Thread: How to view all public emails of Facebook Friends

Social Engineer - April 15, 2020, 10:08 am

I know some people are having a few issues extracting emails as Yahoo no longer lets you export, there is one way around it, however it only lets you extract emails and I'm not sure how you'd export it as Name - Email format - but if someone knows how to do this it would help myself and other people.

1. Log into Facebook, and select Settings.
2. Once you're under Settings, select "Your Facebook Information"
3. Then Click "Download Your Information"
4. Deselect them all, and leave "Friends" selected. Create the file and wait for it to be prepared, this shouldn't take any longer than 5-10 minutes. I've 4700 friends and my file was ready in 3 minutes.
5. Once file is ready, you'll receive a Facebook notification, allowing you to then download the .html file. Load the HTML file, and select "Friends" - It should show a huge list of all your friends with their emails/contact visible.
6. Use Control + F and input '@' to show how many emails are present in the file.

If someone knows a way of automatically extracting these as contacts then please post below, otherwise manually extracting seems like the only way atm, it may be possible to use the source code and an online tool to then extract emails only, but I'm not sure. So I'll wait for someone to respond on this and see if it's possible.

Pretty good method tbh, doesn't get ALL emails as stated by thread title but a great way for information gathering... respect

I tried this, it works.

Seemingly of the 500 contacts i have NONE have there emails available. But theory is there.

I guess now if people don't have there email set as PUBLIC it won't show up.

Thank you - Great share buddy.
