So apparently the stuff that these people sell actually does protect you against coronavirus.

Quote:SexToyDistributing.com, a Los Angeles-based company that does what its name implies, announced this week that it would also donate its stock of medical supplies to hospitals in the greater Los Angeles area. It's partnering with the American University of Health Sciences Foundation. Quote:The donation includes thousands of masks, face shields, and nitrile gloves, Ari Suss, CEO of XR, LLC, the parent company of SexToyDistributing, told Motherboard.

The California based company alongside a few other companies has donated their medical fetish toys stock to hospitals in the Los Angeles area.

I think they're just doing it for the publicity but either way its good that they are helping protect people

So Nachfolger when are you donating your stuff?

Was reading about this earlier as well. Really nice of them to be donating things (no matter how creepy those are). These are desperate times and every help counts. Why says that you can't fix health and pleasure now? I bet nobody will hereafter.
