Thread: Scam scam scam and, scam

Catchick - March 3, 2020, 6:57 pm

I am a newbie to the HF. I know that this makes me unpopular but I need to get this said. I am willing to learn. I am willing to listen and I just want to part my learnings for the past two weeks. I needed help. A close family member was, and still is being threatened and harassed by a former business partner. This dude is bad; he's threatening the life of this family member, the life of our family, and this guy did business with my family member, got paid, but refuses to deliver the final product out of some kind of principle. He raped a co-worker and is laughing about it to his gruesome friends.

I decided to hire a hacker to break into this asshole's phone and email so that we could obtain the contacts and shut all his means of contact down including his social media, fb, Instagram and his business website. What does a newbie do to hire a hacker? Goes on fucking Google. Sees all the hackers for hire. Hires one, they take my money, make promises, don't deliver but sends me a "congratulations" email saying the work is 99% done and all I need to do to get it finished is to send $3,000. I don't send it, but am out the first $1,000.

Do I learn my lesson? No, I hire another one as this one sounds, shall we say, "honest". Convinced me that I will not be taken again, will not ask for additional funds and will have the work done in 24 hours. I get taken again. Asks for money for a decoder. This guy by the way, guarantees the work and if not delivered will give the money back. I ask for the money back and he tells me "do you think this is a game you can start when you want and finish when you want?" Stupid me, not getting any results, not getting my money back and getting desperate to help my family member, (okay, my son), hires another one.

I am out $4,000 by now. Dude promises delivery says no further charges or payments required, then tells me he needs an additional $1,400 for a filter. That filter doesn't work, he needs another $1,400 for another one. I don't pay.

Find the last one, guarantees that it will be done in 4 hours. Then, the excuses start. Bad service provider, bad connections, don't work on Sundays because of church, machine not powerful enough, needs to go to dad's office IN ANOTHER STATE to use dad's machine. Hackers "dad" contacts me and says I need to pay more money as the tool license have expired. I refuse. So, I have learned my lesson and am out around $7,000. Hard and expensive lesson. And I am feeling stupid, embarrassed, and scammed. Kinda like raped. I didn't know that this was such a profitable business for these fuckers.

Here are the names of the scammers (for what it's worth):

1. Encrypted2018@tutanota.com
2. Hacklancers (Frank Moses - ya, sure)
3. privatehacker247@gmail.com (Steve Chapman)
4. Ladyhacker80@gmail.com, first name maybe Debra

How does this story end? It's hasn't yet. Still looking for help.

Wow man, this is unreal. What a troll... lol

I'll do the job for all your Bytes... lol

Lindros - March 3, 2020, 9:35 pm

No offense but getting scammed in such fashion multiple times takes a real talent, I think you should keep it up.

Wrong section also as this isn't really news.

Luca - March 3, 2020, 10:37 pm

Man... Sounds like you have some special talent getting scammed multiple times like that.

This is really sad to hear. But why did you not learn first time when you got scammed?

Temp_reassign - March 4, 2020, 3:31 am

I'm so sorry for your loss man. try not to be too desperate. but i understand. shame. that's a lot of money to loose.

So, uh, this might sound real crazy but bear with me, I have got a tool that allows you to hack anyone. Just costs $10K, dm me for my bitcoin address.

SIM-4574945 - March 4, 2020, 5:35 am

It's psychology. If I make you send me something like a good sum of money after I tried scamming you, you will do for the 2nd or 3rd time because your mind needs to justify your actions. It's something related to cognitive dissonance. This kind of mechanism is like the gambling.

If you don't send the money, you would feel guilty or distressed because you have to justify what you did (right or wrong).

Anyway I strongly recommended you to not buying anything from internet and be careful when dealing with hackers. It's impossible to achieve your goal due to the mobile's security.

SIM-3205632 - March 4, 2020, 5:44 am

If you get scammed once it's understandable but 3 times ur just an idiot at that point.

Catchick - March 4, 2020, 6:01 am

Why did I fall for this so many times? Because I'm a desperate mom trying to help her son from getting killed! I didn't know that this is how it worked! My son is getting death threats from this guy and getting threats that this guy will rape his girlfriend. I am not familiar with your world. Yes, I'm an idiot, but give me some slack folks. I need help, not psychology!

McLaren - March 4, 2020, 6:26 am

Damn you're an idiot and it was probably the same person scamming you over n over again too

Edit: If you're legit n want help then lmk where I can contact you

Mektor - March 4, 2020, 6:36 am

I've got a good deal on ocean front property in Kansas if interested.

In all seriousness hopefully this isn't real though.

There's a place called the police station. Try going there instead of looking to hire some 15 year old to hack phones. That's your option if you are who you say you are.

If not, then you are some kid looking for hacking service and using this story to get free hacking service and then running away.

Catchick - March 4, 2020, 6:59 am

We have gone to the cops. We have filed reports in Amsterdam, where the bad guy is, Berlin, where my son is, have filed a report in my sons originating country, we have retained a lawyer. Cops say unless my son actually AND I quote "gets hurt", there's nothing they can do. I didn't just resort to doing it this way, I'm not such a stupid idiot that I haven't explored all of this.

And I'm a fucking old lady, not a 15 year old kid. Be nice smart ass.

He didn't mention what business he is in.

Do you remember when the owner of the RedLions group was exposed as a Saudi government agent, hiring hackers from HF to RAT journalists that criticize the government?

I have no idea who OP is, but it seems like there are a few people here that are not the typical internet marketers. They buy services for reasons that is quite hard to imagine.

Hey,

Literally registered to the board and upgraded my account for the sole reason of helping you. I've also been scammed multiple times on exploit selling boards and I think I can help you out.

I am located in Germany and occasionally in the Netherlands.

I'm not asking for money or anything like that, I just want to see if I can help you in any way. If I can possibly stop someone from getting killed I get my fresh dose of karma!

Message me!

There's literally no way you're going to hack his phone. The best you could probably do is get his phone number and use an SMS bomber on him. And even that probably wouldn't do too much.

To all you degenerates who posted here making fun of OP, how hard is it to be nice, or at least to not be rude. As stated in the post above, I believe OP's not very young, and not used to these forums either.

To OP, Mr. Robot offers a service for obtaining passwords to Facebook accounts, and some similar services as well, to my knowledge. He might be of help to you.

Lol, obtaining passwords for Facebook. LOL.

You can literally output all their info (email, phone nr) and such by just being friends.
