Thread: Stores near me are empty

SIM-3343347 - March 12, 2020, 3:48 pm

I went to two stores today & its a mess, empty shells, few roll papers, few water.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

I also saw a lot of people packing a lot of items, huge lines besides all of that, its some of what fine, still stuff we can buy around webdev77 - March 12, 2020, 3:53 pm

I don't get the mass TP buying. It's toilet paper. It's not food. It's also arguably not even that critical if you have water.

Thats exactly what I was thinking. Luckily my stores still have items

Dorrance - March 12, 2020, 4:08 pm

Seems like you out of luck dawg better cop a purifier and purify that tap water I have them throughout my house.

bahahah im dead, i stand corrected bahaha

SIM-3257834 - March 12, 2020, 6:55 pm

Just shove a water hose up your asshole and call it a day. No need for TP.

?nxy - March 12, 2020, 7:31 pm

Yeah, I just went to Walmart and it was half empty.

Geralt - March 12, 2020, 9:13 pm

Some idiots would rather starve than shower after taking a shit because they didn't have tp.
As for the water, buy a cheap purifier.

Pennywise - March 12, 2020, 9:40 pm

It's starting to get empty too in Canada. Let's so how it turns out in a week or two.

TehPirate - March 12, 2020, 10:12 pm

The market across the street from my work was packed all day and by the time I was off shift everything was gone and the employees were frantically trying to stock what they can from the back room. I saw carts full of paper towels, toilet paper. I swear this one woman took the entire shelf of sanitizer...

Geass - March 13, 2020, 3:10 am

Same in my area, they bought a lot of things, luckily there are tons of orders from markets and we have restock

This is starting to happen here for what ever reason I don't get it.
I can think of many things more important.

Like beer maybe.

It has already happened here, I just got back in town from work. I'm about to head to Walmart as we speak and rob the joint.

bevc - March 13, 2020, 4:16 am

Yeah, same where I am, it's slightly disappointing that the zombie-apocalypse causes mass-panic buying of.....bog roll. My wife (who has an economics degree) was saying we'll have to buy a ton of toilet paper, and I asked her why, and she said because everyone else is. And I was like, woman, you do know that what causes panic buying, is panic buying? And she said yeah, but you're either part of the mob or you're trampled by it, and you don't want to be the person left without a toilet when the music stops, or something.

Of course all this is probably just making it worse, because if everybody just stayed home and chilled the eff out, it'd be fine. Same for most problems in life.

passCODE - March 13, 2020, 4:25 am

This is crazy, I just got back from the store and luckily I managed to get some coffee and cigarettes, everything else is empty. I did buy some stuff three days ago, but didn't go crazy like others. I was waiting 40 minutes on the cash register, people were buying 2 full shopping carts of food.

Dorrance - March 13, 2020, 5:38 am

I pull they got about everything except alcohol and tissue like what bruh. Then they got the oldest slowest work at the desk I been in line for 20minutetz at Walmart.

Montana - March 13, 2020, 2:10 pm

Even amazon is running out of TP and other household essentials. Its crazy that the media is causing so much panic around this virus,

SIM-3323508 - March 13, 2020, 2:26 pm

I stocked up last week thankfully this was pretty obvious to see happening

KingLeRoy - March 13, 2020, 3:16 pm

No, world will end when zombies attack us, everyone knows that. ???
You don't watch movies?

Aficionado - March 13, 2020, 7:24 pm

Looks like these store owners are making some good bread if shits just flying off the shelf like this..

The lewd Coronavirus activity irritates into the awake society. People generally assist better than the issue.

Vibe - March 13, 2020, 8:44 pm

I want to a couple today Walmart sold out but smaller stores still had toilet paper. Baby isle was a little sparse

Stork - March 13, 2020, 9:12 pm

The stores where I live are patchy lol and all the universities are moving their classes online pretty crazy!

the stores where i live are fully stocked with o problems.
all schools closed and all sporting events canceled

Other than that all is normal here.
OH! 13 cases confirmed here.

akassl - March 13, 2020, 10:16 pm

People are going crazy for toilet paper. People are insane.

That's probably why the government is still hiding aliens from us.

Vitani's Mate - March 14, 2020, 12:37 am

I should go and check out my local shops and see what it is like there. lol
I am pretty sure it will be the same shit.

People are mass buying everything toilet paper isn't something that's kept well stocked up.

squin - March 14, 2020, 1:19 am

The thing I don't understand is why people are buying toilet paper and sanitizers instead of food rich in Vitamin C and zinc supplements that actually help your immunity

Because people are dumb.

Yeah they only just need bidet and soap much better than toilet paper. Multivitamins are much more important nowadays.

Alcohol and hand sanitizers are also in demand and much more important rather than toilet paper.

I am just praying that this pandemic CoVid19 will be prevented asap and vaccine will be given all over the world.

Stay safe everyone. God bless everybody and the whole world. :)

I just came back from the store and the toilet isles, pasta, rice are all emptied and it's one of those huge superstores.

Madness.

Aeowulf - March 14, 2020, 8:44 am

Yep, same. Went to get stuff today... and half the store is empty. Ridiculous.
