That's great, now you only need to buy a ventilator to feel away. It's cheap and can last for years !

We don't have quarantine here in Sweden. I'm at work driving the city bus lol. I'll post a picture of how many people are outside when I reach the city center.

From an anti-social living in a metropolitan area:

I don't like going outside that much, left the house only two times the last two months.

But...

When I open my window and smell the fresh air this lock down provided the only thought that pops up in my head is how much I would like to go for a walk and just... breath.

Could it be due to the Dimples from yesterday? Haha. Seems like you are having the time of your life at home. Can't be better without the wife.

Hope you have a good time during this lockdown.

OP, you're crazy at all. Happened to me a few days ago. This is what happens when you don't go out for such a long time. The other day we had food weather out here and it's was hard to believe it even. Kind of that windy weather where you'd like to go out anys enjoy but unfortunately we had to manage by sitting in our small balcony with a plate nachos and root beer.

Air is less of pollution...this is what the pandemic crisis covid-19 brings for us...it heals and gives break to the earth somehow ???

ningjingdexiatian - April 23, 2020, 11:00 pm

I've always loved the gush of wind - makes me connected with nature infinitely.

Astrogen - April 24, 2020, 4:00 am

It really is nice to just relax, feeling the wind as it blows. Removing all the man made noise and just listen to nature. Really good thing to have, our mother nature.

I mean i'm essentially on the verge of a mental breakdown because of these restrictions and that's even with breaking them every few days.

It's okay, i live somewhere that's rural and the people i do associate with are isolated on farms.

plus i've already had the virus and the symptoms were minor i think my immune system is able to fight it off now or at least give me a higher defense than others.

in other news though my wisdom teeth have become impacted and infected so i'm in agony so that doesn't help with the mental situation.
