Pleased to announce that Mairimashita! Iruma-Kun, also known as Welcome to Demon School! Iruma-kun will be getting a second season! I am very happy to hear this, as this 2-cour anime cheered me up the past two seasons.

It's awesome to hear so quickly that there will be a second season right after the last episode of the first season finished airing today. Welcome to Demon school was a pretty good anime. All of the characters had great synergy and they all connected well. Iruma was a cool main character and he was always bringing something new to the table every day.

Next season is for sure going to be interesting! We got a sneak peek preview at the end of episode 23 and I'm really curious to see what happened to Iruma. From certain openings throughout the anime, we've seen the narrator describe what the next demon king would be like. He would be from another world, he would possess the Ring of Solomon and I believe heal and bring peace to the demon world and those who live in it. At Iruma's current state, he is the perfect person for this. He is very kind and always thinking about others before himself. But with the preview of him being nasty to his grandfather, I'm wondering if he'll still be on track with being the next demon king!

I really hope the second season will also be a 2-cour anime, just like the first. It will allow us to see more of Iruma as he works hard to rank up at school.

Overall, I thought the anime was 8/10. I've seen other people's reviews and it's anywhere between six/seven out of ten. Did you enjoy the first season? Are you ready for the next?

Clara and Azz-kun were great friends of Iruma. All three of them had great chemistry together and I'm excited to see more of their shenanigans next season.
