Thread: Ethereum future

Seems like ETH is at 134$ at the moment and its been awhile since it was this low.

What do you think is the future of ETH?

Are you guys still holding any of them? If so, for how long more?

Can't wait to get my hands on another validator

Another? Is validating on mainnet?

I'm going to keep accumulating, till I have at least 30 ETH in my portfolio. I still see a lot of use for the network and a fair bit of adoption to come, so I'm still relatively hopeful, but much more so for long term gains than anything short term.

I've been hodling enough ETH to be a validator (32ETH) when 2.0 comes around. Despite the drop on ETH in price, i will continue to stock up on it.

Crypto imho is too much risk for too little reward. With that being said ETH is probably one of the better ones though, it's currently doing about double the yearly growth of XMR.

XMR (28% Yearly Growth)

ETH (58% Yearly Growth)

If it goes a little bit lower I'm filling up a few bags.

Ohh, I see. It was my plan to get two as well once we get closer to that point.

Have you heard of rocketpool? I participated in their beta and loved it.

I have I saw your post I didn't participate in their beta, but it looked very interesting I think once ETH POS is out it will be very big. Look like Tezos and others.

I wanted to run my own but if I could earn more with rocketpool would be interesting

I believe that ETH will reach the 1000$ till the end of 2021. My long term prediction is around to 7000-20000$ in the end of 2022-May of 2023.

XD Idk about 7000 but I'm sure we'll see $1000 once again it's inevitable.

Well, logarithmic-maths logic says that it will reach 7000$ for sure. Obviously, we can't be sure.

But don't laugh, btc was at 150$ long time ago, that time did you ever think that it will reach 7000$?

If BTC reach at 120k usd, a 7000$ per one ETH is a friendly-scenario.
