Thread: I need helpful ideas!

Hello All of you beautiful Hackforums users! My anniversary is coming up this Friday and I did have huge plans for it before my state went on shelter in place. Now with all the hotels closed and all the bars and restaurants closed, I am not able to do any of what I had planned.

This being said, I need some help for some new ideas that would be a setting romantic enough to propose to! At first, I was going to take her to this horse back riding place where you go through a trail, stop and have some food, start a bonfire and watch the sunset. Which I still want to do, but oh well. Any ideas?

You could cook her a nice dinner, then when you go out to the kitchen to fetch her plate, you could 'accidentally' start a video playing that you've pre-recorded of you proposing to her.

I will be cooking dinner, her favorite meal to be exact haha. But as far as a pre-recording what do you mean?

Record a video of you proposing on your phone or whatever. Then set it up on the tv/laptop/whatever. Then 'accidentally' hit play when you leave the room and she's sat there.

Play some card games, or some funny games like Cards Against Humanity. Try not to be too competitive unless she is into that kinda stuff lol

That sounds preety good i dont think thats bad of an idea, but where are you going to get horses? if anything, if she really like to do horse back riding then by all means do that, if not dont try to do that, if anything if you trying to spice it up a little bit, if you guys have a speciel spot go to the speciel spot the day before or the day after and set some thing ups so when you get there it looks like a surprise and you didnt have to set anything up. At the same time id reccomend to yeah do something cute like go dress up make her wear something nice you wear something nice go out to a park and possible take some pictures together, at the park at some private spot, somewhere seclutive or just somewhere cool then slowly transition to your bonfire sunset with the roasting marshellows and watching the stares if anything. But yeah i guess you can say it up to you cause you know her best. Do something she likes if it the horses go for it, just dont forget to make some good food or something.

Is she more of an adventure type of person or chill type?

Maybe rent a cabin in the woods and have a chill one on one night?
