Now that's one hell of a deal. Was a $500+ phone. It's a very good Android phone. Still $350 at Amazon.

<https://www.amazon.com/dp/B07K76LBLZ?tag=duckduckgo-ffab-20&linkCode=ogi&th=1&psc=1>

They have an unboxed but new version for $279 too.

If you're looking for a new Android phone in this price range you're getting great value.

Pretty good phone to slap some privacy focused roms. Unlike their last phone they didn't install the screen the wrong way.

Blogger - April 21, 2020, 11:44 am

Looks like it just got cheaper on Amazon. I was thinking about upgrading and trying out a Google phone. I need to do more research. This Samsung Galaxy S8+ I'm on is no fun anymore.

SUI-3183372 - April 21, 2020, 11:48 am

The only phone that's going to pull me away from team Pixel is a OnePlus. Not a bad deal for people looking for a powerful phone on a budget.

Boil - April 21, 2020, 7:42 pm

Too bad I don't have the money to get one /: Great price and a big upgrade from my Samsung A10e ($150 phone brand new went for $49 on Black Friday)

Grim - April 21, 2020, 7:46 pm

Might pick this up for my new work phone thanks!

Ombra - April 22, 2020, 1:47 pm

Let me check if I can get it with international shipping, I'd save a lot but god knows how long it will take to arrive.

EDIT: Out of stock. Great.

It's back now, listed by some other seller for $350. At this price, it's quite a steal. Much better than the mid-rangers of today and on par with some of the flagship devices out there, even though the processor is two generations old. I would recommend getting this. Still a great deal.

curious why people choose Android over iphone? I like iphone but I also wanted to know why it's worth going to android.

More customization, ease of usage, less priced devices, wide range of OEMs to choose from. If there is one advantage about iPhones, in my opinion, it is their life. They do age well.

If you have an iPhone then you'll basically have to pay for some apps that are free...or would be free if you had an android phone.

Also regarding the 6T, I actually considered to buy one but then I opted for a 7Pro instead since it came on sale and doesn't have that notch for the front camera. This is probably the best phone that I have ever had.

It had those notion but after borrowing a friend's 2016 SE and using it for a while I came to know that most of the free apps on Android are free iOS, even essentials like CamScanner. The ones being charged for a just because of the greedy development teams behind them.

7 Pro was good choice. The motorized front pop-up camera is a neat and fancy feature, it's fast and focuses well in ultra wide. But the 7T has a better camera than 7 Pro and it's cheaper (because it doesn't have pro's bigger display and pop-up cam).

If you are lucky all will be free however if you are unlucky like my ex who was soooo happy for getting an iPhone (can't remember which one, it was back in 2012) but then noticed that she would have had to pay for her favorite game, Poe. Was an amusing moment to say the least. Also noticed back then that a few of the apps that I use wouldn't have been free.

I do agree with this but I bought it when the 7T had just came out and the T model was more expensive (even without a sale). The main reason for why I really don't like the notch is, well, videos obviously, I don't see any reason to ruin a perfectly good display with a notch that contains a camera that never gets used. Even to I also do have to say that it's a fun toy to play with now and then, most of my friends didn't know about that feature and said that it was a bad phone since it had no front cam (lol).

Seems like your ex was in store for one hell of a good surprise with that game. Also, it's a completely different story here with 7T. It was been cheaper than 7 Pro here, ever since it was released. The 7 Pro even without discounts and deals never went below 7T or nearby.

Exalted - April 23, 2020, 8:15 am

That seems like a good deal. My OP5T (128GB ROM, 8GB RAM) is just over a year old; I won't be upgrading anytime soon. There is a vast amount of resources available for OnePlus phones, and the communities around them are very supportive.

Manks - April 28, 2020, 5:38 am

Fuck me! I missed out on this amazing ass deal

I love my 3T, but it's a bit dated at this point

Chapman - June 25, 2020, 9:20 am

I am using it as my current phone and i am loving it. Best budget smart phone with lot of features.

Skullgang - June 26, 2020, 7:33 am

Got this exact deal about a month ago

I went from a OP3T to this OP6T

And I love the phone.

?Dødgygeez - July 1, 2020, 12:33 pm

Is it likely that they will ever have any more in stock? A phone upgrade has been long overdue and this seems like a perfect, low-cost device!

shreder - July 1, 2020, 9:23 pm

that thing is a crazy fast phone still for $270 i'll buy it over any cheap huawei phone. Hell the 5/5t is still fast

Doni - November 25, 2020, 2:26 pm

I have an One Plus 6T. It is honestly a pretty good phone, i bought it 2 years ago for 600$. Except the battery that got worse (of course after 2 years of usage that is excepted). Just my 2 cents, if someone is looking to buy don't hesitate.

If you're looking for a new Android phone in this price range you're getting great value. Apparently that product is a scam. Or maybe the negative reviews with photo proof are scam.

Already purchased one of these. lovingit!

Hmm, to be honest not that good, especially the front camera. The back camera is okay.

But i can say that for 2 years that i own it, i never run into any kind of screen freeze or app freeze etc. It is just too fast, that you can compare its speed with many new phones and it wins. It is so fast that for ex. I didn't know till some days ago that in Facebook app splash screen it shows icons of the facebook owned apps like whatsapp, instagram etc. I saw them in a friends phone and i asked him since when does facebook has this splash screen he said its there for like almost 1 year. I never realized it since it just removes the splash screen so fast that you cannot see them ?
