What is the best way to choose a winner? I mean, use some random number generator?

random.org

and put all the contest participant nicknames?

You can put everyone's names in this randomizer <https://www.random.org/lists/> or you can do a random number 1-37 with the number representing the post number. The random number generator is on the top right of this page <https://www.random.org/>

LoremIpsum - December 29, 2019, 4:53 am

(Dec 29, 2019 02:57 AM)Bulma Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) and put all the contest participant nicknames?

No, random.org and choose the number 2 (your thread is number 1) till the last post of 24th of December (let's say) number 50.

It will draw a random number between 2 and 50. This is how I do it, but usernames or nicknames could work too. More work for you though ?

Blogger - December 29, 2019, 9:44 am

Just do random.org and use the post numbers.

eXceptional - December 29, 2019, 12:56 pm

I would have suggested using the number random generator for #post_number but it seems there are no multi posts allowed so I would suggest you use <https://www.random.org/lists/> and enter the participant's names to decide a winner.

Bulma Christmas has been long gone. When is the winner being announced?

Blogger - January 2, 2020, 9:28 am

Perhaps it's another fake contest because he's on right now and hasn't bothered replying.

Bulma You should know that you either have to contact the winner or mention him. If he still doesn't reply to you maybe then you have to reroll and pick a new winner. Wrap @Mentions @ with the @ symbol on both sides of the username to mention someone.

I337 Congratz. Please confirm once you receive your winnings.
