Thread: Have you ever done any volunteer work?

SIM-3587630 - March 28, 2020, 1:34 pm

Have you ever done any kind of volunteer work, for local organizations, health services or anything similar?

I heard about "Online Volunteering" too, has anyone ever tried it?

Let me know :)

Dorrance - March 28, 2020, 1:36 pm

I do volunteer work all the time bud. I am actually looking to probably start a non-profit in the future.

StarZ - March 28, 2020, 1:36 pm

Does community service count? If so, yeah, Quite a bit.

Technically it was volunteer work. And it was a place I used to volunteer at when I was young. As an Adult, My career makes it difficult to have time with my family, let alone volunteer. Show me one adult that would willingly lose a week of pay and have their job threatened just to volunteer.

I've done some community service work by handing out food and such.

Volunteering is good for the soul. I do it on occasion.

I volunteer at an annual cancer walk, as well as helping with cutting wood and serving Thanksgiving dinner for the elderly through a local helping hand organization.

It's pretty nice, and if you find someone who runs an organization that is a bit younger, they will sometimes throw in some beer or other perks for helping out.

Yup I have done my fair share of volunteer work in my lifetime. Just looking to get out there and do something proactive.

I would like to participate on online volunteering work, can you lead me to this?

Renestey - March 29, 2020, 2:59 am

Yeah, worked multiple times at a Ping Pong tournament for handicapped players, picking up balls and helping around. It was a great feeling to help

Astrogen - March 29, 2020, 3:12 am

Yes, I've done some volunteer work and some random acts of kindness. Not recently though except things in regards to this covid-19.

I wanted to join the Red Cross project in my country for the current situation. Changed my mind cause I figured I will get in contact with a lot of people and I am currently quarantined with my family.

SIM-3609092 - March 29, 2020, 5:22 am

I've done it for school related things. Other than that not really. Time is money.

Cords - March 29, 2020, 5:35 am

No but i'd basically Mr.beast, I buy a few McDonald burgers and give them out when i'm feeling rich.

Donace - March 29, 2020, 6:07 am

I moved to Africa from Sweden, did some volunteer work and now got a high payed job at UN.

Rsynced - March 29, 2020, 8:07 am

I did stuff for churches in AA when I was going to meetings for over a year. Honestly should of been taking care of myself and family. If I was rich I would be still happy to help. Do not have the time nor money.

I volunteered as a kid at the non-profit summer skate program as a leader. Basically a bunch of kids come to the skate park for the entire day all summer long, their parents pay a fee that is donated to cancer research and we watch em make sure they don't hurt them self and feed em. I also volunteered to pick up garbage in high school during PE class.

I don't know fellas, I literally only saw an article about this. Looks like a bunch of stuff you can do (translations and other things) for UN and after completing it they give you a certification.

I did some volunteer work at a food bank a few years ago.

It was definitely stressful.

Tons of people.

It felt good providing food to the needy.

When I get the chance and I have done quite some before! I think doing volunteer work is receptively really great!

hfrocket1713 - March 29, 2020, 4:36 pm

I have plenty of times...recently at a soup kitchen a few months back. It was fun...my most boring volunteer work was stocking dvds at a library back in HS -_-

Redwall - March 29, 2020, 6:34 pm

Volunteered at an pet adoption center once.

TehPirate - March 29, 2020, 6:50 pm

To graduate highschool I needed to complete a total of 50 hours of community service. 15 of which had to be from senior year. Well I wasn't aware of this so as a last minute solution I joined the community in building a new play ground at the town park which so happened to be a month before I needed to submit proof. Well there was never anyone around to sign my "proof" so I just looked for a teacher to start a conversation with at the start. Afterward I'd wait for the chance to walk away, usually for the "bathroom" and not come back until around 5PM when they call it quits for the day and strike up a conversation with the same teacher. I'd then go to the teachers later and say I forgot my papers for the leaders to sign and ask for them to vouch that I was there :P

Yup volunteer work is the best. Here's a video of a bear doing some small volunteer work!

Not much of a volunteer but I usually donate / buy food to homeless.
