Thread: Just got into the valorant beta.

Last night my friend got an email & it said that he got into the beta even tho he hasn't watched a single stream that day. Now at 6 am in the morning I randomly get an email saying I also go into the beta while I didn't really watch any streams either. Very strange stuff. I did read an article saying that they were going to give out more beta keys.

If you created an riot account and linked it and watched at least 1 time a stream with drops enabled then you are already checked as "active" and are eligible for access drops.

People assume you need to watch stream or multiple streams at once to receive a drop, which you do not need to do.

Ooooh this is some good information do you have an article or something to back it up?

I read through many topics there, everything i stated above has come up several times from Riot employees.

Also they are my personal findings, i have sold over 24 beta accounts now what i created a bot for and i still had "drops" even after i shut my bot down for 2 days.
