Does anyone know how these work? Do the get paid off likes or waht exactly? Thanks lmk

They get paid per post when promoting the brand

Bigger bloggers/pages get free clothes + compensation depending on their account stats. Smaller bloggers just get free clothes in exchange for an ad.

Fashionova is like a whore, they give away shit to anyone with some likes/comments and followers.

True. I follow a few girls who promote the brand. It's a great way for women to earn some side-money.

???? Didn't know prostitutes paid to fuck their customers.

Depending on your following they'll send you their product for free, and maybe a bit of money, or if you have a big blog they'll send you free products and offer a lot more to make a post promoting their product.

Lol I'm just saying if you have nice stats on social media they will bring you on. They aren't very exclusive as far as picking people to represent the brand. I mean the model works so all the power to them. ?

Still not comparable to a hooker, but I get the analogy. I'm just being a cunt.

I think it's a sad as fuck model to be honest. Trying to invade a market by paying out millions to try and become a household name and "start a movement around the product" only puts me off. Same goes for the cunts at RAID: Shadow Legends and all the other garbage products that shell out tons of money to get a 25k sub YouTuber to mention their product seems desperate as fuck. If their shit was that good, I wouldn't need 100 different ads telling me how good it is.

Bigger people they pay per post smaller people are probably making commissions so they post more

I couldn't agree more. I have never shopped there. I prefer Asos. But had it not been so saturated and every kid shopping there thinking they were hott I might have taken a look at it. But I don't like following the masses and wannabees. I'm glad we could agree ?

I would have thought it would be commissioned sales honestly, but I could see where it would be paid ads

Agree with this in a way. Isn't really hard as long as they have a large followers base. Search @kylekirkmanx on insta. Prime example of anyone can get it. It's a joke really like what the fuck that guy needs locking up.
