Thread: 2nd thread design

VIXV - February 27, 2020, 7:47 pm

My second thread design:

Please give advice/reviews - Thanks

Linux X - February 28, 2020, 3:34 am

Try to find better fonts. I will rate it 7/10.

P.S.- Don't use so much drop shadow or glow.

Cyam - February 28, 2020, 3:58 am

It's actually pretty nice considering it's your 2nd thread design.

I recommend you to get familiar with margins and centering though because it hurts my eyes to not see the text properly aligned.

Goku - February 28, 2020, 4:22 am

Aaaaaaaahhhh Do you even know how shadows works!?!?!?

But overall nice aesthetics.

Dotexe - February 28, 2020, 6:10 am

If it's dark based it'd be much better, but that's totally my opinion

tbh the shadows really killed the design :/

Try doing it subtle firstly and check out this video, it's about using drop-shadow in webdesign but it also applies to this too. I really recommend watching the whole vid and taking notes (literally).

Absolutely brilliant, thanks so much :)
I'll be uploading a second version soon if you'd care to take a look :)

Np! With such an attitude you will improve in no time :)
I also love making dark UI too but you should also learn to make light UIs and you're doing it pretty well ?Keep it up

I'm also in progress of making a signature, how do you feel about me re-using that central widget with the features on it but we-writing it all? That a good idea or should I go with a new object?

You can do that. Sadly Hf has a size limit so you have a limited amount of frames you can show.

I would group the features in different groups and show each group of features in different transitions.

When I make a thread design I (almost) always just copy a section from the thread so that shouldn't matter, it even makes things faster so win win.

Congrats on the egg by the way :)

Yeah, but I'll figure it out, it's a learning curve :)

Yeah that's what I was planning to do

Yeah that's what I was thinking, it'll link in with the thread. You can see my first attempt at a thread design here

Also, thanks :)

Wow, then your second attempt was a way better turn out. ?
Of course, no problem it's nice to see someone have such a progression.

It's really appreciated

What do you think?

flavoral - February 28, 2020, 7:26 am

Text is too close here, give it some space to breath imo.

Also the space here between the box and the borders in left and right side aren't equal. aka not centered.

Nicee, I would only add more space between the edge and the content

Same issue in the Payment box, everything inside of it isn't centered well.

Still mate.

it's not centered, it's all thrown into the right side and more toward up.

Sorry I wasn't clear. I meant the outer edges.

I'll try to show it quickly

Try aligning everything inside the red area. Red area shouldn't have any content.

Ohh okay, so no text/objects in that area, I'll try

flavoral - February 28, 2020, 7:46 am

It's bit better now. Now just move only "Payment methods:" a little bit to the right.

OP I recommend making a selection of the box you want something to center it and use the alignment tool to align the element it in the center.

Also, use the same space in multiple places. Same like using the same colors and same fonts. You don't use the whole rainbow so why would you use different space sizes.

Done and done.

Just need to sort out the dotted map

Forgot to quote, I did that and newest version is on my thread.

Thanks so much for your help mate ?

I can remember your first one and this is a massive improvement. Good job, I like this over the old one a lot!

Goku - February 29, 2020, 4:50 am

You're doing pretty good!

You just need to learn spacing and your designs would look perfectly.
