

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Tower of God - Discussion

Megane - April 2, 2020, 9:45 pm

Hello, I don't see a discussion thread on this anime, so I thought I'd create one.

This anime is also known as, "Kami no Tou".

Quote: Tower of God centers around a boy called Twenty-Fifth Bam, who has spent most of his life trapped beneath a vast and mysterious Tower, with only his close friend, Rachel, to keep him company. When Rachel enters the Tower, Bam manages to open the door into it as well, and faces challenges at each floor of this tower as he tries to find his closest companion.

You can find more about the anime, here: https://myanimelist.net/anime/40221/Kami_no_Tou

It's highly recommended to keep your posts in spoilers, but there is no way to enforce that since this is a discussion thread and anything goes. Don't get upset if you read something and you aren't up-to-date with the current episodes.

As for me, I shall use spoiler codes for the first three episodes. After that, I will not use the spoiler code anymore.

Spoiler (Click to View) I am excited to see what the new spring season has to offer for us. With that being said, I enjoyed my first episode of watching Tower of God.

Before I get into the review, I wanted to talk about the OP. I thought it sounded pretty K-Pop-esque and it turns out that Stray Kids, a K-Pop group, sang the OP and the ending. I knew that I've heard those voices before. My dear friend Soulmate~?? told me how this is based on a manhwa so it makes sense why it had a Korean group perform the opening.

I hate looking at MAL reviews because people on MAL are absolute idiots and it pains me to read what they have to say. Regardless, I like to read some of the discussion threads to jumble a bunch of ideas to write about in my review posts.

So with that being said, I noticed a common trend. The anime being liked was 50/50. There was a good amount of positive reactions and also a good amount of negative reactions.

The first thing that I noticed people talking about was the art style. I'll go more into that later. Also, people felt the first episode was rushed.

I think the art style was nice and refreshing. It's something new we haven't seen in a while and it was pleasing for me to see. I thought the colors in certain parts of the episode were very vibrant and bright. Not as much as the colors in Somali-chan from last season, but enough to catch my attention.

I can agree slightly regarding the pacing of the episode. I felt like it was a little bit rushed, but I also think it's people overreacting. Overall, a good first episode in my opinion. It kept me hungry for more and I am excited to have started this series.

Love is a strong emotion. I'm sure the love Bam has for Rachel is going to be what thrives and keeps him going, which is obvious as he was able to pass the first test. I believe this love that he has for Rachel is going to make him stronger and stronger. Not only that but the tests he will have to go through will for sure Bam not only stronger physically but mentally. I believe Bam will get a decent amount of plot armor. However, as I said, he'll have to earn it and I'm sure we'll see him learn something new every episode.

I'm wondering where this love will take him. Does Rachel love him back as much as Bam loves her? She was quick on leaving him and going to the tower.

The characters weren't anything special so far. The ones who died probably won't return of course, but going back to the spacing thing, I felt the characters who did die early on were super rushed. The girls we've seen so far have been pretty cute though! I'm interested to see what other cuties will be in the anime. I'm looking forward to seeing more of Yuri and meeting Endorsi. Rachel, I don't care too much about it.

I liked the selection of voice actors we've heard so far. They can get the job done and I didn't have any complaints. I did pick up on Rachel's voice actress being Hayami Saori and Headon's voice actor being Ootsuka Houchuu who I recognized as Jiraiya from Naruto.

I'm assuming the weapon that Bam was given, Black March is a super strong or important item that might be well-known or something. Considering that Rak or whoever the heck his name is was able to smell his presence. Additionally, he was able to smell some lizard girl's presence and her weapon had the same marking as Black March so I'm interested in knowing more about her if we get to see her next episode.

I'm wondering what will happen next episode as we were left at a cliffhanger. Some idiots on the MAL discussion thread said that they hated that. Why would you hate that? It should make you want to keep watching for more. It's there to lure you to watch next week's episode. I swear those people on that site are dumb.

What do you guys think so far?

proXace™ - April 4, 2020, 2:49 am

Haven't watched the first episode yet, had to get my Haikyuu fix first, but CR has been hyping this for the last month or so, and I have been eager to jump on this ASAP.

Read the first line of the spoiler, and yes I am also excited for this season of anime to come.

Jeff Winger - April 4, 2020, 2:47 pm

I like the art style but I'm still skeptical how it'll play out.

Megane - April 4, 2020, 3:18 pm

(Apr 4, 2020 02:49 AM)proXace™ Wrote: CITE Haven't watched the first episode yet, had to get my Haikyuu fix first, but CR has been hyping this for the last month or so, and I have been eager to jump on this ASAP.

Read the first line of the spoiler, and yes I am also excited for this season of anime to come. Please let me know what you think once you give the first episode a watch!

(Apr 4, 2020 02:47 PM)Jeff Winger Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I like the art style but I'm still skeptical how it'll play out.

I'm looking forward to next week's episode. I'd like to state first that I don't drop anime, I am a "completionist" when it comes to anime. With that being said, I'm hoping the next two episodes will give me the chance to figure out if I'm going to like this anime or not.

duke007 - April 4, 2020, 5:45 pm

Going to check it out now that you posted about it. My buddy watched it and has similar feelings as you.

Megane - April 9, 2020, 10:45 pm

Episode two!

Spoiler \(Click to View\) I'm still not hooked on this anime, but from my observations, it seems that the second episode was much more enjoyed by the community than the first. I guess I can agree with that. Despite being slow for me, (some people thought the pacing was better) there was a lot more going on. Originally, I was going to say "interesting stuff", but I felt like this episode wasn't too interesting.

I'm assuming something is interesting about Khun like maybe his family is a branch one and he is a cousin or something of the royalty family, Jahad. Speaking of Jahad, we were able to see Anak Jahad this episode, a very powerful swordswoman (reptile).

Anak's fight with Hatz wasn't anything special because we didn't get an in-depth view of it, but I am sure they are two interesting characters who are going to be strong.

In my opinion, with Rak, Khun, and Bam working together, I already know Bam is going to be successful. There's just no way he fails the tests. Plot armor as I say a million times for various anime I've posted a discussion post on. Khun, as I said before, something is interesting about him. Also, you can tell he is a little fishy and I think he has more motives than just teaming up with Bam. There's something he wants from Bam. Possibly the sword, who knows we'll for sure learn more about it in the future.

My favorite voice actor returns yet again, but this time in a new season! Tsuda Kenjiro, my favorite male voice actor, voices the role of Lero Ro and from what we have seen from those who are Rankers, they aren't one to mess with.

I'll admit that even though I said this episode was slightly boring, I am excited to continue watching it.

I do hope the tests get harder and we get sucked into some epic storyline. At the moment the tests have been easy or unimpressive to me.

Also, I want to see more of the Jahad family! So far all of the girls in that family are cute.

Lastly, I wonder if we'll see Bam be able to unleash Black March once again. Additionally, it makes me wonder if his sword will be revealed and Anak or someone else from the Jahad family notice. It seems they are the only ones who are wielders of these weapons, as it has their crest (I'm assuming their crest) and how Khun is so interested in it.

Deno - April 13, 2020, 3:53 am never imagine this webtoon anime release. i am looking forward to this and i hope solo leveling is the next one!

Chloe Burbank - April 13, 2020, 11:40 am

I have seen this on crunchyroll for me didn't seem interesting but also haven't watched or heard about I before you recommend to watch?

yrnraddy - April 13, 2020, 4:15 pm

looks like a good anime but something ill get bored of after 4 episodes

Megane - April 13, 2020, 5:52 pm

(Apr 13, 2020 11:40 AM)Chloe Burbank Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have seen this on crunchyroll for me didn't seem interesting but also haven't watched or heard about I before you recommend to watch?

The first two episodes were slow but it looks like it will hopefully start picking up soon. People are giving it outrageous ratings such as high 8-10 when only two episodes have aired. Of course, you should never follow the ratings on MAL as everyone their is full of sh*t.

First episode was eh, but the second episode is a bigger improvement so the anime does have potential. A lot of the anime this season hasn't been too impressive but so far this is on my good tier list.

SkullCandy - April 14, 2020, 12:41 am

It shows a lot of promise; recently I've felt like Shonen that are set up to create a long expanding series can be pretty low quality, especially at the beginning (I'm looking at you black clover). But this seems to be pretty nice out of the gate, isn't too cliché and doesn't feel the need to give the viewer endless amounts of exposition in order to introduce them to the world, it kind of just throws you right in and I'm hoping that they can continue this route and unveil the mysteries of the tower slowly through world-building and interesting narrative - only time will tell.

I've always liked tower and competition arcs in anime, especially the one in HxH so the idea of a series that seemingly bases itself around that seems really appealing to me. I will keep watching to figure out more about this world.

Megane - April 15, 2020, 7:03 pm

Episode three.

Spoiler (Click to View) I enjoyed episode three very much. I was curious to know more about Khun and his intentions and we got a little backstory about his past. To me, he is still suspicious, but after today's episode, I will cut him some slack.

The third test they had to complete might not have been the most entertaining, but I think it was a good team-building one. Although Bam's team didn't work together, it brings Khun closer to them and I thought that was good. I like how they aren't the "strongest" trio at the moment. We still have yet to see them in action working together when it comes to combat.

We see that Anak is great at combat and can take down a three-man team by herself. While the fight scene wasn't too impressive, and it was fairly obvious that she would fend for herself, I will admit that she's a strong opponent and her team does catch my interest.

I think the next episode we will see Bam's team enter the fourth test. After possibly seeing Rachel, this will pique Bam's interest. After seeing how Anak is strong, this piqued Rak's interest. I still don't know what's going on through Khun's mind, but he might be interested.

Next week's episode is going to be a nice one for sure! I am tired of all these non-combat tests. I do understand them and I think that they do add to the story, but I'm ready for some action!

After reading some other posts on MAL I see a few complaints:

Pacing is weird and the story was changed a little bit with Anak's fight. I haven't read the Manwha so this doesn't affect me too much.

I also found some dude who everyone is ganging up on and I find it hilarious. I can't deny that for certain anime discussion threads I've posted on, I critique it negatively, but thankfully no one has ganged up on me. This is just too funny not to enjoy it.

I would post the reactions, but there are too many people @ him. 'Tis some good drama. (° ? °)

Geass - April 16, 2020, 8:44 am

Noooooooooooo, why all the manga I read end up anime? :''''(

If I knew would have waited for anime

Yatendouji - April 21, 2020, 8:01 am

I love the art style for this it follows the Manwha art style.

Megane - April 22, 2020, 6:52 pm

There are a lot of things I want to discuss for this episode. I'd like to start by saying that this anime is getting way too much hype. Nothing too interesting has happened yet, but I will admit the anime is starting to pick up its pace. The reason I say this is because a majority of the people on MAL are giving this anime outrageous ratings already.

Don't get me wrong, I've rated anime three episodes in (ex. being Kakushigoto, Houkago Teibou, Yesterday wo Utatte). However, the reason I rate them is that there is already substance within the anime. There is already stuff to base the rating off of. Good characters, funny characters, good plot, good pacing, etc. However, with Tower of God, I have not seen anything impressive and thus, makes me wonder why people are giving this anime such a high rating overall?

In addition to my small little research of this anime, I have noticed in the discussion forums that the people are saying this anime is the best there is, the best of the season, and if you don't like this you are an idiot, etc. Also, I have noticed the ones who state their opinion saying the anime isn't too good yet, or it's boring, they instantly get slammed on by the keyboard warriors who can't handle someone else not liking something they don't! Hey, if you are reading this and you are upset because I said I don't like Tower of God yet, tell me! I won't care!

With episode four, I noticed a majority in the discussion stated that the fourth episode was the best one so far. Multiple people saying, "5/5" "The episode was great!"

The only reason I believe people are saying this is because of the action we got in this episode. Yes, we finally get some more action. However, the action we got was very boring and it didn't add anything to the story. The banter between the characters added more to the story than the fighting itself, and even the banter was a bit on the slow side too.

Some things I'd like to say about the character design is that I like how there is no crazy looking character. Meaning, they all look pretty plain, nothing special about them. Additionally, there is no "spot the main character" meme when you see a group of characters chatting or about to fight. The more "lame" characters can be strong and the more "cool" ones can be weak. I do like that.

It looks like the sleeping bag guy is useful and isn't just a meme character. He can control shinsu through the use of magic. This is probably why it was so easy for him to pass through the shinsu waterfall in the previous tests. Originally, I thought only those who completed all the tests and made it to the top of the tower were able to control shinsu? I guess anyone can possess the power to learn it, however, the ones who complete the tower must have stronger shinsu control as it would make sense since Lero-Ro is so strong. One last thing about the sleeping bag guy is his voice actor is Golem from Somali to Mori no Kamisama, Ono Daisuke!

I felt like Anak was a little brat in this episode. But before I go into that, I'll talk about her using her Green April. The weapons she has with the Green April seem endless. She can turn it into a whip, a sword, and we also can see that she can increase the size of it making it tremendously big. The fight scenes between her team and the other were pretty lame, but we learn a little bit more about the Jahad's through her.

Unless you are like me, looking through the character list, you would have no idea Anak was a princess. It baffles me so many people didn't know she was one, but I can't argue since it was never mentioned. You just have to assume that since she shares the same last name as the other Jahad princesses she is one.

Due to her strong powers and usage of the Green April, the Black March reacted to it. Maybe the Black March wanted to show off Bam's ability and prove Anak that she isn't as powerful as she thinks she is? Either way, it got Anak's attention. They made a bet to see whoever makes it to the final round, Anak's team, or Bam's team. Whoever wins will get the other person's weapon.

The next episode will be interesting for sure. I think that it can go either way. We know that Anak's team is disqualified so it's up to Bam's team to hold the fort. I think Bam's team will win or there will be some sort of tie/deathmatch I forgot what it's called. He'll win the Green April, but because he is a nice person he'll just ask Anak to keep the Green April and just give him the respect as the temporary owner of the Black March.

On the way back to her cell, a character we haven't met yet whispers something to her. We don't hear it, but we see her mouth move. Whatever she said, it has something to do with Anak being an imposter. It had me thinking, maybe Anak is just like Bam. An outsider with a Jahad princess weapon. Is it because she is a lizard and not a human like Yuri is?

Towards the beginning of the episode, at first glance, the girl that Bam notices looks like Rachel. At the end of episode three, we wonder, is it her? To the viewer's eye, it resembles Rachel. It looks like she's on the team of the mysterious girl we haven't met yet. Bam says it couldn't be her because she's not like that. However, at the end of the episode, we learn that it is indeed Rachel.

Rachel says, "Don't betray people, especially girls", yet at the end of the episode is okay with Endorsi, who the mystery character is, to kill off Bam's team. Does this mean Rachel is a fraud all along? What are her true intentions? Especially with Bam? For those who are unaware, Endorsi is another Jahad princess. And this makes me wonder if we'll be seeing a third Jahad weapon.

We haven't learned much about the Jahad princesses yet, but I am sure we will get an explanation in a future episode.

One last thing I'd like to mention is how are there 13 weapons, but there are only 12 months? Someone mentioned it had to do with the moons instead of the months, but maybe we'll get an explanation on that too.

Fatboii - April 28, 2020, 3:14 am

I started reading this webtoon a year ago and I think it's great that the story can reach a wider audience with the anime. I actually read all the chapters included in the anime before it started to have a better stand point to review it.

But after watching all the episodes so far im not sure if the anime is able to explain all the details correctly and that watchers are able to understand the concept of the tower or the characters. Somethings from the anime are made panel by panel from the webtoon but some panels and information are also cut out. This story has some deeper meanings that i don't think came through as much in the anime.

If anyone has a hard time understanding concepts in the anime im happy to give a more detailed answer from reading the webtoon, example: "rankers" and "the 13th months".

Megane - April 29, 2020, 5:45 pm

I'm always so negative about things but I just can't help it. I'm entitled to my opinion though so I can't complain.

Boring episode again, but everyone on MAL enjoyed it. I just didn't find it as exciting as everyone thought it was. We learn what Khun's bag can do, which is the ability to clone stuff. It was very useful in this crown game. He was even able to sneak in three members from the first test because of the bag. I'm wondering what it looks like inside!

Bam's team win's the fourth round due to the help of the three members Khun snuck in. They agreed to assist him. I think Khun's ability to think ahead and come up with strategies is great, meanwhile, Rak has the brawns. Well, Bam is pretty strong too, I guess if he tried with Black March, but he's a whiney little simp who's useless unless his little girlfriend gets hurt or something and he somehow activates a shinsu ability like never seen before. This, of course, is going to help him get to the tower quickly.

I'm not a fan of Rachel. She's very mysterious and her goal seems selfish rather than helping Bam, which we all know is a simp for her.

Anyways, the fighting was boring, I'm wondering why Endorsi's team didn't want to kill off Bam's team.

From the character list on MAL, it seems the girl with the bodysuit is named "Hwaryun", and I'm wondering if we'll see her again.

I want to see more of Endorsi though. I sound like a simp myself now but she got some nice features. (° ? °)

mtepper2 - April 29, 2020, 5:53 pm

Is the show worth watching? Saw it on crunchyroll but didn't click it yet.

Megane - April 29, 2020, 10:16 pm

(Apr 29, 2020 05:53 PM)mtepper2 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Is the show worth watching? Saw it on crunchyroll but didn't click it yet.

To me, it's not at the point where I think it's a crazy good anime or anything. So many people are freaking out, saying how good it is, but it hasn't impressed me very much yet.

mtepper2 - April 29, 2020, 10:21 pm

(Apr 29, 2020 10:16 PM)Megane Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) To me, it's not at the point where I think it's a crazy good anime or anything. So many people are freaking out, saying how good it is, but it hasn't impressed me very much yet.

I'll have to give it a try then. Most anime's are in a drought rn from virus :/.

Otto Berkes - May 5, 2020, 10:34 pm

I honestly think this one has some good potential to the point I cant wait for new episodes. I ended up reading up on the manga and I'm honestly impressed with the pace of the anime and I think they are doing a great job keeping to the story and the characters. I'm just crossing my fingers it stays that way, IMO I think this has the potential to get very popular and I'm happy crunchyroll decided to take on this adaption.

Bezo - May 7, 2020, 4:45 am

I hope they stay true to the webtoon. I know it will be a while but there are so many epic fights that I can't wait to see animated.

Megane - May 7, 2020, 3:00 pm

We were left with a nice little cliffhanger. Although a rather slow episode until the end, it wasn't a bad one. I don't have many complaints to make.

It looks like everyone has to make a group of friends. I'm wondering if that's for the next test. Well, of course, it is but I mean are the friends they add to the list going to be on a single team? I don't think that's the case though. I don't know, it's very confusing lmao. I know everyone was assigned a position, but the teams are split up to fight each other. Since there are five positions to choose from, does that mean three to a team like it's been or is it going to be five per team now?

I think the whole friendship thing might be a way to get close to someone and then secretly betray them. What I mean is, take Hoh for example. He said something like "It doesn't hurt to make friends with the weak." I'm wondering what his true intentions are.

It looks like Rak is a Fisherman, Khun is a Lightbearer or Scout, and Bam is a Wave Controller. With the training everyone's going to receive, climbing the tower is going to be increasingly hard. The characters that aren't too special are probably going to become punching bags for those who will climb the tower and although that's boring, I think it will allow us to see the true potential of everyone's ability.

We can already see that some people are struggling in their training. Rak was able to pass his test, Khun is getting some insight into the other people training, and Bam looks like he is doing a good job controlling his Shinsu.

Shibisu is a funny guy. I think adding his comedic aspect to whatever's going on is a good call.

We see that Rachel wants Khun to lie to Bam that she is not Rachel. Bam can see through Khun's lies, but that doesn't stop him. He is going to use this as motivation to get stronger and with that, Bam is slowly becoming a likable person to me. However, he just needs to stop simping for this girl.

I'm happy to see more of Endorsi, despite her being a b*tch, but I love that cocky attitude. Oh boy! She sure likes to stir up drama, especially with Anak.

So a few of my questions were asked this episode regarding the princesses. It was stated, "The princesses of Jahad are recruited to represent capable tribes and families". Which makes sense considering the sisters don't look identical. It's not uncommon for anime to have twins or relatives that look-a-like, but I haven't seen that too often in anime these days.

We also learn that Anak isn't the real Anak, but her daughter. Her mother, the real Anak was supposedly killed by the Jihad princesses.

During their little fight between Anak and Endorsi, Anak called Endorsi a "horned woman". I'm wondering if that was just a general insult or there is more to Endorsi we haven't learned yet.

Megane - May 14, 2020, 10:03 pm

At the beginning of episode seven, we get a little more insight into what even a Jahad is, as well as the Jahad princesses. It turns out, the first person to climb the tower was Jahad. And now he is the king of the tower. There are still many things that are unknown about the king and the princesses but after today's episode, we learn from Endorsi some interesting things.

As explained in the previous episode, we know that the princesses are not related to the king by blood. They are women chosen from what I am going to assume the king deems worthy of the power the weapons they are given have. One thing I'd like to note is that we haven't seen what weapon Endorsi has. Or have we? Is it her small little knife or does she have another weapon up her sleeve? Good pun? Come on, I had to slip that in there.

What new information is shared is that princesses are not allowed to have intercourse nor are they allowed to have children. Anaak's mother broke this rule and this is most likely the reason she was killed.

I'm still not seeing all the hype for this anime. I still think it's overrated and its insane people are giving this anime such a high rating. To me, this is between a five and a seven. I just don't see the appeal. Call me a hater, which I am, especially if you've read my discussion/reviews for previous anime in this section you know what my taste is.

I think it's cool we are seeing the voice actor for Present Mic from my hero in this anime. He has a voice you can't forget! I had to re-watch the scene where they discussed the fourth test a little bit. Call me an idiot, but the way they explained everything was bad in my opinion and if I had to re-watch it four times to understand it, meh.

We get a list of which character is what role and I am hoping that the next episode will be enjoyable.

I think Bam's team is going to win. Seeing that Khun isn't being faithful to his "friend" (I use quotes because Khun still seems suspicious) and doesn't think Bam will pass. I think Bam will be able to show off his Shinsu training in the next episode and blow everyone away, literally.

Octavia - May 16, 2020, 1:57 pm

I'm enjoying it so far but I'm sure I'll like it less towards the end. Rachel is kinda a cunt.

pipsqueak - May 17, 2020, 3:12 pm

Apparently, this last episode skipped a lot, according to reddit. I'm still behind on the webtoon so I can't confirm, but it did seem to gloss over a lot.

Megane - May 20, 2020, 4:18 pm

Another episode, another 24 minutes of boredom for me. This episode fails to amuse me once again. But I'll continue watching it since I am a completionist.

The fourth test continues and team A loses. Considering that both teams have a bunch of generic-looking characters with nothing special about them, it doesn't surprise me if we don't see some of them next week due to failing the test.

It seems, despite failing the test, some people will be advancing regardless because of the points they've obtained this test or I guess because of how well they were doing in general?

We can see the true power of a ranker through professor Quant. Being able to have that amount of shinsu power is pretty much God-like, which makes sense I guess, Tower of God and all.

Lauroe and Khun purposely betray their teammates. It looks like he only cares about the ones on the "friends list" assignment that was due in the past two episodes we've been watching. I was not expecting this at all. It's a nice turnaround though I'll admit that.

I'm guessing Endorsi is on this too considering she betrayed one of her own teammates too.

Gosh, the boys in this anime are the biggest simps and it's annoying. Bam as a character, in general, is just irritating. Rachel is also another character I dislike. This story is slow and boring and I feel like nothing is happening. I understand the goal is to climb to the top of the tower but they've hyped it up so much that I don't even care. I'm most likely going to give this anime a final rating of four or five. I was going to give a rating for this anime today but I'm just going to wait until it finishes.

dapoks143 - May 22, 2020, 10:08 pm

I like this anime. The main hero is not that OP and he is weak but I know for sure that he is stronger than anyone in there because the narrator says that he climb the tower with the girl name Rachael and he is not well trained for today's latest episode

BoxxyBabee - May 23, 2020, 6:29 am

I've read a bit of the webtoon, this show relies on clichés. I'd rather just rewatch SAO

Yuusha - May 23, 2020, 11:53 am

So far it has been pretty good, I was up to date with the Webtoon at some point many years ago, but it has been so long that it has basically been wiped from my memory.

GaborZsazsa - May 24, 2020, 5:49 am

Not bad, however it has become kinda stale lately. Here's to hoping the next few episodes will work out better.

gianni12 - May 27, 2020, 6:25 am

I honestly like it, didn't have any expectations for it but it's the one anime I wait for in this season. Overall for me anime is better for me personally than manga. You can see how everyone moves, you can hear the sounds and other components, it might just not go in as much detail.

xootf - May 28, 2020, 6:33 am

Damn this anime is getting lots of hype, might be time to start watching it

Swedish Delight - June 7, 2020, 11:01 am

I'm loving it. I have been reading the manhwa and it's been a long while since i read the start, seeing all of this that i don't remember, and things that i feel like weren't actually in the manhwa to begin with makes me think that S.I.U wants to expand the story through the anime, giving more development to the characters.

Megane - June 10, 2020, 4:07 pm

Up until this episode, I've found this anime to be very boring. It still is for me, and I'm going to wait until the end to give this anime a rating. Same with Plunderer. Everything else this season, I have rated everything, but of course, they are subject to change until the final episodes.

The last and final test is here and I am going to guess it will pan out for the next two episodes or it will end in the next episode and we'll get a cliffhanger into the last episode.

As I mentioned in the first paragraph, I find this anime very boring and overrated/hyped. I won't go until that now, as I've mentioned it before and I know if there is anyone who actually reads my posts, they either are annoyed with my constant dislike to everything or something of the like. With that being said, I'll discuss how much I dislike this show in my final review in two weeks.

Moving onto the discussion, this episode gave us a cliffhanger that I am slightly interested in. I am curious for once in seeing what happens in the next episode. Here in the final test, Bam and Rachel have to sit tight and pretty and they have to rely on the help from the other test-takers, as far as I'm aware of the situation.

We learn that the person that accepted Bam's shinsu contract is the head administrator or whatever position he is. King of the tower? Whatever he is, but we already know how powerful Bam is. With that being said, it's not a surprise that someone with such a high status has an interest in him. It has been said that irregulars have a greater chance of passing or whatever. I forgot what was discussed in the last episode.

Anyway, it looks like the test was a distraction so that Ren who has teamed up with the director, Yu, can put an end to Anak since her mother broke one of the rules when she was a Jahad princess. It looks like in the next episode, Endorsi will kill her, or she will do something to stop Ren. It can go either way. I wouldn't be surprised if she fought Anak, but I think she is going to work together with her here.

Megane - June 17, 2020, 5:06 pm

We are so close to finishing this anime and I am very excited to give my final review on it. At the current moment, I have a rating of five for this anime. The next episode will determine whether or not my rating increases.

Episode 12 was very interesting. The reason why I dislike this anime so much is that in certain episodes, so much happens at once. It's not necessarily confusing, but it's overwhelming. I guess it can confuse you some times too. And if you aren't paying attention, that could make it worse.

Yuri finally makes her way to the floor that Bam is on. We see her powerful strength in this episode as she was able to take on Ren with the help of her enforcers I guess they are called.

We see Endorsi and Anak team-up. This is not too surprising. I predicted that they would team-up or battle against each other, but the latter just didn't seem right in this situation. It seems they have a good bond, despite arguing all the time.

Additionally, we get to see some of Bam's strength as he takes on the Bull. Seeing that he was able to easily take it out while Endorsi and Anak were not even able to scratch it. It goes to show how strong Bam truly is.

We then see after that, Rachel, once again, screwing over Bam. For once, I feel bad for him. This was out of nowhere too. I wasn't expecting this. When she got up from the wheelchair, I thought she was going to hug Bam. I can't be the only one who thought this. From there, she pushed him out of the bubble thing they were in. Ultimate cliffhanger. She has a lot of explaining to do.

Should we expect bam to somehow make his way out of the situation he's in? I don't think he's disabled in any way, rather, he is confused about the situation. You can see he is still conscious, but he can't believe what Rachel just did. This adds more hate to her character and a lot of people dislike her even more now.

Going back to what I was saying at the beginning of my post, I feel like a lot of stuff was left out or certain things were rushed. Depending on how the next episode ends, I could see this anime getting a second season. Why it's so hyped up? I'm not sure, but because of said hype and where we are in the story (I haven't read the manwha so I don't know if there will be a story that can additionally be added) there might be a second season or some sort of OVA.

Octavia - June 18, 2020, 4:22 pm

Episode Spoiler (Click to View) THAT BITCH RACHEL! I hated her before the recent episode but now I want her to die.

Megane - June 24, 2020, 6:50 pm

Thank the heavens that this anime is finally over. As a completionist, I can rest my soul knowing this horrible anime is over. Kami no Tou. Besides the two anime that didn't air this season due to COVID-19 "Re:Zero kara Hajimeru Isekai Seikatsu 2nd Season" and "Yahari Ore no Seishun Love Comedy wa Machigatteiru. Kan", Kami no Tou or Tower of God was one of the three anime this season people were looking forward too. In terms of those anime that did air, Kami no Tou for sure won the contest of most hyped. However, it was too overhyped.

The anime was awful. It really was. If you enjoyed it, that's good for you. We all have different opinions. The story was rushed. Additionally, this anime was a confusional mess if you had no idea what was going on.

I'm sure if you read the manwha you'd have a better understanding of this anime, but as a person who couldn't care less about reading anime or manwha this was awful. As for an adaption, I'm not sure how good it was. I see mixed feelings on MAL.

The artwork wasn't anything special, but it was a different design then what we are usually used to seeing. It didn't appeal to me and none of the characters really stood out. The Jahad princesses such as Endorsi and Yuri were cute, but nothing out of the ordinary.

Let's talk about the MC Bam. Holy cow. What an annoying ass little sh*t. If you are any normal person, you'd know the term "simp" is thrown around left and right and is utterly annoying from its over-usage. However, this one time I will say it. Bam is the biggest simp. He's so punchable. "Omg rachel omg I love you rachel" "omg I'll do anything for you even though you betrayed me omg". Ah, shut up.

Now, let's talk about Rachel. This little sh*t wasn't as bad as Bam, but she was a terrible character too.

I think there will be a second season. With how the dialogue went with the ending cutscene of the anime there is most likely going to be another season.

I would not recommend this anime to anyone. It's just my opinion. Too overhyped. I have given this a rating of four.

Artisan - June 26, 2020, 8:41 am

Got my hopes up reading your first post and it took a downhill turn really fast while getting to the last post. I was prepping to start the anime. Good to know that I will have to begin with low to normal expectations. Thanks for this thread.

Megane - June 26, 2020, 2:55 pm

(Jun 26, 2020 08:41 AM)Artisan Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Got my hopes up reading your first post and it took a downhill turn really fast while getting to the last post. I was prepping to start the anime. Good to know that I will have to begin with low to normal expectations. Thanks for this thread.

Ah, someone read my post! ?????? (I'm surprised)!

No one reads my posts, so thank you, Artisan. ?

Of course, when it comes to anime everyone's opinion is subjective. I'd say do the three-episode rule for this anime to see if you like it. The one's who have read the manwha seem to enjoy this anime. If you haven't read it, like myself, you might find yourself as confused as I was, which lead to my disliking of this anime.

To me, I just felt like the hype that was given to this anime was too much and it truly surprised me how the 8/10 rating this anime had stayed consistent through the whole airing until the finish.

Artisan - June 26, 2020, 2:58 pm

I haven't read the manwha yet so my take on it might be different. The only anime that Ive discontinued to date was Detective Conan. I'll watch 3 episodes following your rule and give an update here.

Jahad - June 26, 2020, 10:15 pm

Can we all just despise and hate on Rachel

SewDough - July 28, 2020, 8:16 am

(Jun 26, 2020 10:15 PM)Jahad Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Can we all just despise and hate on Rachel Rachel can eat the biggest bag of dicks for all eternity while she climbs the tower.

noroku64 - August 3, 2020, 12:00 am started watching this and because it looked really interesting I started going through the web toon. It's really good. I would defiantly recommend this to anyone.