I cancelled the service within several days. The seller did not appear online for a long time, after he "was installing my account" for several days, explaining that he was not at home, and other similar problems. After everything was installed, the seller also wasn't answering me. And a few days later I saw that nothing is changing on my account, there is no activity. And after changing the password, the seller did not even notice this. I tried to resolve the issue directly, trying to agree on a change of services from CEO to Powerlikes, but even now the seller does not answer me for a week or more.
