Thread: Having a Baby Momma is Ghetto

Billeh - January 18, 2020, 7:46 pm

Excuse this rant of mine but this shit has literally been killing me, especially lately. So a few months ago I left my girlfriend because she wasn't putting effort towards anything, for example; I was the only one working a full-time job and still had to come home to cook & clean nearly everyday. On top of a lot of other stuff, I've decided to leave, I felt like I just couldn't do it anymore, I was already feeling depressed for a while & it kept getting worse.

After we break up things just go downhill, I feel totally disrespected as a father. I do everything I can for my son, I was taking him 4/5 days of the week, spending 8+ hours with him and all that, now of course I don't have a problem with that, I love my son. Where is the compromise though? Why do I have him 90% of the time while she's out bopping & thotting?

She kept accusing me of not doing shit (Because I wasn't giving her money like that but I lost my job so I was doing whatever I could). I still provided for my son as much as possible but I guess nothing is ever enough for her.

She started seeing someone else which I personally don't give a hell who she dates, but she wouldn't answer my calls or texts about my son while she was with her new man & she was bringing her new man around my son already which I ain't appreciate at all.

So basically I got pissed & spazzed out & threatened her boyfriend, father & brother and she called the cops saying I threatened her.

I was arrested, unable to see my son for almost 2 months because she took out an order of protection & now I only get him twice a week for 6 hours which sucks soooo much. It's really unfair how the system works like that. She also informed me she wants full custody which had me going crazy because I'm a good father to my son & I should not lose my parental rights or have a court tell me when I can & cannot see my son.

I plan on going for custody but I know it's going to be a hell of a ride, this really sucks.

TL;DR: Don't have kids with birds.

OMG dude, when people say that shit... it annoys the fuck out of me.

And yeah, its pretty ghetto.

The system always favors the momma.

It really blows because a lot of these mothers are only pissed because the father doesn't want to be with THEM anymore.

Ultras - January 18, 2020, 7:59 pm

Having children in the west means you're held hostage by the mother for 18 years if your relationship comes to an end. And these women are so self-absorbed that they can't see they are hurting their child as much as the father.

She'll realize it when my son is older & has resentment towards her for what she did. So in the end I'm sure everything will turn out better for me & my sons relationship but it just sucks this is the road it has to go.

V?rt - January 18, 2020, 8:09 pm

Messed up world man. Hopefully everything goes well for you. But yeah I never wanted a baby momma and thankful never got one

Silent Uprising - January 18, 2020, 8:27 pm

It's gonna cost you a ton on lawyers. Such a shitty thing to go through though...you def have the right to see your child

Depression ? That is a huge thing how old is your son ? Sometimes having a child puts a giant strain on the relationship . You tough it out and make things work for the kid to not grow up in a broken home . Kids didn't ask to be here we put them here . They shouldn't have to suffer for mistakes we make , included in failed non trying relationships .

She started acting a fool when she was around 2-3 months pregnant, so I wouldn't say it's post pardon depression. My son is about to be three years old in two months. I've done everything possible, I put up with a lot of shit, expressed myself multiple times & tried everything I could to make it work. Sometimes a 'broken home' is a lot better than a toxic home because regardless I'm always going to be there for my son. If you really knew everything, you wouldn't just say to "tough it out" because I toughed it out as long as I could. You can only do so much.

I know, that's going to be the hardest part is getting good lawyers but I'll figure out something because I firmly believe my son will be better off living with me.

Sorry to hear that's happened to you. Nothing worse than using an innocent child as a weapon.

LoremIpsum - January 19, 2020, 5:52 am

I feel sorry for you man, but this is one of the reasons I rather don't have kids (yet).

The world is f*cked up sometimes, especially to those who are unfair in life. I wish you the best!

You're his father, you are 50% responsible for that kid. You shouldn't feel like you're having to compromise when it comes to your kids. They deserve your time more than you do because they're tiny little humans that have no idea how the world works, and need adult guidance to help them. Imagine if your kid read this thread a few years down the line. How would he feel? "My dad felt like he had to compromise because he was jealous my mum was being promiscuous and doing what she wanted" is basically what this entire thread boils down to.

You threatened the mother of your son's family, of course they're not going to let you see your son. Use your head, dude. Put any personal feelings you have about the kid's mother/her family to the side and solely focus on raising your child. Getting wrapped up in all that psychological warfare will only negatively impact your kid.

This thread wasn't about just compromising. It was about me as a parent doing majority of the work while his mother did barely anything. One parent should not be 90% responsible for a child that his half theirs. Also I ain't just threaten them for no reason & it wasn't because of my feelings towards her or her family. It was about her playing games when it comes to my son. I held my tongue as long as possible after I left her with all the stuff she was pulling but when she really tried dismissing me & not acting like a god damn adult, hell yeah I'm gonna spazz out over it because that's MY son. So maybe pull your head out yo ass before spitting some bullshit out like that when you really don't know the full story.

You've not posted the whole story, you've posted your side, and you're asking for input from people. Well, there you go, there's my input. I feel bad for your kid, who doesn't only have an idiot for a mother, but also an impulsive, aggressive idiot for a father.

Even from what I only posted for you to make the comment I'm "jealous" of her doing what she wants is stupid by itself. At least I can reproduce, don't see any female wanting to reproduce with an idiot like yourself so enjoy life.

You are, though. Even if you think you aren't, you very obviously are. Wow, is that the best you could come up with on the spot buddy? Again, making yourself look like an utter idiot. I have a girl, that I'm in a relationship with, something you and your "baby mama" can't say. Enjoy ruining your kid's life.

A rant about something isn't always about being pissed moron. Literally while writing it I was perfectly fine, just wanted to get some stuff off my chest.
