Thread: Are most buyers regular buyers?

SIM-2362662 - March 5, 2020, 2:06 am

I have a theory and I'm curious if anyone agrees or disagrees with it. Important to mention, I don't do manual ewhoring anymore (I did about 2 years ago).

Basically I know having a unique, unsaturated pack is very important. Most people here would tell you its a must in order to make anything because otherwise potential buyers will know youre a scam since they've probbably seen your pics before.

So does that mean that most buyers, statistically speaking, have bought nudes before?

Based on this, people divide into two groups: those who never buy and those who buy regularly.

Based on this, people divide into two groups: those who never buy and those who buy regularly. That is mostly correct, though there are people that are attracted to very specific looks and will only buy nudes if they stumble upon a "girl" that meets their criteria, so my 2 cents are that yes, while your theory is mostly correct there are people that won't buy from you but will buy from me and vice versa depending on what they're looking for

Regular buyers who are willing to spend a lot of money tend to ask for very specific verification (holding a fork with your right hand/weird hand sign etc)

And there are also newbies who are willing to spend a medium amount of money

For me I only meet newbies and I guide them on how they could pay me(they don't even have cashapp or Know about Amazon e-gifts)

So in this case, it wouldnt matter for you how saturated the packs are (since they've probbably never seen the pics before). Would you agree with this?

I've found it to be the exact opposite of this. The men that want specific verifications were either timewasters or ewhores trying to build their pack. A horny man ready to buy isn't trying to waste time. He wants what he is looking for that exact minute.

Depending on what you are selling, you can turn the non buyer into a regular buyer very quickly. You need a large unsaturated pack, a female partner or a specific service that you are selling.

"you can turn the non buyer into a regular buyer very quickly. You need a large unsaturated pack"

I dont think so. My point was that if these "non buyers ready to become buyers" are so many, you wouldn't need an unsaturated pack, since they've probbably never seen those pics before. (if they did see those pics before it means they were timewasters for someone else. So whats the chance of them buying from you)

I think it's safe to say they have bought before. I can't really back that up with anything though. Just my opinion.

The entire quote was "You need a large unsaturated pack, a female partner or a specific service that you are selling."

When I had a partner and kik still had the live video function, the ability to immediately say "Hi (name)" to someone was a quick way to turn the non buyer into a buyer because most ewhores couldn't do that. Another partner only did custom pic sets and videos. That's another thing that most ewhores couldn't offer. And I learned to stop relying on SE and rely on salesmanship. One of my threads (<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=6042370>) talks about that. I see ewhores that can't sell. They can't answer that "Why should I buy when porn is for free?" question.

Would you agree with this?Yes it wouldn't matter if they never chatted with an e-w before and if it's their first time they won't even complain about the quality/posing of that garbage pack content

But finding newbies is the hardest part with the influx of bots/other e-w

I usually ghost them instantly when they ask about specific verification also you hit the nail on the head with the fact that other e-w are trying to build their packs.
