

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: [eXceptional's Testimonial - 8 Year Journey \[Still Counting\]](#)

eXceptional - December 9, 2019, 9:01 pm

I've been a member of Hack Forums since Feb 3rd, 2012. Back then I was at the age of 18 and started my first thread in Free Services and Giveaways. At that time it was really very important for me to post in that section to know more people and get feedback on the services I provide.

At some point, I thought it is really necessary to upgrade your account to be in the eyes of everyone. L33T->UB3R->EP1C and a few awards I purchased in the years.

After I purchased it lead me no-where and I was pissed to leave Hack Forums but there's a saying (You can't leave a friend or forget him if he was with you in your bad times), The same thing happened with me I left for a year and came back because I knew HF was the place for me I was an introverted boy back then. Making new friends online, chatting, playing games online made me happier.

During my overall stay, I helped people with Social Media Marketing. Shared a few tricks, E-Books and made multiple sales threads to earn too.

The conclusion is that now, I'm seeing new members rise up and are doing just great (Better than me). A few friends I knew from here left but didn't give proper reasoning. I was never a Notable member of HF but I tried and will always keep trying there is no way I can leave my 2nd home which is HackForums.net (Family matters).

Now, I'm 25 and there is one big thing Hack Forums thought me that you always learn from your mistakes.

There's still a lot of good stuff I haven't written (Readers can always ask for more).

Thank you for taking the time to read. Have a wonderful day ahead.

Regards

eXceptional (Amey Arora)