

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Asutralia is burning to ash

Blissed - December 19, 2019, 11:52 pm

Fire tracker:

myfirewatch.landgate.wa.gov.au/

Hundreds of fires burning here in Australia, smoke all over Sydney and air quality has never been worse.

Some say government lit the fires to build their new trains along the coast, cutting fire rescue funds by 75% and taking damaged properties of citizens. To make it worse were also in a drought.

What do you think about all this anyone have ideas or theories?

BrodyF.Lee - December 20, 2019, 12:42 am

Oh wow the amount of burnt areas is immense.

Boomer - December 20, 2019, 12:45 am

Are you from Australia? I'm sorry you have to deal with that if so, it's been terrible fires there for a while now. Really sucks, especially for the animals.

Blissed - December 20, 2019, 1:24 am

(Dec 20, 2019 01:45 AM)Boomer Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Are you from Australia? I'm sorry you have to deal with that if so, it's been terrible fires there for a while now. Really sucks, especially for the animals.

From America but I am living here for a year. The year they have the worst fires and droughts in a long time.. really not an enticing stay.

Django - December 20, 2019, 3:35 am

The fact that the government's not doing ANYTHING about it, and are in fact convinced it's not cus of global warming is disgusting. How do these people get into these positions?

ToxicInfliction - December 20, 2019, 4:22 am

(Dec 20, 2019 04:35 AM)Django Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The fact that the government's not doing ANYTHING about it, and are in fact convinced it's not cus of global warming is disgusting. How do these people get into these positions?

Simple.

People don't want to believe that climate change is in fact a natural occurrence to an extent. Human activity puts the blame on people. And people don't want to believe that human activity is the cause of such a dramatic increase in climate change patterns. See when the Ozone Layer is at an ever so high in decay the UV rays from the sun cause it to heat up. Now this also causes a destabilization of the earth's core temperature rising. The oil which we are digging up basically acts like the coolant for the earth's core not causing surface temperatures to rise. But when you deprive the earth from its natural coolant you then create a thinning in the protective layer of the earth's crust. Science has been contested for years since it was fully adapted into society as a basic common understanding that we can learn based off tests and hypothesis. Even when a full hypothesis becomes solid theory in which outweighs "fact".

Again people don't want to take blame. And so it must be just the Earth doing it itself. As for many people who do listen to scientists they are aware that we don't have decades to correct the environmental issues which threatens our planet's habital stability. Thus why there are those who speak out on a mass volume to be heard. Ignorance will unfortunately and undoubtedly be the main determiner in a chain of catastrophic events that dent the population on a mass scale.

ronyking Sourcing INC - December 20, 2019, 5:01 am

Sometimes i wonder how this get to happen every year in California. Same is Happening now in Australia.

Well from my own end the only thing i can do is to keep those people in my prayers.

But hoping there will be technological advancement someday to contain this.

Blissed - December 20, 2019, 8:56 pm

(Dec 20, 2019 05:22 AM)T.R.I.N.I.T.Y Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Simple.

People don't want to believe that climate change is in fact a natural occurance to an extent.

Human activity puts the blame on people. And people don't want to believe that human activity is the cause of such an dramatic increase in climate change patterns. See when the Ozone Layer is at an ever so high in decay the UV rays from the sun cause it to heat up. Now this also causes a destabalization of the earths core temperature rising. The oil which we are digging up basically acts like the coolant for the earths core not causing surface tempratures to rise. But when you deprive the earth from its natural coolant you then create a thinning in the protective layer of the earths crust. Science has been contested for years since it was fully adapted into society as a basic common understanding that we can learn based of tests and hypothesis. Even when a full hypothesis becomes solid theory in which outweighs "fact".

Again people don't want to take blame. And so it must be just the Earth doing it iself. As for many people who do listen to scientists they are aware that we don't have decades to correct the environmental issues which threatens our planet's habital stability. Thus why there are those who speak out on a mass volume to be heard. Ignorance will unfortunately and undoubtedly be the main determiner in a chain of catastrophic events that dent the population on a mass scale.

Never really about it that way but that's 100% true climate change wouldn't be a thing without human activity and it only gets worse as we develop new things. A way I think we could solve all this effectively is to go back to our old ways from centuries ago with little to no tech which will never happen.

Spaark - December 20, 2019, 9:31 pm

(Dec 20, 2019 04:35 AM)Django Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The fact that the government's not doing ANYTHING about it, and are in fact convinced it's not cus of global warming is disgusting. How do these people get into these positions?

You're a f*cking retard for saying that.

I'll come back to this thread to elaborate in a few hours xoxo

Django - December 20, 2019, 11:53 pm

(Dec 20, 2019 10:31 PM)Spaark Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You're a f*cking retard for saying that.

I'll come back to this thread to elaborate in a few hours xoxo

Don't bother, cus you don't seem to realise that I don't mean that the government's physically responsible for it. If you're gonna insult me on a thread that's meant for discussion I don't even want to hear it. You're rude and obnoxious and if someone doesn't share the same opinion as you you grasp at your last piece of power.

I don't ever block people but I guess I'll bring some change into that after almost 10 years.

Spaark - December 21, 2019, 3:42 am

(Dec 21, 2019 12:53 AM)Django Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Don't bother, cus you don't seem to realise that I don't mean that the government's physically responsible for it. If you're gonna insult me on a thread that's meant for discussion I don't even want to hear it. You're rude and obnoxious and if someone doesn't share the same opinion as you you grasp at your last piece of power.

I don't ever block people but I guess I'll bring some change into that after almost 10 years.
The government is not doing "ANYTHING" about it?

We've also had comparable bushfires for the past century... so yeah dude, I don't think global warming is the biggest worry.

Prepper - December 21, 2019, 2:39 pm

Climate change don't exist though remember this is all a hoax it's not burning it is an illusion.

I wouldn't doubt if the right wing starts making conspiracies oh the fires were lit by the government to push climate change agenda, this is just there way to ignore the facts.

Hopefully it can get under control but this is only the tip of what is to come if we do not act.

Also link you posted: <https://myfirewatch.landgate.wa.gov.au/>