MyBB treats polls and threads separately, but you can attach a poll to a thread. So the thread is created and then you are instantly redirected the the "create poll" page. A separate process apart from the thread creation process. So the time between thread creation and poll creation exists.

OT: Pretty sure Buff is what you call a bulk heavy/strong man.

Crimin4L - March 26, 2020, 2:14 pm

Well in LoL terms a Buff is something like a boost or a little added advantage, and tbh i couldn't see it being used in a different sense.

From the LoL Wiki:

A buff is any status effect given to a champion or a minion that gives them a beneficial boost to their performance. The opposite is called a debuff.

Instagram - March 26, 2020, 2:20 pm

There are a few things that I am thinking of but don't think it applies to your term.

Yeah i have no idea maybe this is a common word in the states i have no idea . It's not common in Scotland if some one said to me the word buff i would think there walking about naked lol .. That's the saying we use here he's in the buffs .. But you gotta remember we have some rather strange slang words in Scotland ?

Fish - March 26, 2020, 2:34 pm

Do people seriously not know what it means. It's just like a boost in power

Xtreme™ - March 26, 2020, 2:39 pm

A buff is a positive effect on a hero, a debuff is a negative effect.

Learnt it from Dota 2

Anyway Stay Safe Guys !

Nah honeslty mate it's something we never say in Scotland why not just call it a boost then ? It doesn't seem very clear to everyone on here what it means
So is it used a lot in USA ? ?

So does it mean if you use buffs bro it will make your stats stronger on you Hackuman i'm presuming yes with what's getting said now ?

Mix - March 26, 2020, 2:49 pm

a buff to me is when you boost the power of something. Basically. The alternative is a nurf where you make the thing less powerful.

Yeah well this could be exciting and i wonder how much this will cost LoL there will most likely be as limit so you can't get your Hackuman to strong or build his power but up what ever way it's going to work

Yeah everyday we are lucky enough to be getting new updates the thing i have loved the most is the actions tab that's 100% brilliant

Best of luck to all who are playing this ?

Usually refers to an advantage of some sort.

First thought was buff the headwear? Or buff humans? XD

Astrogen - March 27, 2020, 4:15 pm

I've played several games and from it, I now know buff as something that would increase your stats or give you temporary effects/advantages.

Dhoroty - March 28, 2020, 1:22 am

I heard it a lot.

His is the noise you make, when you ate too much, and the air wants to get out of you (upside).

If you thought about hames, yes I also know it

Malthemar - April 4, 2020, 10:48 am

Sure, a buff is something that enhances the performance of an individual/player/character/NPC in a game, usually applied with a time constraint.

A debuff follows the same principle but has the adverse effect.

Sigma - April 4, 2020, 11:22 am

To me, it is some sort of enhancement added.

Lorem Ipsum - April 4, 2020, 11:25 am

Yes, but only as the 'scarfs' like items you can put around your neck. Not sure how else to describe 'buffs'.

Xtreme™ - April 4, 2020, 11:25 am

Waiting when all of this will get added to the game!

The more complex, more the fun!

Go Full power Hackuman development team!

Stay Home, Stay Safe!

Cheers!

Geralt - April 4, 2020, 11:37 am

Yes, anyone playing video games should know about the term.

Scooby - April 4, 2020, 12:32 pm

Aside from describing a man as full of muscles, I've only ever heard buff used as a reference to something that enhances oneself, such as getting a +10 armor buff in a video game.

Legacy - April 4, 2020, 1:01 pm

What kind of animal is it?
