Thread: Color Scheme

de_g3ntl3m4n - April 18, 2020, 11:21 pm

Does anyone ever have trouble finding any good colors? or a good color sheme?

Do you guys have any good website recommendation?

At the same time if i may ask, do you guys have any favorite color schemes?

Red + yellow

Black + yellow

red + black

Blue + orange + grey

idk or something good like

#193346 + #613A43

#36384C + #849974

something you know..... i dont know

are you painting a room just go by your own instincts.

just trying to get some good colors other than some basic ones man, trying to get a nice dark theme, trying to create a website + logo + a few webpages and just need some cool colors.. not really big with them or anything at the same time idk apperently there are some really good colors out there but i dont want to be too basic, who knows there might be a better blue or better red, just looking for something i am going to try and stick with for a few weeks and slowly advance

(Apr 20, 2020 08:27 AM)phantomman55 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) the colors you posted are good. Don't worry about being too basic. Just do your thing. I can make good designs and have done the artwork for my website myself. All I can tell you is that you just need to do your own thing. Later you can always redesign things or redo parts of the website. I have done like 10 revisions of my websites.

hmmm, interting so just go with flow you think my colors are gucci really? hahah appriate that. hmmm i mean i guess, if i create an outline its just like adding in the blank but with this i can re input the blanks hmm, but still but okay ill see thank you for that lowkey :) appriatiate that I normally just go with a gray, and any other color I'm feeling at the time. I just like the way dark gray looks.

Rezy - April 20, 2020, 8:45 am

My go to color is light blue.

Xen - April 20, 2020, 9:01 am

Greys blues and orange look sharp as hell on a web page. Grey literally goes with everything. But you gotta be creative and do what you think looks good, get some feedback afterwards and make changes on the way. Sometimes you'll find some things just click and you run with it.

Ombra - April 20, 2020, 9:19 am

Personally I'm an Orange + Black fan, but I like gray scale too

Simplex - April 20, 2020, 9:34 am

I mostly prefer dark color schemes. Anything that has a dark mode is what I usually use.

Weddy - April 20, 2020, 9:36 am

I'm my case I'm a Red + Black guys but the grey is also a good choice.

Dark grey with light colors, I normally go for a purple or a mint green, that's my person favorites.

Blue would be nice as well.

wait wait wait yup i can see it a nice grey with a minity green green color would you say thats a nice contrast? light with dark but in a way like hmm i feel like there is another word for that but it definitely feels like it will make a cool mixture

Astrogen - April 20, 2020, 7:26 pm

You can try checking out color.adobe.com

Charger - April 20, 2020, 7:28 pm

Red and yellow? Tf are you? A poisonous snake?

Accord - April 20, 2020, 10:32 pm

I do have trouble choosing the right color scheme when creating a thread design

IPIKIN - April 20, 2020, 11:35 pm

My go to colour would be blue but pink/purple, purple/orange are dope together.

interesting purple and orange really? about to see what happens with these too colors thank you for that tbh

Lynx - April 21, 2020, 2:19 am

Can't go wrong with black and red

Yanix - April 21, 2020, 3:56 am

It would be nice to have black, red & yellow.

R A Z - April 21, 2020, 4:21 am

i'm always using black&blue and black&red

Marxist - April 21, 2020, 4:26 am

I usually gravitate towards a deep purple or dark pink with black accents. Or vise versa.

Luca - April 21, 2020, 4:32 am

Light red + black + white works fantastically for me

Let me know how you go mate

a11s - April 21, 2020, 7:30 am

Black & Dark Yellow

Black & White

Black & Orange

Those look the best when it comes to anything in my opinion.

something you know..... i dont know

This is where I defer to my lovely designer colleagues and friends, absolutely. This and typography. There really is such a thing as having an eye for design. And there's also some real science behind all of this, too. Good designers have both, and I'm fortunate to work alongside some amazing designers, and call a few others good friends.

I simply don't have that eye for design, and find myself being too conservative where otherwise a good designer will know to be bold. But I know that is a weakness of mine, and so I keep up on design blogs and resources so that I can stay up to date with the trends better, and have some reference material for when I think I want to try something. Speckyboy, especially, is a good resource to subscribe to. They issue a weekly news article for designers, and it's pretty good stuff.

And I also keep Coolors readily handy. Not only does their generator help you put together palettes based on a color or two you want to work with, but there's also a lot of user-generated palettes to use as inspiration.

4dik - April 21, 2020, 6:59 pm

My go to color is cyan or teal! I just feel in love with those colors when I was little kid and carried till now!

Spider - April 21, 2020, 7:08 pm

didnt even know you could do this

I am a backseat designer through and through. Give me a design system and I'm fine. Otherwise, if you're trusting me to put a design together, very much so. I'll be sticking to the age-old classics all day long, lol.

I recommend anybody looking for color schemes checks out Adobe Color [\[link\]](#) (adobe.com) interesting so i dont know man youre telling me that if you were given a little design thingy you would be able to do a good job? if a person tells you what they want in their design you would be able to create that but when you can do it yourself right in a way yeah?
