

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Seeking a lawyer or someone that knows about copyright infringement

Sickness - February 23, 2020, 11:03 am

Hi,

I've made a website called pokemon\(removethis\)room.com

I've been told that my domain name might be breaking Pokemon copyright.

Had a look here <https://www.pokemon.com/us/terms-of-use/> and I think im breaking this part:

5. USER RIGHTS AND RESTRICTIONS. These Terms grant permission to you, in your individual capacity, to use the content of Service made available to you for personal, noncommercial home use only. In no instance may you:

(iv) Use the content in any manner: (a) suggesting an association with any other products, services, or brands (b) that is likely to cause confusion among customers, © that disparages or discredits Pokémon, (d) that is otherwise exploitative for any commercial purpose; or (e) that otherwise infringes our intellectual property rights;

On the near future I will add ADS to the site.

Mind anyone have a look at my website and provide me a reply to clear my mind? Thanks.

SIM-611976 - February 23, 2020, 11:11 am

Generally, if no permission granted, it's already forbidden to have the trademark (= Pokemon) in your domain name so there the issues begin.

What did you receive exactly? Might share this here, too, as some e-mails are just fake

Sickness - February 23, 2020, 11:16 am

(Feb 23, 2020 12:11 PM)Draguny Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Generally, if no permission granted, it's already forbidden to have the trademark (= Pokemon) in your domain name so there the issues begin.

What did you receive exactly? Might share this here, too, as some e-mails are just fake Havent received anything yet, just been told on reddit about the issue I could have.

01001 - February 23, 2020, 11:41 am

Hi, I'm not sure if this would come handy, but to be on a safer side, add a page or alert box that states that you are not related to the official brand/website of Pokemon. I know that's not the answer, but it would be an excellent way to stay under the safe spot in the future!

Luca - February 23, 2020, 11:43 am

You are not impersonating the company or the brand. Add a disclaimer and you should be good

Sickness - February 23, 2020, 11:49 am

(Feb 23, 2020 12:11 PM)Draguny Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Generally, if no permission granted, it's already forbidden to have the trademark (= Pokemon) in your domain name so there the issues begin.

What did you receive exactly? Might share this here, too, as some e-mails are just fake pokemongofriendcodes .com/privacy

This site been running from 2019 and hasnt been taking down. I guess we can keep with the domain name?

Vibe - February 23, 2020, 11:50 am

I'd just add a disclaimer stating you're not affiliated with Pokemon. What do you plan on doing with the site that could affect on if you run into an issue with them

Sickness - February 23, 2020, 11:53 am

(Feb 23, 2020 12:50 PM)Vibe Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'd just add a disclaimer stating you're not affiliated with Pokemon. What do you plan on doing with the site that could affect on if you run into an issue with them

Planning to make a community and earn revenue from ads and maybe affiliate marketing.

Vibe - February 23, 2020, 11:55 am

(Feb 23, 2020 12:53 PM)Sickness. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Planning to make a community and earn revenue from ads and maybe affiliate marketing.

Yeah I'd just add a message saying that I don't think you'll run into any problems

Sickness - February 23, 2020, 11:58 am

(Feb 23, 2020 12:55 PM)Vibe Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah I'd just add a message saying that I don't think you'll run into any problems

Thanks for the help, closing thread and +repping you.