Being a writer doesn't get access to the long gone hf wiki.

Wiki server has been off line for almost a year now.

The funny thing is I actually have a copy of the wiki.

I agree with you, I would love to have the wiki back.

However even though I was Admin of the wiki and maintained the server and a full server backup and file system backup.

We still need to wait for Omni too move the wiki to a new server.

You know if you want something done you don't play the sit and wait game. That's just my opinion, I don't know how much time it would involve, but ehh it would people some stuff to be productive.

I don't own the wiki, Omni does.

There for it's up to him if and when the wiki returns.

I just maintained the server back then and admin the wiki.

I'm still waiting for someone to get the correct answer

I wouldn't mind running it if Omni asked but I probably wouldn't be the best person to. Never worked with Wiki even when it was a thing and don't have the experience. I'd have to learn the Wiki "software". Much rather have someone who's experienced with the Wiki lead it such as...

(Mar 25, 2020 01:32 PM)Nuworld Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I agree with you, I would love to have the wiki back. However even though I was Admin of the wiki and maintained the server and a full server backup and file system backup.

We still need to wait for Omni too move the wiki to a new server.

Offer the suggestion to Omni, I'll back you up on it. History is important and for a community like us, it's nice to have a timeline of happenings. It's a place new and old members can refer to and it brings back good (and bad) memories. I'm all for it.

Don't want to take away from this thread though, that's the end of my part in this topic. Carry on :)

I have talked with omni many time about the Wiki.
Even offered to help with moving all back ups to a new server.

I very much appreciate the back up. ?
The wiki is/was truly a trove of information and history.

Myself and all the ones that remember the wiki would understand.
