

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: AI - Machine Learning - Deep Learning Section

lockhead - December 28, 2019, 6:21 am

Hi,

I'm not sure if this is the right place to post this, if it isn't feel free to move this post where it belongs.

Simple question really: Why is there no Machine Learning Section anywhere on this platform?

You would think that such a new and exciting and growing subject would have a dedicated place to discuss, no?

BlackRaven - December 28, 2019, 6:46 am

I agree with you. But will the subforum be popular enough? The forum recently got cleaned from inactive/dead subforums.

vyactor - December 28, 2019, 7:13 am

A subforum probably would be worth.

Xerotic - December 28, 2019, 9:33 am

I definitely agree that AI, Machine Learning, Computer Vision, etc are the future of computing and fundamental to our advancement in computer science but I am unsure if HF has the members who will actively use such a section. I've dabbled in AI in the past and have found sections where I can post about it.

DNA - January 1, 2020, 6:08 pm

(Dec 28, 2019 10:33 AM)Xerotic Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I definitely agree that AI, Machine Learning, Computer Vision, etc are the future of computing and fundamental to our advancement in computer science but I am unsure if HF has the members who will actively use such a section. I've dabbled in AI in the past and have found sections where I can post about it.

I would actively use such a section and create tutorials on how to create DRL & RL programs.