To the American people, how much are you getting back on your tax return from your interest free loan to the government?

GreenMartian - March 8, 2020, 5:50 pm

I only made 11k last year at my job (very part time/college) I just got done filing them via Turbo tax and im getting $978 back. Not too shabby.

N - March 8, 2020, 5:50 pm

I'm going to have to pay back, just not sure how much yet.

YoGotti - March 8, 2020, 6:11 pm

I didn't get anything back because I'm no longer employed and don't really have anything to pay taxes on, posting here to come back as this is an interesting topic.

Damn, that's rough. I pay taxes for my business but it's not horrible.

That's what it's for, business. Will find out in April the exact amount of what I have to pay back this year. Hopefully it's not bad.

not getting back shit.

The wife and i make to much money.

If we want anything back i would and will edit our W4

I'm tired of busting our asses off only to be taxed to death.

what a great country we live in.

We bust our asses off only to be taxed.

Dafuq. That sounds like you used the free version and just kind of winged it? You should have gotten way more back. The fact that you go to school should give you a nice chunk of change, the fact that you have a job should give you more back and the fact that you make so little from your job automatically gives you a credit of x amount. Without even digging into your credits and what not, you should have gotten more than you're getting for just the things I listed. ?

Got pretty much half a month paycheck back. Spent it all in investments already.

Zoomers - March 9, 2020, 1:28 am

I only worked during summer made like 2500 but they i shouldve been withheld, im thinking maybe 300 back but then i would need to submit my robinhood 1099 misc gains and i just feel like the effort isnt worthit sadly i gotta check my tax document that was provided once i get home from college.

Glare - March 9, 2020, 1:44 am

Not american, but i got 1200 back and it instantly went to fines :(

scam. - March 9, 2020, 1:54 am

Not from us but I'm gonna be doing mine soon.

I should be getting a few grand. Need to sift through everything and work out my expenses.

Might rope my girlfriend into doing it

Grim - March 9, 2020, 1:58 am

Since i own a business im going to have to pay them more not get anything back. Feelsbad
