

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Can Vouch copy into Deal dispute?

SEO Service - April 6, 2020, 2:25 am

If a member bought a vouch copy (highly discounted price). Got his work done and got results also but still he is not giving his review.

Then can I make a deal dispute against him?

Because If a user not giving his review then what is the meaning of giving vouch copy?

Below is my contract Tos

Code Contract TOS:

--ALL sales are final NO REFUNDS

--If you have any questions after the work is done message me in a PM please do not reply on the thread.

SIM-1729678 - April 6, 2020, 2:29 am

Yes. I personally believe so, if not just open a community alert so that other sellers don't give him vouch copies.

Deal - April 6, 2020, 2:30 am

Of course. You can create a deal dispute on any deal. Whether it's a vouch copy or whatever.

Cameron - April 6, 2020, 2:30 am

(Apr 6, 2020 02:25 AM)SEO Service Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If a member bought a vouch copy (highly discounted price). Got his work done and got results also but still he is not giving his review.

Then can I make a deal dispute against him?

Because If a user not giving his review then what is the meaning of giving vouch copy?

Below is my contract Tos

Code Contract TOS:

--ALL sales are final NO REFUNDS

--If you have any questions after the work is done message me in a PM please do not reply on the thread.

I'd personally turn it into a dispute. They got a discounted copy on the terms it would come with a review. They have not kept their end of the deal.

[(5)] - April 6, 2020, 3:36 am

I'd definitely say so. Make a community alert warning people also. Link the thread here when you do.

KING - April 6, 2020, 3:52 am

You should try to solve the issue directly with him. Ask him why he's not fulfilling his part of deal. If he doesn't respond then you have full right to open dispute against him.

SEO Service - April 6, 2020, 4:31 am

(Apr 6, 2020 03:52 AM)KING Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You should try to solve the issue directly with him. Ask him why he's not fulfilling his part of deal. If he doesn't respond then you have full right to open dispute against him.

I have contacted the user many times. Every time he told that he liked my service and he will give the reviews soon but still he is not kept his words flavoral - April 6, 2020, 5:46 am

Ofc yeah. Call his ass out.

spiral - April 6, 2020, 5:58 am

(Apr 6, 2020 04:31 AM)SEO Service Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I have contacted the user many times. Every time he told that he liked my service and he will give the reviews soon but still he is not kept his words Dispute the contract with him then, even though its a vouch copy he failed to keep up with his end of the deal.

Motusora - April 6, 2020, 6:02 am depends on the agreement listed in the contract .

flavoral - April 6, 2020, 6:07 am

(Apr 6, 2020 06:02 AM)Motusora Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) depends on the agreement listed in the contract .

What's the point of a vouch copy if the user doesn't post a review?

Eagle 95 - April 6, 2020, 7:11 am

Yes, you can. You can dispute any contract if you think something is not right. Just for future reference, make a better contract ToS.