mistake but rather reward the pup for making good choices, which results in an extremely obedient dog. I believe the same goes for humans, If you lock someone up for a period of time, There is a higher chance that the human will begin to build resentment and hate towards its capturer. Just like if you were kidnapped. Would you be grateful to your capturer?

I understand that jail isn't supposed to be a vacation however our system is designed to keep our inmates coming back,

The fact you house thousands of criminals in one living location doesn't benefit anyone! What do you think happens to someone who goes to jail for a simple theft and is locked up with murders and rapists? You guessed it, they'll begin to convert to more illegal ways When in rome do as the romans do I've seen NUMEROUS kids come in from great families, money that happen to make one small mistake,

After there incarceration they began doing drugs, stealing, robbing, honestly, Ive seen it alot. Everytime I meet up with one of these kids out here that I met in jail. They all tell me the same thing "when I got out everything went downhill" Jails are not helpful and are damaging our economy.

As for segregation that is ABSOLUTE torture! Himans are MADE for human interaction. segregation is literally damaging to ones mental health.

I served 107 days in the hole for my first fight. thats 3 months in a cell 23 hours and 45 minutes a day in a room you can literally touch either end of the wall at the same time. Picture your last 107 days and imagine spending that in a closet. eating, shitting and sleeping in it. For a FIGHT! but thats our prison system. go Canada, great white north.All of this is 100% true. I can't agree more. They're making it worse, not better. It's a cash cow.

Moon Clown - December 2, 2019, 7:14 am

The prison system in general needs a complete overhaul.

CyberStrike - December 2, 2019, 7:36 am

Isolation for inmates means you will have very mentally disturbed individuals, so better keep them all for life because when they get out then get ready for some crazy I mean crazy stuff. Like ex-offenders will be very unhinged, try it sometime, no internet, no phone, just your bed and you and whatever runs in your mind try it for a month get enough food so you are in total isolation. Pretty quickly you will find that things you previously thought were crazy are actually normal it's only you who says what is crazy and isn't.

Edit: Most countries even the USA are trying to get rid of solitary confinement because those inmates either commit suicide, self harm, and or become much more violent.

49ers - December 2, 2019, 8:08 am completely messed up man you see so many minor crimes getting more time than sick fuckers

Condasoft - December 2, 2019, 8:21 am

(Dec 1, 2019 06:26 PM)N?te Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Killing and raping civilians comes to mind
The military wants disciplined killers who follow orders, prison gangs fit the bill.

Nate - December 2, 2019, 12:13 pm

(Dec 2, 2019 09:21 AM)Condasoft Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The military wants disciplined killers who follow orders, prison gangs fit the bill.

not every gang is disciplined as you may think. Its usually the latino ones that are more disciplined and actually have ranks crypt - December 2, 2019, 3:23 pm

Regarding actual prison/jail cells I think the US has it alright. Regarding punishments for crimes we are completely fucked. I watched a video of a guy who tried to shoot up a gas station with a rifle while on probation and having multiple aggravated assaults in the past on his record and he only got 4 years.