

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: How can i recognize a scammer on hackforums?

b2plane - April 12, 2020, 6:04 am

I dont want to make any false claims or judgements but i am always skeptical and i trust no one in business especially on hackforums.

A user who registered 2 days ago claiming he can get the work done for X amount of $, applied for a service that i have requested.

I tried to see his reputation on the forums here but he registered 2 days ago.

Is this a big red flag?

I am just tired of getting scammed and it pisses me off how no one can do business properly anymore without trying to scam.

I got scammed for thousands of dollars before.

It sometimes makes me want to hire a fucking hitman off the deepweb who is going to handle everyone who tries to fuck with me.

Bastille - April 12, 2020, 6:06 am

Hello buddy,

You can use middle man, there is 2 or 3 on the forum, don't remember exactly their name, something like Zexi I guess

Pow3r - April 12, 2020, 6:07 am

Don't trust people with zero reputation (Not HF reputation) always use a middleman where possible and do your research on any potential provider. The person above sounds about as legitimate as a Nigerian general wanting to send you $3 million...

SeismicV - April 12, 2020, 6:08 am

Registration date does not mean everyone is scammer, until he ask for upfront payment. you can start a contract with him and hire a middle man , so both of you will be safe, not only on this forum but other hacker forums as well.

Yin Yang - April 12, 2020, 6:08 am

Check B-ratings and search their userID (UID) associated with their account.

If you upgrade, you can use trust scan.

SaintJimmy - April 12, 2020, 6:35 am

Trust Scans, Business (B-Ratings) vouches and Reputation are quick indicators. Always check for Warning Threads in marketplace/caution based sections or in the Dispute Threads before dealing with someone.

Cyam - April 12, 2020, 6:37 am

(Apr 12, 2020 06:08 AM)Yin Yang Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Check B-ratings and search their userID (UID) associated with their account.

If you upgrade, you can use trust scan.

That doesn't mean anything since most scammers are new users who just registered with 0 completed deals.

Maybe I'm not the one who should post on this thread as I have 6 open deal disputes, but that doesn't make me a scammer since I've already exchanged over $1000 worth of AGC-s in that time.

OP it depends on what you need. If you're looking for hacking services be prepared to get scammed, but if you're looking for exchange or something like that just visit Currency Exchange section and find someone who has a lot of positive B-ratings and with no deal disputes opened.

b2plane - April 12, 2020, 6:45 am

(Apr 12, 2020 06:37 AM)Yung Gravy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That doesn't mean anything since most scammers are new users who just registered with 0 completed deals.

Maybe I'm not the one who should post on this thread as I have 6 open deal disputes, but that doesn't make me a scammer since I've already exchanged over $1000 worth of AGC-s in that time.

OP it depends on what you need. If you're looking for hacking services be prepared to get scammed, but if you're looking for exchange or something like that just visit Currency Exchange section and find someone who has a lot of positive B-ratings and with no deal disputes opened.
yeah im looking for (whitehat) hacking services at this point but i also got scammed for AGC/BTC exchange 250$ before. the currency exchange services arent any better than hacking services

Bastille - April 12, 2020, 6:49 am

(Apr 12, 2020 06:45 AM)b2plane Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) yeah im looking for (whitehat) hacking services at this point but i also got scammed for AGC/BTC exchange 250$ before. the currency exchange services arent any better than hacking services

How can you need a white hat for hacking services ? ?

For currency exchange do only with trusted members and also with less amount of money. Unfortunately, I saw "HQ" members left forum after a scam because the amount was "good enough" for that.

Cyam - April 12, 2020, 6:49 am

(Apr 12, 2020 06:45 AM)b2plane Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) yeah im looking for (whitehat) hacking services at this point but i also got scammed for AGC/BTC exchange 250$ before. the currency exchange services arent any better than hacking services

Use contract and middleman if possible too.

Just look for trusted exchangers with a lot of b-ratings that possibly have their exchange thread as well.

They won't risk their business over couple hundred bucks.

b2plane - April 12, 2020, 6:52 am

(Apr 12, 2020 06:49 AM)Yung Gravy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Use contract and middleman if possible too.
Just look for trusted exchangers with a lot of b-ratings that possibly have their exchange thread as well.

They won't risk their business over couple hundred bucks.

this is the first user from hackforums who applied to do my service request but I refused to do work with him because he refused to follow my procedure. i am the blue one and he is the red one:

notice how rude and disrespectful he was at the end of the conversation when i refused to do business with him.
have i dodged a scam attempt?

Toosii - April 12, 2020, 6:58 am

Use a middleman, or check the b ratings I personally wouldn't deal with anyone on the forum unless they look trusted, been scammed too many times elsewhere.

Stepdad - April 12, 2020, 7:01 am

You'll want to ensure you are using the Contract System for every transaction you complete on this site. In addition, you can use the Trust Scan feature, as well as checking out their B-Ratings and Popularity.

Always deal with caution!

Lorem Ipsum - April 12, 2020, 7:04 am

It's hard to 'recognise' a scammer as red flags are often unseen or disguised as something 'normal' Use this thread to use Contracts safely by Vitani.
<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5873062>

Basquiat - April 12, 2020, 7:07 am

(Apr 12, 2020 06:37 AM)Yung Gravy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That doesn't mean anything since most scammers are new users who just registered with 0 completed deals.

Maybe I'm not the one who should post on this thread as I have 6 open deal disputes, but that doesn't make me a scammer since I've already exchanged over $1000 worth of AGC-s in that time.

OP it depends on what you need. If you're looking for hacking services be prepared to get scammed, but if you're looking for exchange or something like that just visit Currency Exchange section and find someone who has a lot of positive B-ratings and with no deal disputes opened. I don't know if I agree with that settlement. The biggest scammers play the long con. They build up reputation and do business. Then they get away with murder, rinse and repeat.

Lorem Ipsum - April 12, 2020, 7:09 am

(Apr 12, 2020 07:07 AM)Basquiat Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I don't know if I agree with that settlement. The biggest scammers play the long con. They build up reputation and do business. Then they get away with murder, rinse and repeat.

A scammer is someone that scams. A murderer commits a murder. It's like saying that the big fish only fly in the skies with other birds.

WinklerConnect - April 12, 2020, 7:10 am

Almost everyone on this forum are scammers.

Yakless - April 12, 2020, 7:10 am

(Apr 12, 2020 06:52 AM)b2plane Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) this is the first user from hackforums who applied to do my service request but I refused to do work with him because he refused to follow my procedure. i am the blue one and he is the red one:

notice how rude and disrespectful he was at the end of the conversation when i refused to do business with him.

have i dodged a scam attempt? Either you dodged a scam attempt or the dude's just a dick lol

Basquiat - April 12, 2020, 7:14 am

(Apr 12, 2020 07:09 AM)Lorem Ipsum Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) A scammer is someone that scams. A murderer commits a murder. It's like saying that the big fish only fly in the skies with other birds.

I was just responding to him saying that most scammers are new users with 0 deals big dog

The Broker - April 12, 2020, 7:15 am

You don't, just check his b-rating and open/past disputes, and decide if that's a person you can trust.

Geralt - April 12, 2020, 7:18 am

New users are too easy to recognize, you need to watch out for reputable Ubers/Vendors. Open the Disputes section and see how often they scam. Like others mentioned, simply use a middle-man who has been on this forum for a long time.

Lorem Ipsum - April 12, 2020, 7:18 am

(Apr 12, 2020 07:14 AM)Basquiat Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I was just responding to him saying that most scammers are new users with 0 deals big dog

No, they're not.. they are the ones with 3 open disputes, about 100+ Booyah! ratings and enough creditability on HF to stay unbanned.

It's a warning for others, the open disputes, so I don't know where you even got your data or information from? Show us which 'most scammers' got 0 deals and a history of scams? Don't call me a big dog as you're acting patronising towards others with your fake info.

Pow3r - April 12, 2020, 7:20 am

(Apr 12, 2020 07:10 AM)WinklerConnect Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Almost everyone on this forum are scammers.

That really isn't true man. There are many good and honest people on here who conduct business in the right way.

Basquiat - April 12, 2020, 7:22 am

(Apr 12, 2020 07:18 AM)Lorem Ipsum Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) No, they're not.. they are the ones with 3 open disputes, about 100+ Booyah! ratings and enough creditability on HF to stay unbanned.

It's a warning for others, the open disputes, so I don't know where you even got your data or information from? Show us which 'most scammers' got 0 deals and a history of scams? Don't call me a big dog as you're acting patronising towards others with your fake info.

You're misunderstanding me. That's what he said so I wanted to correct the homie. Take it easy brodie.

Lorem Ipsum - April 12, 2020, 7:23 am

(Apr 12, 2020 07:22 AM)Basquiat Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You're misunderstanding me. That's what he said so I wanted to correct the homie. Take it easy brodie.

Still no point in making a weird reference when trying to correct someone, son.

Basquiat - April 12, 2020, 7:24 am

(Apr 12, 2020 07:23 AM)Lorem Ipsum Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Still no point in making a weird reference when trying to correct someone, son.

What weird reference are you talking about homie?

Lorem Ipsum - April 12, 2020, 7:27 am

(Apr 12, 2020 07:24 AM)Basquiat Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What weird reference are you talking about homie? I'm leaving this thread be for as it is. Not here to turn this 'how to' thread into a 'let's discuss some bullsh*t' thread. Happy Easter / Sunday ??

Stork - April 12, 2020, 7:31 am

(Apr 12, 2020 06:04 AM)b2plane Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I dont want to make any false claims or judgements but i am always skeptical and i trust no one in business especially on hackforums.

A user who registered 2 days ago claiming he can get the work done for X amount of $, applied for a service that i have requested.

I tried to see his reputation on the forums here but he registered 2 days ago.

Is this a big red flag?

I am just tired of getting scammed and it pisses me off how no one can do business properly anymore without trying to scam.

I got scammed for thousands of dollars before.

It sometimes makes me want to hire a fugging hitman off the deepweb who is going to handle everyone who tries to fugg with me.

Yeah I'd be pretty cautious not much to lose with a 2 day old account.

Cyam - April 12, 2020, 9:05 am

(Apr 12, 2020 07:59 AM)phantomman55 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) LMAO!! a hitman? If you been scammed many times on here it means you're an idiot. I have never been scammed but would I hire just anybody on hackfourms no. The guy you're asking about is most likely going to scam you this is common sense however, it depends what you're asking for and what he claims he can do it. I wouldn't trust that person. I would normally get a paid account on hf and hire people that have a good standing account.

Yes, you were going to get scammed and it's sad that you think oh gosh I saved myself from getting scammed... LMAO!! that's very low bro.

most hacking services on here are scams same with exchange. I would say more legal services on here are better and have lower rates of getting scammed. I can hack things myself and would never do it for someone else. Most that can hack will never offer it as a service and the ones that can't would offer the service to scam people.

I remember biggest hacking service scam with Anonymous.

He built a huge name and reputation for himself and scammed A LOT of money.

WinklerConnect - April 12, 2020, 9:18 am

(Apr 12, 2020 07:20 AM)Pow3r Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That really isn't true man. There are many good and honest people on her who conduct business in the right way.

Yes, the 1%.