Thread: time spent on site

I think it would be cool to add how long you have spent on site in the past month in the profile analytics. Not sure what everyone else thinks, just would be cool to see IMO.

Yea I agree it would be cool, also bytes would be nice @OP... interesting metric but easily bottled by leaving the page open with scripts. Which I suppose isn't a HUGE deal considering there is no award or prize attached to profile analytics.

Both ideas would require the implementation to be made and THEN the data would need to be populated over time. So for example, if that data were added today, tomorrow you would only have 1 day's worth of analytic data for the new fields. We would have to start logging your specific Byte values over time. The history page isn't enough to use on its own right now because you can also earn Bytes from posting and those aren't added to the history page.

Would be cool to have a line graph & when you hover over a plotted point on the line graph, showing a tool-tip about the information on how you received the bytes (Gambing, received from another user, ect..), and excluding plotted points on the graph from threads/posts yea unsure how hard it is to maybe extrapolate Bytes from posts on the Profile Analytics posts tracker & bytes history page to formulate a profile analytics bytes data. There is probably more important things. Like I think Omni mentioned the addition of UFC/Boxing for the sports bet. I would think that would be bigger. Lots of posts about UFC fights especially about Connor McGregor who fights soon. I think more so than current sports bet sports.

Curious which HF feature members are using bytes the most on?

Not a good way to spend our resources.
