

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Recommend PC build - \$2200 aud budget

gday mate - March 31, 2020, 6:32 am ladies and gentlemen, i'm looking to build a PC in the coming weeks and need help with a nice build for gaming

i'd like to spend about $2200 AUD but can go a bit higher if it's a significant upgrade would like os and wifi included pls cheers

gday mate - April 1, 2020, 8:11 pm

How's this build? <https://www.pccasegear.com/sc/vxK>

.Astro - April 1, 2020, 8:57 pm

(Apr 1, 2020 08:11 PM)gday mate Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) How's this build?

<https://www.pccasegear.com/sc/vxK>

I would recommend just opting to get an Ethernet cable than a network adapter because it'll be loads faster and you'll probably save more money. Unless it has to be wireless and you can't route the Ethernet cable.

Bastille - April 2, 2020, 2:01 am

Damn, prices are high in AU ?

Everything is fine for me, well balanced build, 3600Mhz for Ryzen. 3 fans (1 with the case and 2 you added), could maybe go up to 4 (2 in front, 1 up and 1 on the back) in order to have a better air flow.

You are a little bit higher than 2200, maybe you could take a 500Gb instead of 1Tb SSD ? Besides don't hesitate to look for all of those components on other websites, such as Amazon. I quickly checked and you can save some bucks on CPU and MB.

gday mate - April 2, 2020, 2:21 am

(Apr 2, 2020 02:01 AM)Yseurk Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Damn, prices are high in AU ?

Everything is fine for me, well balanced build, 3600Mhz for Ryzen. 3 fans (1 with the case and 2 you added), could maybe go up to 4 (2 in front, 1 up and 1 on the back) in order to have a better air flow.

You are a little bit higher than 2200, maybe you could take a 500Gb instead of 1Tb SSD ? Besides don't hesitate to look for all of those components on other websites, such as Amazon. I quickly checked and you can save some bucks on CPU and MB.

Yup they are :(and thanks for reassuring me that it seems fine :p I was contemplating if I really needed 1tb ssd but I don't think I will. 2tb storage is way too much for me