The most successful android exploits in metasploit involve the recipient installing an APK from a link. The recipient would have to enable installations from unknown sources.

If your a newbie in this field then start from the basics - like getting to know linux, then you can build up on that knowledge, like get to know encryption, then coding, then networking - and only after you have a big amount of knowledge, you can try hacking.

ANY method you'll find online for free - doesn't work anymore or you have to change it to work, but without knowledge, you can't change anything.

Its just not that simple.
