

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: Filter Marketplace Threads

Angela White - January 19, 2020, 11:45 am

It'd be really neat if there was a way to filter Marketplace threads by title / thread content. I have a decent amount of money right now and I'm wanting to go through the Premium Sellers Section & a few others but the entire fucking thing is flooded with eWhoring guides, eBooks, and "1 on 1 mentoring to get rich".

Like I don't know exactly what I want to buy, and I want to look around in that section, but I can't really do that if 44 out of the 50 page results are all eWhoring ebooks and stuff like that.

tl;dr: be able to type in like "ewhoring, ebook" and then when you search the marketplace, it'll automatically hide the products that you're not looking for, so you can actually browse products and services that you might want to buy / bookmark.

this would also positively impact sellers as people will be able to find products and services that interest them more, resulting in more sales. For the people who want to see ebooks? Just don't filter out eBooks.

Zero - January 21, 2020, 3:19 am

You don't need to check 50 pages because most of the threads aren't active anymore.

Not point in filtering especially when people waste their bytes to make sure their thread is first.

Don't be too lazy. Go through the first pages to see if there's something that suites you.

Anyways you can always use the Advanced Search option on the site to find a specific threads.