Thread: should i be worried?

Doctordis - April 19, 2020, 1:51 am

I created a cashapp and upgraded it to business account (using the ssn).

As without upgrading, all of my payments received there were failing saying that the payment has been canceled for your protection.

However after upgrading when i received 20 there, i gets around 18-19 something Maybe because of some cashapp fees i guess

So i just want to know if it is safe for me to use like this being in india? Are there any risks as i put somebody's else ssn there?

should i be worried about police or shit just curious any help will be appreciated ?

I don't know too much about Cashapp, but what you are doing is practically identity theft.

So yes, potentially a lot of trouble for you if they choose to investigate your account or something.

Shitty thing to do anyway

Yeah I be worried. At any moment your account could get frozen with the funds.

Stick to AGC that you could sell for BTC.

Here in America ewhoring is considered fraud and identity theft.

Honestly I wouldn't be too worried if I were you. If it only was a few transactions, and you really have deleted the account, then just move on and forget about it. You can't change what you did now anyway

You shouldn't have upgraded your account to a business as there is no need to. There's no point, you could've kept it as a personal account and not have any fees.
