Thread: How do you know if your a genius?

HEISENPUG - January 28, 2020, 8:25 am

How would someone know?

How does one measure IQ?

Can you measure the IQ of a genius?

Is being a genius just someone who sees from a different perspective?

Any help is a appreciated ?

keztguru - January 28, 2020, 8:26 am

I'm sure if you reach the genius status, you will be rewarded with job/success.

Brill - January 28, 2020, 8:30 am create/prove something someone hasn't already i guess? you can measure iq but that being on the 99th percentile doesn't make you a genius. having a high iq can actually hinder you, if you have underlying mental illnesses, disorders, etc..

Cooligan - January 28, 2020, 8:32 am

Well I suppose you could always base it against Albert Einstein's IQ which was about 160. However at the same time you could then compare it to someone like William James Sidis who supposedly had an IQ ranging anywhere from 250-300, which is absolutely insane if you think about it. Today the average IQ is 100 they say, who knows what it actually is though.

With people like Einstein and Sidis both being pure geniuses, it's hard to tell really where genius level begins seeing Einstein fell into the 160 range while Sidis fell into the 250-300. Yes Sidis was a child prodigy, but the argument is still there.

I would like to know as well. I wish I could find a nice IQ test, not one of those trash online ones that you just answer questions about.

Geralt - January 28, 2020, 8:36 am

You don't, because geniuses never think they are geniuses because they know there is so much stuff/knowledge they don't know. Observe the things around you, being that 1% that has different opinions that 99% doesn't make you a genius, also high IQ doesn't mean anything since all these online tests are useless, there is plenty of people scoring 150+ and they are dumb af.

Nowadays every other dude takes LSD/shrooms and they think they discovered the purpose of life. Look at some popular historical figures, how young they were when they started doing whatever they did and all their accomplishments.

weird thread, I hope you don't think you genius ?

Citoo - January 28, 2020, 9:07 am

This is an interesting topic that I have wondered about many times but never really have an answer to. I guess when one knows that they are a genius he just knows. But it also depends on the definition that one has for being a genius which is mostly formed by the society we are raised up in. So a genius for me is someone who has seen a different perspective and grasped it. Also he has to have knowledge that is useful in life. For example human psychology and relations, economics, how to run a business, politics and so on.

Online IQ tests are useless and don't estimate anything. If you really want to do an IQ test you'll have to do it in a clinic I suppose? I did it in a hospital where a Psychologist held the IQ test for me. I scored 150 when I was in 7th Grade.

What I really wonder is if I took an IQ test back in 7th grade would our IQ as humans decrease within time or would it increase or none.

Hmm, I might have to check into that.

I would assume it could only grow as long as you grow yourself.

the online tests are the same tests that psychologists administer, so unless you cheat, they offer a fairly accurate approximation of what your IQ is.

Well, what I assumed of online tests is that the free create your own quiz IQ garbage. However, I believe there are online paid tests which almost accurately tells your IQ.

Correct your title to "you're" ?

There's a large number of factors but the most common is 140+ IQ

Yikes. Well that's the first sign that you're not a genius.

knowing that you aren't a genius, simple as that.

Bossk - January 28, 2020, 1:52 pm

I think geniuses rarely think of themselves as geniuses. But being in the top percentile of Mensa's test is the best measurement we have of geniuses, so go take the official test.

Yeah, so far what I've seen, most geniuses think they're just not normal and weird.

Considering you used the incorrect form of "you're", it ain't you, chief.

In the real world you have to work hard to get to a position where people will just start handing you shit, no matter how talented or gifted you are.

OT: There's no way to measure if someone is a genius. The Intelligence Quotient is a very arbitrary and inaccurate way of measuring someone's intelligence because it only tests you on insight, coordination, and problem solving. To me, someone is a genius when they develop their own method of doing something. Doesn't matter if it's an entirely new music genre, a new way to synthesize a drug, a new way to work out mathematical equations, a new way of cooking, etc.

Creativity, kindness, a drive, and passion, sprinkle a bit of luck and skill in there and that's what makes up a genius to me.

yea. i should have specified. thanks for clearing that up. there are a few free ones such as test.mensa.no that was created by Olav Hoel Dørum, who is the test creator for Mensa Norway which will give you a fairly accurate score.

Your definition of a genius is very strange imo. "someone is a genius when they develop their own method of doing something"

Virtually everyone has done this at some point of their life, whether it's coming up with a way to make $50 online or cooking something a certain way.

If you are a genius that would be figured out while you were a kid. You don't just wake up one day as a genius. There are many checks during your childhood, first when you're born they check your brain function and health in general, then before the primary school they test you and that's usually a period when they figure out you're a genius child. If not then, then during the first few grades of primary school and in that case, you skip grades. If nobody told you you're a genius in that period of your life, then you're not one. Maybe you do have a high IQ but it's different from being a genius.

Now, I noticed a lot of people talking about taking online IQ tests. An online IQ test doesn't exist. I don't know if any of you took the real IQ test here, but I did. It's done in a special institution dedicated to the measurement of IQ. The test is taken in front of people that control the whole process and every test is unique and sealed until it's given to you. The test doesn't look like these tests that you see online, it's not just "continue the sequence" or "find the similar shape", it's much more complex. After you're finished with the test, a person that is qualified for that job, checks your answers and you're given intelligence quotient.

If you feel like you're smarter than the average person, go take a test and find out how intelligent you really are. Also, some people think there are different types of intelligence, and I don't want to get into that, you can read about it online.

For one, you know the difference between your and you're in a title, but an IQ test is determined by, Quote:Historically, IQ was a score obtained by dividing a person's mental age score, obtained by administering an intelligence test, by the person's chronological age, both expressed in terms of years and months. The resulting fraction (quotient) is multiplied by 100 to obtain the IQ score.
