Thread: Should i be worried

itsBluey_ - March 2, 2020, 1:00 pm

So this guy added my snap and bought my premium then after few minutes after me sending him nudes etc he messages this

"I am part of a task force team, where we are tasked to find accounts like this selling explicit content. We are reporting this account and your backup, along with your fake payment processing system. The user accounts will all be taken down." i have his address and ip because i take my payments through stripe so the address was just normal looking house in ohio and ip matches the address. im really confused why would he buy then say that he was scared it showed that after paying it would say sexual stuff in statements too. has anyone else gotten this or was he just being weird Probably just some incel with nothing better to do. I wouldn't be too worried if I were you.

VIXV - March 2, 2020, 1:12 pm

Fear mongering maybe, maybe a test?

I highly doubt anything will come of it.

You are good. He probably did a reverse image search, found your girl and is mad now. He won't do shit.

Bluffer - March 2, 2020, 1:22 pm

He's just fucking with you. Come on... if you looked at his address and it's an actual residence do you think he's really "part of a task force"? What government would fund a task force to find ewhores anyways? There's so many more important things.

Dorrance - March 2, 2020, 1:24 pm

Honestly I wouldn't care or be too worried as long as I am getting my bag.

for real tho

Snowwy - March 2, 2020, 2:57 pm

No government task force agency group wank wank would make it that easy for someone to find their address.
