Ok, so I have a frequent buyer for my bytes, it is not huge amounts, but it is very frequent.

Now I have 4 contracts with this same user in the past week and I just want to be sure if this is not against policy by any chance?

Technically no it's not against policy if you are dealing onsite with the member, but i think maybe there's an unsaid rule i don't know about.

As far as I know every deal is a deal, if you have 4 trades per week then its ok. But if you've got 1 trade and splitting it to 4 contracts, thats against the rules.

Yea, I know there isn't any written rule, but still rather ask.

It is not just 1 trade. As soon as I hoard some bytes we deal.

Might just deal in the future only when I have a bigger amount of bytes.

Then I don't see a problem

1 deal is 1 deal. You are free to do small exchanges often. Just look at all the exchangers as proof. Omni himself does it

Yep.

Just don't be an idiot and do really low amounts like 5 bytes.

It's not against the rules as of now. Not sure if this is gonna change but you're good for now.
