Eagle 95 - January 20, 2020, 7:08 am

I hear people giving advice all day long. Lets share a few here, someone may learn something from this thread. ?

Always trust your gut no matter what.

Edit: best responses will get quick love (10 bytes from me).

This is one of the best lessons I learned from 2015 - 2019.

Routines dont lie, people do. Trust your gut, not your head.

Those are literally the two things I should have learned a long time ago. Would have saved me a lot of aches, yet I like to learn.

Well said my man, my "instinct" matters to me more than anybody trying to convince me.

I would say;

"Stay away from toxic people"

Some might smile at your face, love your "life" but are jealous of you. Perhaps trying to please you so they can 'steal' your stuff.

Not all people who are bad for you are hating you.

If I'd say my best advice ever; pay attention to routines explaining:

people lie and deceive, but repetitive attitude and scenario's can tell the difference. I can tell you 100x I will change, but if you see me 99x doing the same thing, I didn't change. Like that.

Mine would be "Purpose over Pleasure"
Once you find you can substitute pleasure with purpose you'll notice a great impact on your life.
It can be for anything, substitute a soda for a juice.
Substitute chicken tenders for grilled chicken tenders.

I know the "form follows function" but I don't know the P.o.P. nice one!
I do try to replace things that are unhealthy with more healthier things, I don't need to loose weight but I'm conscious about what I eat.

Microwave food --> Oven / Self made
Fast snack --> Sandwich or some fruit
KFC --> Still KFC.

I should follow your advice some more, but I lack discipline when it comes to fast-food sometimes.
I know it's bad but I don't want to avoid it entirely, which is a bad thing. Isn't it?

bnk500 - January 20, 2020, 7:42 am

Never compare yourself to others. You can never be like others, we all are different in our own way. Because nobody have grown up the same way, nobody have experienced the same things in life, nobody has lived the exact same life as you. So never compare yourself to anybody, because we are all different for the better. What i like to think is that, when i used to compare myself to others, what i do now is, i see their values. Which i used to think i wanted really bad, but now im thinking more about my values that they dont have. Just appericate yourself for your own values, and for who you are!

My advice to others is don't lie. Like when you comment on someone's thread and then say it was a "bug" and to "move on", denying that you ever did something. Lying just isn't a great thing to do and says something about your character ;)

Pretty much what I learned today, though my graphics card and motherboard was toast, turns out I put the front panel connectors in the wrong place (lol) and it was the old motherboard causing issues with the graphics card. I would say my best advice is "Spend your money to make your time worth it."

You know, money is a big rotation, it will always end up back in your pocket, but once you spend your time, it's gone forever. I honestly live by that now

Sly Cooper - January 20, 2020, 1:00 pm

The best advice I can give has already been said by the champions of literature...

"If you worship money and things — if they are where you tap real meaning in life — then you will never have enough. Never feel you have enough. It's the truth. Worship your own body and beauty and sexual allure and you will always feel ugly, and when time and age start showing, you will die a million deaths before they finally plant you. On one level, we all know this stuff already — it's been codified as myths, proverbs, clichés, bromides, epigrams, parables: the skeleton of every great story. The trick is keeping the truth up-front in daily consciousness. Worship power — you will feel weak and afraid, and you will need ever more power over others to keep the fear at bay. Worship your intellect, being seen as smart — you will end up feeling stupid, a fraud, always on the verge of being found out. And so on." -David Foster Wallace

"And I urge you to please notice when you are happy, and exclaim or murmur or think at some point, 'If this isn't nice, I don't know what is.'" -Kurt Vonnegut Jr.

"We are what we pretend to be, so we must be careful about what we pretend to be." -Kurt Vonnegut Jr.

"Practice any art, music, singing, dancing, acting, drawing, painting, sculpting, poetry, fiction, essays, reportage, no matter how well or badly, not to get money and fame, but to experience BECOMING, to find out what's inside you, to MAKE YOUR SOUL GROW." -Kurt Vonnegut Jr.

Never trust your gut, trust your experience. It's OK to admit when you are wrong, but it's not OK to admit you were wrong because you didn't listen to everything you have learned.

Always put toilet paper at the bottom of the bowl to avoid Poseidon's kiss - use the paper to give the seat a quick wipe around before putting it in.

Take logical chances.

Investing 100 hours now to have a 5% chance of success and early retirement is much better than investing 40 hours a week to guarantee you will be retiring at 80.

Never follow other peoples advices unless it truly resonates with you and your current life path ahead. If it doesn't resonate with you at all or you have second thoughts on something, dismiss it. Always follow your intuition.

Always be true to yourself, be yourself, don't let the negative energy of other people bring you down. You're stronger than that.

You must love yourself before you can live someone else, if you can not learn to love yourself before someone else, you will only be hurting yourself in the end.

If you ever feel sad or depressed, just know that you will get through these dark times. We as humans will go through these times at one or another, sometimes even more than once, but don't let that discourage you, you have the strength to pull through whatever it is you're facing. These are the every day obstacles humanity has to conquer, so best believe you are not alone out there. You will only come out stronger than you ever were before so don't give up, life continues, so give it your all!

Stay away from morals and reshape them if you need to. Rather than help you they just hold you back.

Quite a few good advice here, keep them coming!

Saixi - January 27, 2020, 12:20 am

-Nothing positive comes from negativity

-Dont try to change or be relevant or liked. Be so good at being you that you're undeniable by others.

Well who isn't, gotta get that post count up.

I want to start making it a thing to post my quote of the days here.

Today, "Art is Art, Everything else is Everything else.

Always find time and a way to laugh everyday. Laughter is one of the most important things in life, assuring a pleasant ride through this game we call "Life." Once mastered, you're one step closer in your journey to understanding.

Happiness is only real when shared true love ain't easy, and easy love ain't true

People are in your life for either a Season, Reason or lifetime

Conparason is the thief of joy.

Only thing you can compare yourself to is you yesterday.

If you change the way you look at things, the things we look at change.

It's not being alone, its feeling alone.

When people show you who they are believe them the first time

If you want to be happy tie your life to a goal not a person.

Good days give you happiness, bad days give you experience. The worst days give you lessons and the best days give you memories.

FOMO is ridiculous. You'll always miss out on some part of the experience, no matter what. If you focus on that instead of on what you did experience, you'll never enjoy the ride.

Also, FOMO is a really bad influence. For example, I've seen many people fall into the grasp of addiction because of it.
