Thread: Polymath | Official Recruitment

SIM-3323508 - March 1, 2020, 8:06 am

As the description of Polymath indicates, Polymath is not a group with one specific theme or topic. Our goal is to build a group with a set of individuals with different and broad knowledge, so that we as a group can cover multiple things here on the forums.

To apply for Polymath, write an application where you tell us about yourself and post it on this thread. There are no specific requirements on how you should set up your application. Please note that we will only accept members whose skill-sets match well with our requirements and show a certain indication of quality throughout the forum.

Please keep the application below 200 words.

Do not ask me if you have been accepted, or if I have read your application. Doing so will get you blacklisted from Polymath and a spot in my ignore list.

LoremIpsum - March 1, 2020, 8:11 am

I have no idea how to apply to a group without specific requirements, but I think I might be a suitable member for your new group. I love the Polymath user bar, it reminds me of spirituality combined with the symmetrical arts of life itself.

I try my best to help out those who are in need, I say what I think without being too bold or rude and I know how to make money. I can be active in the evening hours or during the day in weekends too. Further, I have no clue what to say about me that doesn't sound egocentrically or narcissistically when saying out loud.

More about myself, I am between 25 and 30 years old. I had my Birthday last week which was the main reason of organising the $15 BTC Contest ending today. I'm member since 2019 August and I love to participate with group activities if I have the time and knowledge for it. I like to learn new things. I have a broad IT knowledge. I can make money online and offline, as I help businesses grow in revenues like I do with freelancers too. Feel free to contact me any time!

Did they really name the group after you or are you just a member with broad knowledge of many things? ?

Sugawara - March 1, 2020, 10:12 am

To give a brief gist of me and my interests. I'm in my late 20s, currently working as a software developer and wanting to switch my career into a more specific domain. I've been doing UI/UX, SMM and even Shopify for quite a while. All my 20s is devoted to learning and experiments, not specific to monetary gains but exploring the wide spectrum of content. I have lately started watching Anime. The most recent one goes by the name "Kimi No Na Wa" (Your Name), loved the detailing of sketches and build up which made me cry for 2 hours. That's what an Anime does to you.

Been here in HF since early 2011, it's been a long ride, and it excites me watching the forum grow with respect to content and quality.

Thank you for your time.

Kenjataimu - March 1, 2020, 2:26 pm

Nice to see this group coming back.

I would apply but I am busy with other projects currently.
Hope this group does well!

eXceptional - March 2, 2020, 2:56 am

Why do you want to join the Polymath?

Because I know a few people already in the group (not personally) and apart from that I've seen that the group has a lot of known members and I just want to blend in with a group of professionals on Hack Forums. The name says "Polymath" and I am ready to accept that I have wide site knowledge and can learn or teach if the topic is in my interest. Working with the group will enhance my knowledge and working under the guidance of the experienced members will encourage me to work even more for the development of the group as well as for me.

If you get accepted into the group, are you willing to be active in the group threads daily?

Yes, I will be active but I generally tend to be inactive during festivals and family occasions. Also, birthdays. I am the type of person who will both debate and converse with enthusiasm and eagerness to learn, the type of person who will actively engage with others in an attempt to better themselves and the person being talked to.

If you get accepted into the Polymath, are you willing to contribute to every thread?

If you just need a 1 liner LQ post then I'm sure I can contribute to every thread but if the thread has my interest I'm sure I'll give 100% to be HQ and share what I have.

Apart from contributing in every thread, I can bring in some help with SMM Panel's for which I am good at since 2012 on Hack Forums.

Why Do you think you should be accepted into Polymath?

I think I should be accepted because I can't wait to be active in this subforum, I love all these discussions, and would love to give away to the HF community under the name of Polymath. This is one of the greatest groups out there, and please note that I am not in this just for some user bar, I am actually in it for the section topics, and a lot more, way more than a user bar. I also would like you to not judge me over my low post count. I've been a member since 2012, but have donated a lot to this forum, and can't wait for being able to be a part of this incredible group. I am just asking you to give me a chance, as this would be big. I would love to be a part of Polymath, because it is one of those groups that are amazing, and are simple and unique, not the average group that ends up dying down in over 1-2 months.

Extra's I'm Amey. I'm a 25-year-old currently residing in India. I'm a bit of a part-time gamer when I'm not busy or at the gym then I'll probably kick back and have a few games of Dota 2 or be active on Hack Forums. Every weekend I and my couple of friends plan for an activity outing where we sometimes play Cricket, Soccer and even Snooker. These outings are fixed as the life we expect is not good with everyone so we need fresh air to get some spare of negative thinking.

vyactor - March 2, 2020, 4:05 am

I'm definitely interested to join a group and I guess this would be the perfect one for me. I'm a cooperative kind of guy along with that, I have the ability to deal with things patiently. I'm also much interested to get into discussions, discover new things, learn and share knowledge.

Besides this, I'm a graphics designer and a front-end web developer. I've been into this field for more than a year. I've been taking steps on being more productive and creative while I have the passion to learn new concepts and creativity. It really will be an honor for me to be a part of this group.

Regards,
vyactor

I've been on HF for 10 years so I know a thing or two.

I'm a coder, developer, and a few other titles.

Angela White - March 2, 2020, 4:08 pm

Why do you want to join Polymath?

Been wanting to contribute more to HF, and wanting to meet more people. I'd like to start contributing in groups and in forum sections about anything PC / coding related. I'm fluent in over 10 different programming languages, own 3 different (actual) businesses, and am a hustler at heart.

If you get accepted into the group, are you willing to be active in the group threads daily?
Yes, I work from home & am always on my PC. Being able to be involved with a group of people would 100% keep me active and posting high-quality content to keep the name of the group good.

If you get accepted into the Polymath, are you willing to contribute to every thread?
I own multiple companies that all have subscriptions or packages for purchase, I don't mind giving them out.

Why Do you think you should be accepted into Polymath?
I love discussions, I love the idea of the group, and I want to start making a name for myself here on HF. Feel free to message me about any of my products or businesses, they're not the average skid products you see here on Hack Forums. I have knowledge that I'm willing to share & I want to contribute and meet some good friends here.

Nice to see Polymath back in action

AYMG - March 2, 2020, 5:03 pm

Looking for a group without specific skills required, Polymath might be the right one.
Contributing to this group by many individual pieces of information is something where I would find myself, not from a single topic but from every information that can be reached on the internet and even beyond it, from the mind and thoughts themselves.

If Polymath offers a vast knowledge of different things, I would like to be a part of it.

Aura - March 2, 2020, 5:05 pm

That group's still around?

RushEm - March 2, 2020, 8:10 pm

Here's a bit about myself:

Developed game/hack mods for certain video games and created a secured executable that inject code and headers into game header files to create an external virtual interface in game to manipulate game play.

Developed a Virtual Private Network software company that gives users privacy and security on the internet. Providing a secured web surfing opportunity to clients across the world. Managed multiple servers in multiple countries for users to connect to any part of the world and surf the web without having limits or restrictions.

Developed and managed a CDN network. Developed a system of any-cast technology to provide websites faster load times to potential clients no matter what part of the world they are at. With the main feature of an advanced DDOS mitigation system coded in python to provide Layer 4 & Layer 7 DDOS protection to websites to provide guaranteed uptime in any attack.

Learned programing and web development skills at a very young age of 10 years old. Self-taught and self-learned to achieve an understanding of advanced topics to develop software. With the acquired skills I created multiple businesses and business opportunities to capitalize on the skills learned.

I'm a fairly new member but I still believe I can be useful in a couple ways: I am very active on HF, averaging around 15 posts per day. I am extremely skilled in VFX and pretty good in GFX. These are some of my biggest passions. Another thing I love is coding. I am experienced in Python and C# but always looking to broaden my horizons and learn new things which is why I'm preparing to take on JS soon. These forums have really made my life more interesting and fun, right now I just wanna experience everything they have to offer. I've never been in an official group before and it sounds extremely fun. I would love to join you guys at Polymath and see what you're all about, and I will do my best to help you guys out in any way I can.

Been around HF on and off for a while, went MIA a few years back to focus on studies and to secure a position as a sys/network admin for a software development company for which I have been employed for ~5 years.

Always had a deep interest in info sec and have a range of experience in the field which I'm guessing will surpass your 200 character limit to list it all lol. I've had hands on experience in the field with routine pen testing from reconnaissance to post-exploitation and reporting. I would say my strongest suit would be my out-of-the box methodology when it comes to this and my biggest weakness being my coding ability. I know enough scripting languages to get me by but would like to improve on this.

Hopefully your group will be somewhere I can broaden my skills and also teach what I can. I'm happy to provide some of the documentation of the exploitable PoC's I have made during some of these tests.

200 characters can sugma.

Why do i want to join Polymath?

I want to join Polymath because it is exactly the group for me. There isn't anything specific about this group except from the fact that we all come together to help each other out and share our knowledge in our fields, and in the end we'll help each other grow.

What do i bring to the table?

I have knowledge in several areas but my main one is business management. I have a handful of businesses that are successful and nowadays are finally classified as traditional. I am willing to share my knowledge and help others in the group grow their business.

I'm going to end it here because i do not want to pass the 200 words limit and i am not sure where i am at right now.

Thank you for your time. I hope to hear back from you, Omy11.

I've been around on HackForums since 2017 and I'm still learning new things every single day. In my spare time, I like to work on side projects and hustles. I also like graphic designing but I'm horribly bad at it. I'm very productive and my main focus in life is becoming successful. I'm a great mentor and I love teaching as well. Hopefully, this post is under 200 words. We shall see. Thank you for letting us apply.

Social Engineer - March 30, 2020, 3:48 am

Social Engineer here, I'm experienced in the world of marketing, social engineering, and now taking a leap into the whole making money online scene. I've been marketing and social engineering for over 7 years, and it's where my main skills are.

I've studied psychology, marketing and taken many courses in order to help expand and improve on my skillset and to invest into myself.

With online money making, I've looked at a wide range of options, and testing the waters with multiple "passive income" style monetisation methods, without the use of any tutorials. I hope to share this knowledge, and journey with others online. Given

I'm coming from a background where online money making is very minimal for me, I guess I would better connect with those looking for ways to earn money online, share my journey with them and share what I learn along the way.

I hope you consider my application and allow me to become a part of the group.

SaintJimmy - April 3, 2020, 10:22 pm

Brief Information about my Skills

Web Designing and Programming is something I enjoy. I've helped multiple users with MyBB related stuff, as well with advice. Coming to MyBB, I have a working knowledge of backend in MyBB. In addition that, I've experience in working on forums running on phpBB, SMF & IPB.

Some of my skills are mainly hardware based. This will include the repairs of all consoles, mobile phones and other electronic devices. I fix all my stuff at home. I make my PC Builds and have a few of my friends' builds as well. I've a topic on my PC setup as well. Find it here.

P.S: A sneak peek inside my CPU.

Spoiler (Click to View)

I have basic knowledge C/C++ and C#. I have IRL courses in RPA (UI) and currently working on Java and learning Python. Not a coder by profession but a learner by passion. Also have a good deal of knowledge in making sigs and avatars. I mess around on YT Tuts whenever I can get time.

Sections where I am most active

I'm a Lounge Poster. But I also am a regular in the Group Sections, Science, Religion, Philosophy, and Politics (SRPP) and Movies, TV, and Videos. I enjoy talking to people in these section and find very friendly and willing to help out. I'm also a Discord regular.

Why I want to join Polymath?

I would like to join for numerous reasons, one being, Polymath is one of the oldest, seems like one of the high quality groups on HF. The group is very well organized and I see you guys only let in very few members and those few members are very high quality. The output of this group is amazing (I see this when MMLF and the others represent the group outside the subforum), I see such good quality posts and contributions coming from the group, I have seen discussions around the forum from Polymath members and it's mostly meaningful, high quality, or serious posts, none of the trash that people make in general.

Why do I feel that I deserve to be accepted into Polymath?

I think I would be a valuable asset to the group simply because I'd like to learn and share. Polymath seems like one of MMLF's better groups and accepts potential candidates (not everyone who applied did get in). I think I'm potential as I try at my best to help and learn at the same time. I've vast experience and I think I could help with my above skillset and get to know people by representing Polymath.

Thanks for taking your time to review my application.

Nate - April 3, 2020, 11:53 pm

1. I want to join polymath because firstly I want to contribute some valuable to this forum and secondly I am sharp in mathematics, data structs and algorithms and cryptology , I would like to discuss with you guys.

2. I will mostly or when i will get time i will be active in this group and try to help other members too.

3. yeah If the threa's topic is in my knowledge i will help otherwise i will not be a problem for you. I am calm.

4. I already told in #1 why i think i should be accepted in polymath.

Disease - April 4, 2020, 5:00 pm

I'm applying for Polymath today in the hopes to not only learn from others but to share my knowledge and experience with likeminded people. I've always been a firm believer that if your skillset isn't growing, it's dying; that complacency is the death of any skill. And I like that the group's focus is to build a roster of people with differing skillsets, and think mine will help compliment it.

I've worked as a full-time, professional developer for over a decade now, and run my own Digital Marketing and IT consulting company on the side. I am primarily a full-stack web developer, but I do have experience with developing desktop applications. Besides writing code, I'm particularly passionate about data and database systems- especially in today's data-driven world.

Thanks for the consideration!

Ok, I'll make a video application to join your virtual group once you do the same.

After all these years, I still don't know what you look like behind the username 'zSerity.' What's there to hide?

I would like a place to talk about my spontaneous ideas and thoughts; polymath always was the place for that (from what I can remember.)

Anyways, nice to meet you and I promise to be active in Polymath if you decide to add me.

I just need a home.

p.s.

I miss you Lani.

I've been an on and off again member of hack forums for around 7 years now. I've always enjoyed sharing my knowledge here. I'm currently working on becoming a software developer and am heading off for college this year. I've been programming though for several years now. I've messed around with several technologies but the ones I keep coming back to are Python, CSS, and JavaScript. I'm also fairly proficient in PHP, although my knowledge is a little outdated.

Full list of technologies used ranked from highest to lowest: Python, JavaScript, HTML5, CSS3, PHP, Java, C#, Unity3D, Unreal Engine 4, PyGame, C++, C, Node.js, React, and Assembly

Beyond this, I've also experimented with 3D modelling using both Blender and 3DS Max, although I am far more proficient Blender. I've also done some work with video editing in the past, running a small YouTube channel for around a year, only getting about 100 subscribers. My videos were primarily on computer programming with Java and video games.

You can catch me on the next season of TLC's my 600 LB Life

Orchid - May 4, 2020, 5:46 pm

Not trying to be hostile with you or anything, but I don't see how an adult (you have to be somewhat aged) can still sit on a forum and attempt to heckle someone who never was hecklable to begin with.

Yet, you still sit here and try to demonstrate this false sense of power you 'have' by telling someone to 'make a video application'

You should do something out of your comfort zone or maybe go skydiving.

How many years has it been since my application?

lol, let's FaceTime, I'll post my cellphone publicly on here, will you?

You can video record it and show everyone all my double chins (been a few years since I last saw them but you can put on your monocle and have a look for yourself)

I have a wide understanding of almost all things relating to online business, money, marketing, and so forth.

I hit 7 figures in E-Commerce revenue at the end of last year/first few days of this year. I've spent well into 6 figures on paid ads.

I love consumer psychology.

I have professional video editing experience. I know Photoshop. I make $1.5k+/day when I E-Whore.

This group sounds like it was legitimately made for me. I can go on and on about skills I know. I feel like I have ADHD or some shit because every time I learn something I move onto something new fast as fuck (but still master the previous one, too).

Happeh - May 6, 2020, 12:02 pm

Oh, man, I missed Polymath, it was a fantastic group and bet it still is.

Free Kurdistan - August 20, 2020, 3:09 am

Greetings. My name is Rudy, 21 years old and living in Denmark. I'd say I'm a perfect fit for the group. My dedication and love for Hack Forums is vast and I think that my broad and wide knowledge on many different things can be used especially for a group like this. Some of my different areas of knowledge are gaming, betting, languages, philosophy, culture, pedagogy, psychology, everyday topics and basic computer knowledge. I'd call myself a wise and very positive guy as I almost never get triggered or mad about something, especially online. I always keep my cool and continue a conversation or argument without crossing limits or letting emotions come through. I can talk about almost everything / any topic hence my activity in The Lounge right now.

I'm choosing to apply and grab my chances here as Polymath is a legendary group and because I personally think that I meet the requirements. Not only will and can I participate in everyday topics and threads but also learn from likeminded people, which is also one of the reasons I want to join; to learn.

Thanks for reading and good luck to all applicants.

Kind regards.

Not too sure if I qualify, but I thought I'd apply anyway.

I have been a reverse engineer and computer programmer for about 8 years. For the most part, I am self-taught but I have ventured off into University to continue studying Computer Science, Data Science and Mathematics where I have been very successful by gaining the top marks in all of my classes. With all that being said, I'd say I know quite a bit about computers and computer programs and think I would be an asset to this group in the long run.

I am relatively new to the HF scene and I will continue to be an active member as I see a lot of potential on this forum, along with everyone being quite friendly.

jecoylecroy - September 19, 2020, 5:17 pm

Hello SIM-3323508 can I join your group?

I am new in HF and I am looking for a group to join. I am not HQ as other member but I'm active. I am an associate IT graduate. I don't talk to much in real life but I good in what I do. I'm always strive to be the best. I'm shy and lone person. I troubleshoots and encodes data in my current job. I know how to code but I don't do projects so I only modify code and script.

I hope you will consider me in the crew.

Doomslayer - March 10, 2021, 3:52 am

I am way late but shooting my shot anyway.

I love the idea of this group. I am a CS college student and I joined HF with the intent of meeting people with similar interests. Besides programming I am going for a minor in math, learning chess theory, investing in stocks and crypto, and even picking up the guitar.

I try to learn something new every day, and I appreciate this group for valuing knowledge. I am active every day on HF and try to be as HQ as possible. I always try to answer any questions I receive and put effort into helping people, and trying to help them learn. Whether it's beginner programmers asking me to debug their code or asking me to explain how to explain a project I made, I always make sure to teach them something rather than just spoon feeding.

Anyways, if your reading this all these months later thanks.

I fell 12 feet onto my back off of my porch running from my 4 year old niece, didn't even get hurt. I'm nearly 30.

Is this a skill you are looking for?

I miss Echo.

What Reason(s) Are You Applying To Polymath?

I am applying to become a member of Polymath because, through my observation, Polymath is a legacy crew/group that has strong credibility/reputation. Since becoming a highly active member of HackForums, I have patiently waited to find the right crew to call home, and with Polymath I believe I have found such a group.

Why Do You Believe You Should Be Considered For A Members Position In Polymath?

I believe that the members of Polymath and I are like-minded individuals whom are interested in learning about an array of different topics. As a teaching assistant at MIT, I have acquired the ability to learn about and discuss properly a number of subjects with a large demographic, that others may find troublesome.

If Accepted Into Polymath, Will You Participate In Crew/Group Discussions, Threads, And Activities, Daily?

If accepted into Polymath, I will be active in all forms of group discussions or activities. This includes threads, discussions, activities, (Such as giveaways, HackForums games, etc.) and overall anything pertaining to the Polymath crew/group.

If Accepted Into Polymath, What Unique Trait(s)/Skill(s) Do You Bring To The Table?

Although programming has always been my main interest, I am well versed a variety of topics such as philosophy, quantum theory, stenography, and theology. I also have a vast amount of knowledge in music, which spans across many different genres, as well as the ability to play multiple instruments and to discuss musical theory., will make me a viable candidate for membership into Polymath.

I'm a god at OG lounge. If you want someone to talk a lot employ me. I'm only the most active chill poster.

I would like to to join the group as I stated in my other application I can be an asset of this group.

Forest - March 27, 2021, 2:31 am

This group sounds right up my alley! Im now retired however I worked with multiple investment banks and hedge funds, worked mainly as a Quant dev/researcher working on modelling and portfolio management with various other projects (personal) going on at the same time.

I'm a fairly new member however I'm trying to stay active here on the forum. My languages: Python, c++, PHP, Java, JavaScript and R. Frameworks include: Django, Angular, Vue and many more.

I believe I can bring a lot to the table with my previous experience and would be happy to work on some large scale projects with likeminded people.
