Thread: about to jump on a plane

onsomeshiz - February 27, 2020, 9:39 am

With all the coronavirus shit going around, I was hesitant to jump on a plane, I have to due to an emergency any suggestions on precautions I should take?

What part of the world are you headed to? It would be wise to wear a face mask during the entire plane ride as you don't know if the plane is infected or not - small chance, but it's still a chance. Wash your hands frequently, keep your hands away from your mouth, use a generous amount of hand sanitizer on your hands and arms. You'll be fine man! Safe travels

If I were you I wouldn't be too worried. If you're really scared of catching the virus make sure to wear a mask and wash your hands often and you should be good to go!

This definitely matters where you are traveling, along with who may be on your flight. Need to know if you are traveling TO the virus or AWAY from the virus.. lol

As long as you are not flying to China, you'll be good, just don't touch your face and wash your hands as much as you can.

Face mask, overload your body with zinc, hand sanitize, avoid anyone coming from asian countries, open the door lock and parachute out to avoid the actual airport landing strip.

Deany - February 27, 2020, 2:58 pm

No way in hell would I go near an airport at this time onsomeshiz - March 12, 2020, 1:25 pm

the trip was taken care of guys, ya boi is safe.

Is wearing a mask and washing your hands better psychology? The plug can heal the beyond.
