I insist that you go into a desolate area in the ocean and place a blue whale 2 miles away with no other interference and I'm certain you will hear its huge heart beat through the water. Please bare in mind that sound travels more efficiently in water than it does in the air and also the size of the creatures' heart is the equivalent to the enormous size of my intelligence! :)

I enjoy this, putting bytes on a game not so much, except if it has some award price after or
