Hello Hack Forums,

I just joined this nice online community yesterday, but I received a Warning for Posting Etiquette (+25 points). I don't know what exactly it was that I posted... Could it have been because of the font and color that I used? So I'm asking the question... The following white text below is the exact format that I used in my posts right before I got the warning, my question is:

Quote:Is it against the site policy for me to type in this format in all of my posts?

Thank you,

I don't believe font and colour is a big deal, especially worth 25pt, you must've goofed some other way. Can you see who gave you the warning? I'm sure they'll explain if you ask.

It's okay to post like that but you got warned because you posted something completely off-topic and unrelated to thread which looked like spam. If your account isn't new, then you wouldn't get warned but this is done to prevent spamming by new accounts which is often the case.
