Thread: Bouncing ideas off each other, lets make money.

Looking for other traders to make some money, I've been on and off charting for 2+ years and looking to actually trade now since I have a income. Prefer someone who has equal experience if not more. I started with crypto and plan to get into forex.

"You have 2+ years of trading, why do u need help" I just feel 2 heads is better than 1. Why not just help each other make money?

I've learned partnerships especially with trading does NOT work just due to the fact everyone else has different trading styles the works for that specific individual and you'll just butt heads often and probably lose more than you would gain on your own. Also studying the graphs is one thing trading is another when studying you aren't affected by emotion because you there is no actual risk. I suggest you start trading with around $300 turn it into $1,000 and then put more in.

I can see where you're coming from and I know that looking at charts and understanding what does what etc but I also have been trading with money for the past few years also. I understand that emotions and patience play a big part and to help reduce stress and emotions its best to plan before executing. $300 to $1000? u got it. i'll try. Just got to find an exchange or keep using bybit.

That was one of my fav until they started KYC (as for ever other exchange, kinda aids.) Now I am stuck with Binance.US for a regular exchange.

I'm wanting to Buy/Short bitcoin not just buy it :P

So either Bybit or go back to shitty bitmex

I do actually like the idea of bouncing ideas back and forth. But it can all be a gamble, especially with crypto.

I'm in a syndicate for investing in stocks and shares. We make decisions on majority vote.
