99% sure it is just that. I'm seeing it all over Reddit too. Someone either leaked the original or bought it, then decided it was easier to make money by selling it over and over again. Not a bad hustle, but a bit untoward.

Yeah, never understood that to be honest. I put effort into my ebooks and make sure it's all original content, wouldn't wanna be called out for rehashing someone else's idea and passing it off as my own.

Exactly. In my case, I don't sit here and act like I have the key to making millions of dollars. If I did then I probably wouldn't be on HF. What I do instead is offer value through mentorship and updating my system consistently. People forgot how important those factors are.

Yeah, that's the way to do it in my opinion. Besides, I would much prefer to work with someone who's doing the same as me, than someone who has already done it and doesn't have the same motivation as me to keep doing it.
