Sorry, maybe i'm a noob but... Why when a look for .rio file, i don't see anything about video ? and then... It says everywhere you need just IBM AIX software - Unix operating system... So whats the problem ? Rioplay... just type the software on youtube : nothing good about it and nothing about playing a .rio file in the description of the software. Soooo Are you sure about what you're asking ?

Sorry but i didn't get you. I have video course file which content .Rio encrypted. And you must have to play this file with RioPlayer software plus you can't even play those videos without valid Serial Key.

Now you tell me what you want to tell me??

What you ask us to do doesn't look to be what we have to do with this type of file !

When I just type "Rio file" : I find EVERYTHING but videos ! I searched : "rio encryption file", ".rio file". The only occurrence of video playing is on QUORA, in a sub reply to a more general question, and it's the only one !

So, what I want to tell you is: Your software is a scam, or if it's not a scam, it COULDN'T open .rio file because nothing but IBM AIX software - Unix operating system could. The second thing is that, I didn't even open the installer that windows (and none of my securities are on) told me it's a dangerous file... WHY a video player would be a dangerous file ?!

Kindly refer this website Mate I'm not developer I'm just normal user.

I already added a sample video file and software installation file. Just install it and make any fake account and login after than try to play that video. You must know what I'm looking for video is encrypted and it's not possible to decrypt without key right?? But is there any way to bypass Serial Key for that particular video course?

Sorry, I don't want to be unpleasant but I hope you're kidding because I don't think you read my message.

1. I'm not developer (but) I know how to make research on internet.
2. Your installation file is HUGE virus. (No need to be developer to see it, just try to install it and you'll see.)
3. NOTHING in the description of this software tell me it can open ".rio" file. (No need to be developer, just need the reading skill.)
4. *.rio file are NOT video file (No need to be developer, just need the reading and searching skill.)
5. AND we are not your dogs

So even if I had the skills I wouldn't do it just because you didn't even begin to try to search if what you're looking for is possible, correct or even logic, and you talk to us like we are at your service : if it's so easy, do it yourself.

Did you see any .rio file in the video you posted ? XD Did you just take a look at the red/blue thumbs ? the comments ? My reading skills are ok, thanks, but your video doesnt proove ANYTHING. You don't have a lot because you didn't search a lot, as I already said and as I will say again.

Are you serious ? I'm talking about the YOUTUBE video, genius ! And if you red my docs : I downloaded, everything, not installed. And I dont even need to download anything to keep saying that THE SOFTWARE doesn't read this kind of file: so learn to read, learn to make research on internet and THEN ask for help, not the opposite.

thanks.

thanks.actually he is asking how to play video protected by RECORDSHIELD application without having a serial key required to play it...

if you protect a video file using recordshield it changes the extension into .rio (ie, if you protect SAMPLE.mp4 it will be SAMPLE.rio) and it can be played only by application prepared by the same developer called RIOPLAYER. so he is asking if it is possible to crack rioplayer in such a way that it does not ask for a key anymore.

hope you now understand it other tu bhnchod gandhu h ek number ka apne lund pe v baat likh kr tere gaand me daalu na toh tujhe smjh nhi aayegi ja jakr maa chudwa lena

People like Nehril012601 are the reason why I NEVER ask people for help online. Dude's a super edgy curiosity-killing troll who doesn't even know how to do research, and assumes that the research he got is relevant to your problem. What a douche! ? Anyway, brother, after a few hours of messing with RioPlay2, so far I can only get some sensitive data from the memory dump (while the process is running, obviously) like:

I think this data is found inside the .RIO file, because I'm blocking Internet access to RioPlay2 (using NetLimiter), and I still got this alarmingly sensitive data (dumped RioPlay 2 process when it prompted for Serial Key). (This is YOUR .RIO file I got this kind of data from. The previous one I found in a Google Drive link shared by a customer on Fiverr)

So right now, the only thing you can do is scare the lecturer sh*tless by sending them that data, and get them to give you free access, and stop milking you for life like a money-grubbing schmuck! ?

I need to know the length of the serial key. I've already discovered that it's numeric with no hyphens unlike most serial keys. Know this for sure, the only reason Recordshield hasn't been cracked yet is, wait for it: It's not famous enough to get any decent cracker's attention.

And by the way, a customer on Fiverr that goes by the name "Schwarzenegger" (LOL) told me about the floating serial key, and I found part of the function called "FloatingSerialKey" in the process dump file, which means there has to be a way to disable that as well. I wish reverse engineering were my specialty, but I'm more of a guy who has universal observational skills. If I find anything interesting, I'll let you know. Peace out, bro, and f*ck clueless haters! :)

Usually .rio files will need a foss usi interface to be able encrypt. Google can help.
