Thread: Chipotle fined \$1.3 Million

Quote:The fine detailed that Chipotle had employees under the age of 18 working past midnight and for more than 48 hours a week. Teenagers told investigators their hours of work were so long that it was preventing them from keeping up with their schoolwork. The company also regularly hired minors without work permits.

Never expected to hear something along these lines. Kind of crazy, normally companies go so far out of their way just to not hire minors, let alone have to pay them overtime for over 40 hours a week.

I personally worked way past 40 hours a week as a minor, but I've never had to work past midnight. I completely understand it though, but I feel like if someone wants to work past 40 hours, they should be able to request it. Not be forced to do it.

What do you guys think about this?

You would be surprised at how many minors work way over 40 hours. I was a sports animator this past summer in a beach hotel and there were a lot of 16 and 17 year olds that were working as animators, barmen, cleaning staff, waiters. And it was known that everyone was working about 10 hours a day with only one day off in a week. Sometimes they don't even take the day off because they need the extra money paid for that day. Everyone said that their contract stated only 8 hours of work, but it was known to everyone that if they didn't do as they are told they will be fired. So even when someone has finished his shift they still had to follow orders. The hotel that I worked in is a well known chain in my country.

Eh whatever, these babies can't prioritize their work. If you feel overworked, quit the job.

One million isn't hurting them

Yeah I know, if you don't like the overtime then tell them no.

Absolutely not, and they'll more than likely do this again. Give or take they might not get fined for it again.

Chipotle is worth 475 million, they'll just laugh at it lol.

Of course, any larger company would.

At the same time though, I dont think chipotle could be blamed for it. Like if you dont wanna work that much quit the damn job. Where I live its pretty hard to find jobs that offer alot of hours like chipotle does lol.

Stork - January 28, 2020, 1:09 pm

Damn that's a rough price to pay for employing people.

Yeah, that's exactly what my thought it. It's easy to say no, they can't fire you or anything because they're not allowed to do it in the first place.

They break the law all the time. Screw that place and all of the corporate shitheads who don't know how to run a company. Glad I left.

Yikes, from what I've heard almost nobody that's worked there has enjoyed it

Moe's does have more toppings, but I just don't think it's as fresh.

I think the opposite to be honest, chipotle tastes soggy, moes tastes fresh.

I like Chipotle queso more than moes though, so I guess I'm just weird overall when it comes to them.

Not on Chipotle, it's on the managers. Still, no good.
