OP needs to confirm deals on site to make sure everything is aligned and straight forward!!

Not just send random payments if and when he wants to. to a certain address that can always change.

I deal with so many users per day, my info does not stay the same.

All deals I do will be confirmed on site, you can ask anyone. This is the rules, and not only that but it does make things much safer.

I will only use a contract to go off of-regardless of the situation and what you tell me elsewhere.

Please do not continue to slander false/falsifying information about me.

My info such as my cashapp, paypal, and zelle emails. You are out of context dude. I need you to grow the fuck up and take your loss and stop slandering my name. I have not seen any money from you other than the contracts you invalidly disputed.

These were contracts made to be done successfully. I only deal on-site.

Blogger - March 29, 2020, 1:02 pm

If you only do deals on-site and they must use a contract, why did you tell Seasoned eWhore not to start a contract?

Lorem Ipsum - March 29, 2020, 1:03 pm

Did you open twice the same thread or is the second one about a different Contract?

Because why would he start a contract without my correct cashapp? I don't know where the user was talking about $300 from.

I really hope you'll get this solved, but I highly doubt it as the opposite side of this dispute was browsing HF a moment ago and didn't reply yet on this thread. Assumings though, I can't be sure.

I posted all the proof I have on my own thread. As I said, I don't mind proving more, posting the whole chat. And the 350$ loss is no worries. Just know that you should exercise caution when dealing with this user.

I don't see how that is relevant. YOU can add your own payment method after the contract is created. He would create the contract with all of the information he has(both payment methods are not necessary to create/start a contract), once created you'll get a notification that someone started a contract, from there you have the ability to add your payment method. He did not have to add it for you. But with 76 completed deals under your belt, you already knew all of that. So I reiterate, if you only do deals on-site and they must use a contract, why did you tell Seasoned eWhore not to start a contract?

You aren't following this situation. There was never a contract created for this transaction he is talking about? Do you follow me.

This amount of $300? I am not sure whom or where it has came from but I have no receival of $300 from this user, nor a contract. Do you follow me?

This user said he sent me $300, where the fuck is the $300? Where the fuck is the contract?

Since this post gets more traction than the one I disputed, I'll post it here for everyone to read!

DEAL WITH EXTREME CAUTION.

Oh boy, where do I start? Most of you guys read the thread about Ziggson and this user in question. The difference between me and Ziggson is that a 350$ scam doesn't hurt my daily business at all. Ziggson got pressured into closing the thread. I won't let new members be belittled like that by some random vendor.

I've done quite a few big deals on this site with big exchangers. Most of them seem to have a business sense and ethic.

This changed when I stumbled upon our person in question. I wish I checked his thread before he closed it since other members were already commenting 'DWC'. This person was promoting non-contracted exchanged off-site. This alone is bannable.

See this GIF to see how he is encouraging off-site non-contracted deals.

<https://gyazo.com/e0e30eb6049ac728e15fae0a015dd3cd>

Just incase he decided to change his discord name in his bio:

<https://gyazo.com/8281c8eb43e1f2f779a1732b7ab8d020>

and a post couple minutes ago:

<https://gyazo.com/98db65a84ea587313d628ee4bf1d8ecb>

And at last, the PM he send me on HF:

<https://gyazo.com/9556a9740cd2ff678f8e0a95d8ccc20f>

We all know that talking on Discord is not the way to go and yada-yada. Put yourself in the shoes of new members. When they see a vendor, posting a thread. Do you really think that they suspect this vendor, someone who clearly has more experience in this site, will scam them? No. That's what this thread is for, helping new members.

However, this is just the start of everything. Between now and a couple of months more deal disputes will pop up. Why? This user uses carded accounts to send funds to the HF members. How do I know? Because this user was active on other forums doing the same Clay Davis. Notice how he is active in all kinds of subforums trying to sell Clay Davis with stolen funds.

That alone is already shitty enough and you will see more deal disputes popping up between now and a couple months about this user.

But this wasn't what led me to this deal dispute. (keep in mind, the thread in question was posted in Currency Exchange, this user was offering Zelle/Paypal/Zelle/Cashapp for BTC, this was removed after me and other users commented under it saying he was trying to encourage off-site transactions)

This user will first start off by asking you to do contract payments to build trust.

That's exactly what I did. We started off by doing two contracts for two Zelle payments.

Zelle payment 1 (250$):

<https://gyazo.com/283cd3f22b1515336990b4bfa77d0972>

Zelle payment 2(350$):

<https://gyazo.com/85c83ee3ea34fe75bb806bb95633703c>

Keep in mind, things were already starting to get fishy. He promised a certain % but changed it afterwards.

<https://gyazo.com/36bf74c228842cb38fa8e31a41a32cf6>

But okay, it's no biggy. We make around 1k a day, fishy exchangers are part of the business. Now, we get to the juicy part. OP told me he wanted to save up for a MacBook and was happy to do business with me.

For the third Zelle payment, OP asked me NOT to do a contract(see previous GIF).

So, what do you think happened? Exactly. The screenshots will speak for themselves. He scammed 350$. Haven't received anything yet.

<https://gyazo.com/efcf6809e5e5dcacb60e378ab21c4d91>

The guy blocked me afterwards. New members, please be careful trading with this guy! Furthermore, be extremely careful when receiving Zelle/Paypal/Cashapp from OP. He is using stealth accounts to send funds, AKA carded accounts. What does this mean for you? Your Paypal/Zelle/Cashapp account will close as soon as they see that the payments that you received were fraudulent.

I hope I helped some new members out. For further prove or whatsoever, PM me. I encourage everyone NOT to deal with him until he shows proof that he changed his ways. I wish him the best, I understand everyone wants to make money but defrauding forum members and scamming them is not the way to go.

EDIT: How could I forget? The payment in question lol!

This user said he sent me $300, where the fuck is the $300? Where the fuck is the contract? No, you aren't following. You can't create a dispute without a contract. That link above that says "Contract Link", yeah, that's the link to the contract. Do you follow me?

Who the fuck is talking about $300? Oh, you. Just you. Seasoned eWhore is talking about the 350 ZELLE that he gave you in exchange for the $240 BTC that you were supposed to give him but never did. Still following me?

This is about the $350 in Zelle that you've stolen, not a random $300. Not once in this deal dispute have I seen anyone but you mention sending you $300. So who knows where the fuck that money is? It's irrelevant. You still following me?

If you're still having trouble finding the contract that the user is referring to, HF has made it so that a link to it is provided in your first post of a dispute. Just scroll up. That is where the fuck the contract is. Hope you're still following.

Your BTC has been sent. No worries for you buddy, deal with me correctly onsite and don't send random payments to an email|cashapp|zelle|paypal that doesn't stay the same always. It is changed to protect myself from getting disputed on/limited.

And as for you goes, you need to get your facts straight. The dispute this user has open has nothing to do with $350. You shall go refer for yourself what his dispute is over. It's $250. That's an invalid dispute. Lol as for me goes, I opened a dispute because the user opened a false one on me. I am here to cover my own ass. No one else's. As for you goes, should just stop talking because you're lost in the sauce.

UPDATE ON THE SITUATION:

After a lot of back and forth, Yert blocked/unblocked me a couple of times. After that, he offered to pay me 240$ BTC.

<https://gyazo.com/f72f54929827e8c2993c245b74eb801a>

This alone refutes his argumentthat there was no such thing as a 350$ payment, further proving that he actually did this off-site trade. Afterwards, I told him this was not the deal. We agreed on 350$ Zelle for 300$ BTC.

<https://gyazo.com/66b30901932bb3fb4b8fa92ca54079ad>

Just imagine if I actually started to do non-contract Cash App with OP... that would be a total shitfest.

But there is good news! Yert claims to want this resolved for 240$ after he gets his limit removed on his HF profile. This still nets me in a 60$ scam, but we will see if he actually keeps his word.

You're a complete fucking moron. Your dispute, as well as his, is for 350 ZELLE/$240 BTC. If you didn't know how he came up with that number, why would you accept the contract, you fucktard? If his dispute is invalid, so is yours. Both disputes are for the same fucking contract. Are you invalidating your own contract and dispute? Stupid shit.

Completely agree. He is trying to manipulate everyone and everything. Really fucked up, especially during this time, where everyone has some sort of stress or mental problem because of corona. Karma is gonna handle him nicely.

I wanted to open this thread back up so that away everyone knows it's still there.

The user @seasoned ewhore is not willing to remove his disputes and follow up with what he said he would do which we close dispute and remove b rating.

We dealt during the time I was limited and he has been paid for the "missing" amount he thought he was scammed for. Here's proof.

He refuses.

I sent you $240 worth in BTC when I bought it at the time. There is no proof there whatsoever, you agreed to the $200 BTC. That's your own fault, from here staff can deal with this. You're a scrub kid. Clearly.

That proof is nothing against what I've shown. You AGREED to the $200 for the $350 you sent me.

Yert. You clearly don't know how to do business. I am not going to keep repeating myself. But, for the last time, let me refresh your mind. The facts are, we made a deal being 300$ BTC for 350$ Zelle. After you received the money you did the following (in chronological order):

- 1: Act like we never had a deal to begin with (which I refuted multiples times in your deal dispute)
- 2: Ignored, blocked me.
- 3: After the thread got traction from other members, you unblocked me, begged me to resolve this.
- 4: Blocked me again.
- 5: This time, you actually acknowledged that you tried to scam me & that we had a deal to begin with.
- 6: But, ofcourse being the shady person you are, you tried to give me 2/3 of what the deal was. This being 200$.

7: And now you want to spin it like it's my fault. You have me on block again because you know I'm right.

And Yert, honestly, it's okay. I know you are saving up for a car and we both know you will exit scam (again). The money is not a problem for me. I somewhat feel sorry for you since I know you need the money a lot. But, as I said in all my posts, this is to warn new members. I'm glad that most of the big HF members have seen how scummy you act.

Take care and let this be a lesson for you.

EDIT:

Just to a refreshment for your mind (and everyone elses):

1. Here he lets me know the rate of Zelle (12%) How did he think we agreed on 240$? God knows. Try taking a 12% cut from 350$ and see if you get 240$.

Do you know how stupid you sound Yert? Let me sketch the scenario for you.

You agree to pay 300$. (12% from 350$ and some fee's, according to you)

Afterwards, you tell me I only get 200$. And just because I said yes I want the 200$ you think this is resolved? I am really starting to worry about your mental condition.

So the problem here is that you earlier stated 'You are not worried about money'

So yet you accept the deal for $200 that was originally of suppose to of been $240 BTC but it went down in price by the time you got paid.

You agreed to close dispute, and B ratings and still haven't seen it done,

That's the million dollar question. He thinks he's slick by asking the person he scammed (me) for 2/3 the amount (200$ instead of 300$) he scammed for, the scammed person (me) agreeing to the amount (which is obvious, who wouldn't take the 2/3 the amount he OWES you) and afterwards spinning it to look like he resolved the dispute.

The user above is absolutely invalid on his theory. Not going to even quote it, but the proof is there. The deal was never for $300. The deal in our contracts state that it was $350 for $240 BTC.
