

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: What age do you think is good age to have a kid?

4dik - April 21, 2020, 6:15 pm

]So in my opinion I think the age I would wanna be to have a kid at would be around 23-26 because you'll still be young and active with your child!

You have some life experience, and you can always have another kid later and fix your mistakes with the next if you plan to have more than one kid

What age do you think is a good age?

Malthemar - April 21, 2020, 6:16 pm

Depends on several things, including emotional maturity, stability, fertility, etc.

We should have children when we are ready to. Ideally, that would be 20-25 years old in my opinion.

S?iper?ge?t - April 21, 2020, 6:17 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:15 PM)4dik Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#)]So in my opinion I think the age I would wanna be to have a kid at would be around 23-26 because you'll still be young and active with your child!

You have some life experience, and you can always have another kid later and fix your mistakes with the next if you plan to have more than one kid

What age do you think is a good age?

I believe you are a native arabic speaker? Your post aligned to left.

I would wish to have kid at age of 30-32 at least. (You should enjoy your married life before you take on more responsibilities,)

4dik - April 21, 2020, 6:18 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:16 PM)v1z10n Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Depends on several things, including emotional maturity, stability, fertility, etc.

We should have children when we are ready to. Ideally, that would be 20-25 years old in my opinion.

True true, but you also have to see some people also can't have a baby and don't think fertility should be added, for me I'm considered infertile and don't I will ever be able to become fertile

SIM-3738253 - April 21, 2020, 6:18 pm

Personally, I would not recommend it.

4dik - April 21, 2020, 6:18 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:17 PM)SniperAgent Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I believe you are a native arabic speaker? Your post aligned to left.

I would wish to have kid at age of 30-32 at least. (You should enjoy your married life before you take on more responsibilities,)

No actually I just clicked the wrong align haha! and why do you want a kid in your thirties if you don't mind me asking?

Exposed74 - April 21, 2020, 6:19 pm

I'm thinking around 30. Because to me even 40-45 is still young af, and i'll probably lack stability before !

4dik - April 21, 2020, 6:19 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:18 PM)SIM-3738253 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Personally, I would not recommend it. My I ask why?

(Apr 21, 2020 06:19 PM)Exposed74 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm thinking around 30. Because to me even 40-45 is still young af, and i'll probably lack stability before !

Really! Im surprised! Why do you say that?

Aedan_ - April 21, 2020, 6:20 pm

I think there isn't an exact age, but rather a couple years after you get married. I think it's very important for kids to grow up with both a strong, loving father and mother figure and so I don't think it's rather about age, but when it's the right environment to raise a kid to the fullest.

Malthemar - April 21, 2020, 6:20 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:18 PM)4dik Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) True true, but you also have to see some people also can't have a baby and don't think fertility should be added, for me I'm considered infertile and don't I will ever be able to become fertile

All I meant was that the older people get, the less fertile they get too! ?

S?iper?ge?t - April 21, 2020, 6:21 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:18 PM)4dik Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) No actually I just clicked the wrong align haha! and why do you want a kid in your thirties if you don't mind me asking?

I really want to enjoy my life with my partner without having worries about the kids. World tour, explore things, festivals, everything before I get back to serious things like kids.

4dik - April 21, 2020, 6:21 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:20 PM)v1z10n Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) All I meant was that the older people get, the less fertile they get too! ?

Ohh well it does only take one swimmer to get someone pregnant. my friends mom is 72 and shes 20 haha!

(Apr 21, 2020 06:21 PM)SniperAgent Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I really want to enjoy my life with my partner without having worries about the kids. World tour, explore things, festivals, everything before I get back to serious things like kids.

That makes alot of sense and I feel you on that one! Gotta do all the traveling before you gotta pay for those leeches :P haha

(Apr 21, 2020 06:20 PM)Aedan_ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I think there isn't an exact age, but rather a couple years after you get married. I think it's very important for kids to grow up with both a strong, loving father and mother figure and so I don't think it's rather about age, but when it's the right environment to raise a kid to the fullest.

Yes but lets say you've been dating a girl since high school or for a long time and that is all stable! What age do you think you would wanna have on that everything is perfect

Simplex - April 21, 2020, 6:26 pm

Hmm, I would have to say as long as you are mentally prepared and financial capable to have one. I would say the best age would be 25-33

SIM-3738253 - April 21, 2020, 6:27 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:19 PM)Exposed74 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm thinking around 30. Because to me even 40-45 is still young af, and i'll probably lack stability before !

Earth is going to shit, maybe I'm just a pessimist, but I feel like bringing a child into this world at this point in time is an act of evil. Obviously it isn't up to me to decide what you should do, but that is my own philosophy when it comes to having children.

Another reason why I say this is because you give up a large amount of freedom when you have a child. You are suddenly not independent and you cannot make any progress on yourself or things that you want to do for at least 20 years. My advice is as soon as you feel like you've accomplished everything that you want to accomplish for the foreseeable future, then I say do it.

Yanix - April 21, 2020, 6:28 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:15 PM)4dik Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#)]So in my opinion I think the age I would wanna be to have a kid at would be around 23-26 because you'll still be young and active with your child!

You have some life experience, and you can always have another kid later and fix your mistakes with the next if you plan to have more than one kid

What age do you think is a good age?

Your choice bracket is definitely an ideal age to have kids, the question is...are you ready for the obligations?

You need to be matured enough to face all the trials you will be facing once you've got a family of your own, though it's really fun when you've got your own kid/s...it's a life changing but definitely worth every sacrifices you will be exerting. ???

S?iper?ge?t - April 21, 2020, 6:29 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:21 PM)4dik Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Ohh well it does only take one swimmer to get someone pregnant. my friends mom is 72 and shes 20 haha!

That makes alot of sense and I feel you on that one! Gotta do all the traveling before you gotta pay for those leeches :P haha

Yes but lets say you've been dating a girl since high school or for a long time and that is all stable! What age do you think you would wanna have on that everything is perfect

You completely understand me bro. Good day man.?

4dik - April 21, 2020, 6:31 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:28 PM)Yanix26 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Your choice bracket is definitely an ideal age to have kids, the question is...are you ready for the obligations?

You need to be matured enough to face all the trials you will be facing once you've got a family of your own, though it's really fun when you've got your own kid/s...it's a life changing but definitely worth every sacrifices you will be exerting. ???

So I'm already taking care of a child and I actually enjoy it but it takes alot to be fine with it and get used to it! But overall I enjoy taking care of a kid just wish it had my DNA :P

SaintJimmy - April 21, 2020, 6:32 pm

Only you can define your priorities, but let's do the math. It is different for everyone, just as anything else. Some people choose to go to college, some people choose a business career, some artistic, some play sports. The same is true for some families and not for others.

Factors to include:

Stability and financial status of couple

Female fertility

Unpredictable natures of pregnancy, miscarriages, etc.

Pushing life events later into life - retirement savings, grandkids, etc.

4dik - April 21, 2020, 6:36 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:32 PM)SaintJimmy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Only you can define your priorities, but let's do the math. It is different for everyone, just as anything else. Some people choose to go to college, some people choose a business career, some artistic, some play sports. The same is true for some families and not for others.

Factors to include:

Stability and financial status of couple

Female fertility

Unpredictable natures of pregnancy, miscarriages, etc.

Pushing life events later into life - retirement savings, grandkids, etc.

Yeah true true! I know it gonna very for everyone and just wanted to see people opinions. Luckily I group somewhat wealthy and I already have a lot of those covered when it happened! I worked my ass off for so long but living decent now :D

Disease - April 21, 2020, 6:40 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:15 PM)4dik Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#)]So in my opinion I think the age I would wanna be to have a kid at would be around 23-26 because you'll still be young and active with your child!

You have some life experience, and you can always have another kid later and fix your mistakes with the next if you plan to have more than one kid

What age do you think is a good age?

I don't know that there's a correct number here, honestly. It's not the age that matters as much as it is the person, where they're at in life in general, their maturity, and their capability of even being a good parent. But, here are some thoughts-

I think we can all agree that if you're a teenager, you're too young. We, as a modern, first-world society can all basically agree on that, right? Babies shouldn't be having babies.

Besides that, I don't know that age matters so much as maturity and readiness. And by readiness, I mean more in terms of desire to bring a child into life, and capability of providing basic necessities. A lot of people go as far as to say you should own your home, or be in a long term career, or having $XX saved up, etc. etc. My opinion? No- those are rules of thumb only.

I'll compare myself and my wife versus our best friends for some contrast.

My wife and I had our son when we were 24 and 25. I had a stable career, she was just wrapping up with her graduate studies. We didn't own a home, and spent a boatload on rent for our little 1 bedroom because of where we lived. She didn't even have a decent job when we made the decision. But we were ready. It's what we wanted, we had a long term plan, and we knew we'd make it work in the meantime.

Our best friends are a little younger than us- 26 and 27 today. They own their own home. Both are in stable, long-term careers (owner of an insurance agency and a career firefighter... good, honest paying careers). Financially they are on good feet, with respectable savings and means. And maturity/emotionally, they're standup people who are fantastic with children, and will make amazing parents one day. But- they aren't ready to be parents. They're older than my wife and I were, overall in better shape financially/home wise than we were, and yet are holding out for a couple more years.

We were both right.

Show me a couple who are mature and ready, and whether they're in their early 20s or mid 30s, I'm going to show you a couple who will make it work, and be okay.

Yanix - April 21, 2020, 6:42 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:31 PM)4dik Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So I'm already taking care of a child and I actually enjoy it but it takes alot to be fine with it and get used to it! But overall I enjoy taking care of a kid just wish it had my DNA :P

Good to hear it from an inspiring father soon...wait are you married or do you have girlfriend or living with someone already?

The fun and excitement on having a kid includes all the stress and tiring days you will experience when time comes for you.

Grim - April 21, 2020, 6:45 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:15 PM)4dik Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#)]So in my opinion I think the age I would wanna be to have a kid at would be around 23-26 because you'll still be young and active with your child!

You have some life experience, and you can always have another kid later and fix your mistakes with the next if you plan to have more than one kid

What age do you think is a good age?

Lol no age. Kids seem like a giant money pit lmao ?

4dik - April 21, 2020, 6:55 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:45 PM)Grim Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Lol no age. Kids seem like a giant money pit lmao ? They're worse than Hackuman and their bytes hahah!!!

(Apr 21, 2020 06:42 PM)Yanix26 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Good to hear it from an inspiring father soon...wait are you married or do you have girlfriend or living with someone already?

The fun and excitement on having a kid includes all the stress and tiring days you will experience when time comes for you.

So it isn't my kid, My girlfriend had a pre-existing family

Maskin - April 21, 2020, 7:19 pm

27-32 in my opinion. Earlier is fine but any later than 35 isn't ideal, since there is a higher risk of autism and other birth problems.

Grim - April 21, 2020, 7:21 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:55 PM)4dik Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) They're worse than Hackuman and their bytes hahah!!!

So it isn't my kid, My girlfriend had a pre-existing family

Yea I'm not saying that no one should have kids it's just sad to see people not be financially prepared for one and then there life turns shitty because of it.

bevc - April 21, 2020, 8:28 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:27 PM)SIM-3738253 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Earth is going to Clay Davis, maybe I'm just a pessimist, but I feel like bringing a child into this world at this point in time is an act of evil. Obviously it isn't up to me to decide what you should do, but that is my own philosophy when it comes to having children.

Another reason why I say this is because you give up a large amount of freedom when you have a child. You are suddenly not independent and you cannot make any progress on yourself or things that you want to do for at least 20 years. My advice is as soon as you feel like you've accomplished everything that you want to accomplish for the foreseeable future, then I say do it.

I agree with this, unfortunately. I'm an anti-natalist. I don't think people give it any where near enough thought, that it's a life that is going to suffer and feel pain and so on, for probably around 80 years. The teenage angst-y wail of 'I never asked to be born', is completely valid imo. Everybody should give it a rest for awhile with the baby-making. If you want a child to take care of, there are millions of kids born into poverty that need someone to love them and take care of them.

But that's just me, I guess.

Yanix - April 21, 2020, 9:53 pm

(Apr 21, 2020 06:55 PM)4dik Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) They're worse than Hackuman and their bytes hahah!!!

So it isn't my kid, My girlfriend had a pre-existing family

Oh so looks like you are willing to take all the responsibilities for being a father to that kid. Good to hear that if that's the case ???

V?rt - April 22, 2020, 6:52 am

My ideal age is gonna be around 24-26. That way, I'm still young and can have the energy and time to run around, but I'm not too young and I can still have my adventures and live a good youth.

Demize - April 22, 2020, 7:07 am

When you are financially stable and have your own place.

Bossk - April 22, 2020, 7:13 am

I will probably have my first kid when Im between 25 and 30

Weddy - April 22, 2020, 7:17 am

Someone can be ready at 19 and other at 25

SIM-3579235 - April 22, 2020, 7:20 am

I'm 24. Kids aren't in my plans yet. I'm reasonably stable, mortgage, girlfriend etc. I think about 30, but that's just my personal opinion. There shouldn't be pressure to do these things by a certain age, unless it's for biological reasons of course.

Beherit - April 22, 2020, 7:26 am

I think by 35-40, no later. Hopefully by then everything is stable (career, finances, relationship).

Toosii - April 22, 2020, 7:40 am

I'd say around 25-30 is the most ideal time I'd say.

shitmaster - April 22, 2020, 7:43 am

I'm 32 and without a child. Not even a wife but a partner of 3 years.

In my opinion, if I was married, I would like to have a child by the age of 26-30. Reason being that I'll be able to support the child in full and send my child to college while still able to work. My parents had us late. And it was a little difficult for them to educate us and so on. We are from a middle class family and we barely managed.

And it sucks having to see my parents at an old age when I am still young. You'll end up worrying the child a lot if you were to be sick when they are still young. They may not even be financially stable to be able to support your needs at that time.

So for their sake, the earlier the better.

Gilbo - April 22, 2020, 7:49 am

Doesn't really matter what age you get a kid at. If you aren't financially stable, you shouldn't have a kid.

Demize - April 22, 2020, 7:58 am

(Apr 22, 2020 07:20 AM)Faro Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm 24. Kids aren't in my plans yet. I'm reasonably stable, mortgage, girlfriend etc. I think about 30, but that's just my personal opinion. There shouldn't be pressure to do these things by a certain age, unless it's for biological reasons of course.

This is the correct answer, it's all about when you are ready, financially and mentally. A lot of people want to have a kid just to have one and that causes a lot of broken family's. I see a lot of young girls having kids and ending up single with their mom taking care both of them

Yin Yang - April 22, 2020, 8:12 am

I think from the ages 30-32 is ideal nowadays. Couples aren't getting married in their early ages as they used to.

Pow3r - April 22, 2020, 8:15 am

I'd agree with you OP. I feel younger than is currently the trend is better allround. being older and having "life experience" doesn't transfer over that well to being a more prepared father according to several of my friends who have gone through this. I suppose ultimately though it is personal preference. Unless there is an accident.. ;)

NLSProductions - April 22, 2020, 8:16 am

I personally think that someone should go through their 20's making the usual mistakes you do in your 20's then do the usual early 30's crash when you realise your getting older and wasted over 10 years of your life. Then get stable properly and then look into children.

Weddy - April 22, 2020, 8:36 am

(Apr 22, 2020 07:26 AM)Beherit Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I think by 35-40, no later. Hopefully by then everything is stable (career, finances, relationship).

My dad gets me at 39 and I can tell you it's very too late to have kids at this age.

Swip3r - April 22, 2020, 8:43 am

At whatever age you have a stable income and can afford to feed/clothe/teach a kid.

That's what I would say at least.

humanbody - April 22, 2020, 9:05 am

Anywhere between 28-30 is a good age to have a kid. Even though when your kid starts going to high school you will be like 44 which is still very good age you are not old, I consider young those age.

HOMODIN - April 22, 2020, 10:45 pm

I would say this completely depends on what sort of life you and your partner have. Some are more active and want to travel around like crazy and maybe settle down once they turn 30 and some get kids when they are 17 and don't think that it's a mistake (I have a friend like that). For me, well, if all goes as planned then I'll get my first early next year so I'll be 34 when I get my first. Would most likely have got it earlier but yeah, don't want to get kids with someone who cheats. Broke up after almost 9 years mid/late 2017.

eXceptional - April 22, 2020, 10:46 pm

I believe the guy's age should be 27-30 and the girl's age should be 23-27.

ningjingdexiatian - April 22, 2020, 11:46 pm

(Apr 22, 2020 07:20 AM)Faro Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm 24. Kids aren't in my plans yet. I'm reasonably stable, mortgage, girlfriend etc. I think about 30, but that's just my personal opinion. There shouldn't be pressure to do these things by a certain age, unless it's for biological reasons of course. I totally second the point about the pressure!

a11s - April 22, 2020, 11:48 pm

~30.

I can't imagine having a child in your early twenties, lol.

BiggL - April 23, 2020, 12:00 am

I had my daughter when I was 17, I would say I would have preferred to be around 25.

IPIKIN - April 23, 2020, 12:53 am

Use your 20's to set your life up and have kids in your 30's

Exalted - April 23, 2020, 12:56 am

I would say between 30 and 35; Make use of the first 30 years to set up your life.

Present - April 23, 2020, 1:13 am

I would have kids 1-2 years after marriage. I mean I gotta spend some time with my wife you know

Accord - April 23, 2020, 1:45 am

I wont base it on age but on your financial status, if you got big money, then go take out your loads without any problem.

Theocritus - April 23, 2020, 3:16 am i would say you should not have a kid before closer to 40 so you have adequate life experience and you have probably had enough time getting to do what you want on a personal level. another important point is that you should never have a kid unless you are already financially stable 100%

Juoku - April 23, 2020, 3:18 am

I think it really depends on the person.

some people imo should never have kids, just because you can doesn't mean you should.

For me I'm actually already thinking about it with my significant other, I always thought I'd have kids by the time I was 23-25.

my parents got married and had kids when they were 21, but things change in the world, a lot of people started getting married later than our parents did and having kids later than they did.

Again, I think it differs from person to person, if you're not financially stable and cant support your household with a child, don't have one, if your maturity level is the same as a child, don't have one. if you can't discipline your child, don't have one.

that's my opinion, people should start backing up their decisions and take responsibility for their actions.

Linux X - April 23, 2020, 3:33 am

(Apr 21, 2020 06:26 PM)Simplex Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hmm, I would have to say as long as you are mentally prepared and financial capable to have one.

I would say the best age would be 25-33

Yep, I agree with you. 25/33 is the best age for making kid/s.

Ombra - April 23, 2020, 5:05 am

From my point of view, having kids before being 30 yo is madness. Enjoy life as long as you can, when you're 30 you may start thinking about babies, assuming you've been lucky enough to find a loved one that has the same idea.

EDIT: Keep in mind that's just the join age, I'm usual to see people having kids at 45-50 here.

Motusora - April 23, 2020, 5:06 am between 18-40 as long as you have a stable source of income and you think you can give shelter and food to your family.

Yanix - April 23, 2020, 5:11 am

(Apr 23, 2020 05:06 AM)Motusora Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) between 18-40 as long as you have a stable source of income and you think you can give shelter and food to your family.

But in our country there's a lot of youngsters that are having babies without any source of income neither have good shelter and foods to provide and to give for their kids

Edit: [mention=3583467] thanks for the green egg but please would you mind giving me another blue the next time ???

BubbleKush - April 23, 2020, 5:29 am

Over 25 is enough if you are ok with the money. By that time you will be able to live your life and do the crazy stuff and after that you can be ready for having a kid and taking parenting seriously

Cooligan - April 23, 2020, 5:30 am

I've always looked at 25 as a golden number to have kids as long as you're mature and financially stable enough to do so.

ningjingdexiatian - April 23, 2020, 6:51 am

(Apr 23, 2020 03:18 AM)Juoku Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I think it really depends on the person.

some people imo should never have kids, just because you can doesn't mean you should.

For me I'm actually already thinking about it with my significant other, I always thought I'd have kids by the time I was 23-25.

my parents got married and had kids when they were 21, but things change in the world, a lot of people started getting married later than our parents did and having kids later than they did.

Again, I think it differs from person to person, if you're not financially stable and cant support your household with a child, don't have one, if your maturity level is the same as a child, don't have one. if you can't discipline your child, don't have one.

that's my opinion, people should start backing up their decisions and take responsibility for their actions.

I totally agree with how our parents' times and our times are totally different. What happened to them in their days can be quite revolutionary and shocking to some if applied in modern day context.

Then again, some people are never suited to be parents (in my opinion).

4dik - April 23, 2020, 9:53 am

(Apr 23, 2020 03:16 AM)Theocritus Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) i would say you should not have a kid before closer to 40 so you have adequate life experience and you have probably had enough time getting to do what you want on a personal level. another important point is that you should never have a kid unless you are already financially stable 100%

Yes I feel you 100% on this one! This is how I look at it! But I'm in my twenties and financially stable thankfully and was waiting till 24 cause i'll still be young and still able to play with my kids and stuff, I feel like when im in the thirties im gonna be broken and not able to as much

Demize - April 23, 2020, 9:54 am

(Apr 23, 2020 09:53 AM)4dik Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yes I feel you 100% on this one! This is how I look at it! But I'm in my twenties and financially stable thankfully and was waiting till 24 cause i'll still be young and still able to play with my kids and stuff, I feel like when im in the thirties im gonna be broken and not able to as much

I'm 24 rn and I do not feel ready for a kid, I would love to have one before I'm 30 though

4dik - April 23, 2020, 9:58 am

(Apr 23, 2020 09:54 AM)Demize Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm 24 rn and I do not feel ready for a kid, I would love to have one before I'm 30 though

Yeah makes sense. I'm already taking care of kid cause my GF has one. I enjoy it but the traveling sucks cause it an extra person. I love it but I would wait to have my own kid

Theocritus - April 23, 2020, 10:31 am

(Apr 23, 2020 09:53 AM)4dik Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yes I feel you 100% on this one! This is how I look at it! But I'm in my twenties and financially stable thankfully and was waiting till 24 cause i'll still be young and still able to play with my kids and stuff, I feel like when im in the thirties im gonna be broken and not able to as much that is just your own mental attitude unless you end up breaking your back you will easily be able to play with your kids even in your forties funtela - April 23, 2020, 10:47 am

I pictured myself having a kid at around 25. I'm 28 now :(

cig - April 23, 2020, 11:16 am

I think it really depends on the person and where they're at in life.

hfrocket1713 - April 23, 2020, 12:38 pm

Depends on money. But I got money at the moment, but there are a few things.

1. I don't want a gf/wife atm cause of my reckless lifestyle (drugs/sex)
2. cause i wanna enjoy life

When I have a kid I need to be ready to commit to a life of no fuking bunch of womens or doing drugs. I can't be going out clubbing or partying. I need to be ready to be a responsible adult. Plus I need to find the right lady.

I'm 22 so I'd probably want a kid ideally at 30.

Geralt - April 23, 2020, 12:51 pm

When I was 15 I thought 23 was a perfect age for a kid, now that I'm 23, nope. 30 is a perfect number. I want to enjoy my life and travel the world, a kid is a burden when you are young.

4dik - April 23, 2020, 1:01 pm

(Apr 23, 2020 10:31 AM)Theocritus Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) that is just your own mental attitude unless you end up breaking your back you will easily be able to play with your kids even in your forties

I have many medical problems, I have a really bad back already, I have torn my acl in both knees and I also torn my PCL in my right knee, so im pretty beat up already haha

Velma - April 24, 2020, 8:06 pm

the real answer is that there is not a perfect age it is when you feel that you are comfortable with the decision and you can financially afford to have one.

Jay - April 24, 2020, 8:33 pm

I always had a thought about having kids at around 25-28

Nate - April 25, 2020, 12:50 am

Whenever your financially stable to fully support your child.

4dik - April 25, 2020, 4:29 pm

(Apr 25, 2020 12:50 AM)N?te Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Whenever your financially stable to fully support your child.

Yeah true true! IF you were what age would you want a lkid?

SourceCode101 - April 25, 2020, 4:37 pm

26+ is a good age,im 27 and im waiting my daughter in around 30-40days

Mr.Nobody - April 25, 2020, 4:39 pm

(Apr 25, 2020 04:37 PM)!S0urceC0de! Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) 26+ is a good age,im 27 and im waiting my daughter in around 30-40days

Congratulations in adavance

4dik - April 25, 2020, 4:39 pm

(Apr 25, 2020 04:37 PM)!S0urceC0de! Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) 26+ is a good age,im 27 and im waiting my daughter in around 30-40days

I'm sorry Im stupid are you having a kid in about 20-40 day!

If you're congratulations!

SourceCode101 - April 25, 2020, 4:40 pm

(Apr 25, 2020 04:39 PM)Mr.Nobody Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Congratulations in adavance thak you vcery much my man!

Kant Atta - April 25, 2020, 9:10 pm

The correct answer is whenever a person is emotionally and financially ready. I would not recommend anyone who is still getting their career sorted out to have a child. Once you're established in your career, and you're emotionally ready, that is when you should have a kid.