Thread: My website is getting attacked.

LordMan - January 2, 2020, 1:32 pm

Somebody is attacking my website.

He caused a 503: Service Unavailable error and a 500 error I believe. Now he is contacting me, acting like a website doctor. For $400 he promises me to help me protect my website. He claims to be a Russian and this looks to be like a kompromat action. Does he have access to my files? Is this attack harmful or is it just a DDOS attack?

addition info: He's back again

Do you have access to the website server logs? If so, check them so you can assure its just a dos/ddos attack or not.

You could try cloudflare or any similar services to protect your site from those kind of attacks

I found a 4k spike on 29/12/19 when the guy approached me for the first time. My host is not updating the graphs often, but I think we're good and this is just a bad attempt to scare me and take some (he lowered the price to $50 btc) money of me
