

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: What are the benefits of speaking 6 languages?

Silent hill - May 2, 2020, 6:51 am

i'm wondering what are the benefits from speaking 6 languages? should i learn more languages?

i know:

English

Arabic (native)

Russian (almost fluent, i speak Russian better than Russians them self since they don't use correct grammar when they speak.)

French (native)

Lebanese (native)

Turkish (fluent)

i'm planning on learning Spanish, since i know French then Spanish will be peace of cake.
but i do not know what i can earn from all these languages, anything i should do?

if you have any question/answer let me know!

Xen - May 2, 2020, 7:01 am

(May 2, 2020 06:51 AM)Stonks Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) i'm wondering what are the benefits from speaking 6 languages? should i learn more languages?

i know:

English

Arabic (native)

Russian (almost fluent, i speak Russian better than Russians them self since they don't use correct grammar when they speak.)

French (native)

Lebanese (native)

Turkish (fluent)

i'm planning on learning Spanish, since i know French then Spanish will be peace of cake.
but i do not know what i can earn from all these languages, anything i should do?

if you have any question/answer let me know!

Well if I had the opportunity to know this many languages I think I'd be traveling to these countries a lot more frequently - also translation jobs earn quite a large salary

BruteForce ? - May 2, 2020, 7:09 am

If you plan on learning a new language, definitely go for Spanish, comprende?

mrknol - May 2, 2020, 7:18 am

First off, I'm Lebanese. Lebanese isn't a language, Arabic is the language spoken in Lebanon.

Basically what you just stated is : I speak English and also speak American. So you just know 5 languages.

Weddy - May 2, 2020, 7:20 am

Did you speak the " real french " (Euro) or the french canadian language? :3

flavoral - May 2, 2020, 7:20 am

Useful if you want to be a translator, doing business with people from different countries, diplomatic missions, international humanitarian missions, etc

MrJamesDean - May 2, 2020, 7:24 am

You could bridge gaps between communities more easily, earn a lot as a translator for a whole variety of different industries or services, think in unique ways that people limited to only one language can't, or understand things that most simply cannot. I'm very jealous!

Yin Yang - May 2, 2020, 7:26 am

Maybe if you're working for the gov't

Lorem Ipsum - May 2, 2020, 7:27 am

(May 2, 2020 06:51 AM)Stonks Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) i'm wondering what are the benefits from speaking 6 languages? should i learn more languages?

i know:

English

Arabic (native)

Russian (almost fluent, i speak Russian better than Russians them self since they don't use correct grammar when they speak.)

French (native)

Lebanese (native)

Turkish (fluent)

i'm planning on learning Spanish, since i know French then Spanish will be peace of cake.
but i do not know what i can earn from all these languages, anything i should do?

if you have any question/answer let me know!

Translate documents, translation in 'court', online-teacher through Skype, etc.

Plenty of ways to monetise your language skills.

Hero - May 2, 2020, 7:28 am

You can speak 6 languages is the benefit. Meaning you can talk with other people in the 6 countries man.

There you go bro

Bossk - May 2, 2020, 7:29 am

Quote:Russian (almost fluent, i speak Russian better than Russians them self since they don't use correct grammar when they speak.)
strange thing to say.

Motusora - May 2, 2020, 7:34 am isn't arabic is the official language of lebanon ?

humanbody - May 2, 2020, 7:43 am

Well benefits are obvious. If you get to travel you'll be able to understand everything and another thing you can do is translation jobs. They are good paying jobs, especially if you translate some documents for companies hell yeah, it's gonna be good money. There are freelancing websites if you feel like trying so search for them on google and you can even work from home.

flavoral - May 2, 2020, 8:14 am

(May 2, 2020 07:34 AM)Motusora Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) isn't arabic is the official language of lebanon ?

I think he meant local dialect

Grim - May 2, 2020, 8:15 am

(May 2, 2020 06:51 AM)Stonks Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) i'm wondering what are the benefits from speaking 6 languages? should i learn more languages?

i know:

English

Arabic (native)

Russian (almost fluent, i speak Russian better than Russians them self since they don't use correct grammar when they speak.)

French (native)

Lebanese (native)

Turkish (fluent)

i'm planning on learning Spanish, since i know French then Spanish will be peace of cake.
but i do not know what i can earn from all these languages, anything i should do?

if you have any question/answer let me know!

Does your career involve speaking that many languages? Very impressive

Perileos - May 2, 2020, 8:16 am

(May 2, 2020 08:14 AM)flavoral Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I think he meant local dialect
Then I can speak 12 languages ?

flavoral - May 2, 2020, 8:16 am

(May 2, 2020 08:16 AM)Perileos Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Then I can speak 12 languages ?
ye same lol, but I guess some countries have dialects which are very different than their official language.

Ombra - May 2, 2020, 9:07 am

(May 2, 2020 07:01 AM)Xen Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well if I had the opportunity to know this many languages I think I'd be traveling to these countries a lot more frequently - also translation jobs earn quite a large salary

(May 2, 2020 07:24 AM)MrJamesDean Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You could bridge gaps between communities more easily, earn a lot as a translator for a whole variety of different industries or services, think in unique ways that people limited to only one language can't, or understand things that most simply cannot. I'm very jealous!

(May 2, 2020 07:27 AM)LoremIpsum Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Translate documents, translation in 'court', online-teacher through Skype, etc.

Plenty of ways to monetise your language skills.

Are you guys really convinced that translators earn that much?

I don't have much experience on this field, but I think the entire translations market will be disrupted once we have good translation software in our phones.

LoRemIpsum - May 2, 2020, 9:10 am

(May 2, 2020 09:07 AM)Ombra Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Are you guys really convinced that translators earn that much?

I don't have much experience on this field, but I think the entire translations market will be disrupted once we have good translation software in our phones.

Here in Europe, especially when dealing with 'court' cases it sure is.

You need to speak, hear and write the language fluently in order to translate live-conversations. You can disagree with me on one thing, like Fiverr gigs, but this is a high-paying job.

The software sure will do its trick, but people don't always speak as 'fluent' as software can detect (in public, as we know) so I think it's a good start for him to make face around the market.

MrJamesDean - May 2, 2020, 11:52 am

(May 2, 2020 09:07 AM)Ombra Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Are you guys really convinced that translators earn that much?

I don't have much experience on this field, but I think the entire translations market will be disrupted once we have good translation software in our phones.

Oh yes, I know of a friend who is fluent in French and German, and she gets paid significant amounts to translate things for the legal industry. You have to make sure translations are perfect, and even the best AI right now cannot determine certain inflections or turns of phrase which a human can.

Bob White - May 2, 2020, 12:08 pm

I really like polyglots, I follow a guy on youtube whose primary is Mandarin and Cantonese, he goes around New York in China Town and speaks fluently to all the Asian people that live there. I would love to be able to speak Mandarin as well as he does, I have always enjoyed the Chinese Mandarin Language, but holy shit is it complicated lol.

Spanish would also be super useful, not only for life but for a lot of jobs being bi lingual is a huge plus and can net you more pay.

Theocritus - May 2, 2020, 1:05 pm

i mean if you speak English then you really do not need anything else imo. you can simply hire translators should you need them. if you wish to be a translator or something then i would Japanese or Chinese are good options for high paying jobs

Zee - May 2, 2020, 2:35 pm

You could offer translation services and earn some money translating product descriptions, websites, papers, etc.

Velma - May 2, 2020, 2:36 pm

you could become a translator they get paid some good money definitely something that you should look into.

cola - May 2, 2020, 3:19 pm

You have more job opportunities, can speak to a more variety of people and can be very useful in sticky situations.

cig - May 2, 2020, 3:21 pm

You could do transcribing/ translating, that could be a nice side-hustle.

cola - May 2, 2020, 3:39 pm

(May 2, 2020 03:21 PM)SPACEBOUND Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You could do transcribing/ translating, that could be a nice side-hustle.

Yeah, and it will open a lot of doors in jobs if they need bi-lingual people!

Blogger - May 2, 2020, 3:42 pm

(May 2, 2020 06:51 AM)Stonks Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) i'm wondering what are the benefits from speaking 6 languages? should i learn more languages?

i know:

English

Arabic (native)

Russian (almost fluent, i speak Russian better than Russians them self since they don't use correct grammar when they speak.)

French (native)

Lebanese (native)

Turkish (fluent)

i'm planning on learning Spanish, since i know French then Spanish will be peace of cake.
but i do not know what i can earn from all these languages, anything i should do?

if you have any question/answer let me know!You should offer tutoring, translation, etc. Perfect for the hospitality industry.

Sprinkle - May 2, 2020, 4:05 pm

With these languages under your belt, you immediately are eligible for so many jobs; even beyond that of language coaching. Imagine the international trade you could conduct and establish for business relations

Silent hill - May 2, 2020, 4:50 pm

(May 2, 2020 07:01 AM)Xen Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well if I had the opportunity to know this many languages I think I'd be traveling to these countries a lot more frequently - also translation jobs earn quite a large salaryi already traveled to them :)

(May 2, 2020 07:18 AM)mrknol Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) First off, I'm Lebanese. Lebanese isn't a language, Arabic is the language spoken in Lebanon.

Basically what you just stated is : I speak English and also speak American. So you just know 5 languages.lebanese is considered a language.

because arabic is "al fos7a language."

my foreign friends that i met on my travels can speak arabic, but not lebanese, they can't even understand anything if i speak lebanese.

you can ask anyone who is studying languages at the university, he will tell you the same.

(May 2, 2020 07:20 AM)Weddy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Did you speak the " real french " (Euro) or the french canadian language? :3

i speak the real euro french.

I've lived there for a while.

(May 2, 2020 07:29 AM)Bossk Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) strange thing to say.

(May 2, 2020 07:34 AM)Motusora Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) isn't arabic is the official language of lebanon ?

i explained up in my previous reply.

(May 2, 2020 12:08 PM)GenericPlayer17 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I really like polyglots, I follow a guy on youtube whos primary is Mandarin and Cantonese, he goes around New York in China Town and speaks fluently to all the Asian people that live there. I would love to be able to speak Mandarin as well as he does, I have always enjoyed the Chinese Mandarin Language, but holy Clay Davis is it complicated lol.

Spanish would also be super useful, not only for life but for a lot of jobs being bi lingual is a huge plus and can net you more pay.haha yes!! I've met a lot of polyglots, it is really funny when you see polyglots who speak 10+ language talking to each others

(May 2, 2020 01:05 PM)Theocritus Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) i mean if you speak English then you really do not need anything else imo. you can simply hire translators should you need them. if you wish to be a translator or something then i would Japanese or Chinese are good options for high paying jobsI'm already studying cyber security as full time.

hopefully one day I'll have enough time to study Chinese, wherever you travel in this world.. you'll meet Chinesees. they're the nicest and most helpful people.

what is lebanese language?

answer:

<http://www.lebaneselanguage.org/language/history/>

Marshmallow - May 2, 2020, 6:23 pm

Win every dick measuring contest.

IPIKIN - May 2, 2020, 7:01 pm

(May 2, 2020 06:51 AM)Stonks Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) i'm wondering what are the benefits from speaking 6 languages? should i learn more languages?

i know:

English

Arabic (native)

Russian (almost fluent, i speak Russian better than Russians them self since they don't use correct grammar when they speak.)

French (native)

Lebanese (native)

Turkish (fluent)

i'm planning on learning Spanish, since i know French then Spanish will be peace of cake.

but i do not know what i can earn from all these languages, anything i should do?

if you have any question/answer let me know!

That's crazy dude. I've been trying to learn Spanish, but still only know the basics. I feel that when I'm in Latam though, I pick it up easier.

de_g3ntl3m4n - May 2, 2020, 7:05 pm

damn i mean knowing a lot of languages can get you into the FBI just like that with a snap of fingers or you can be some translator at a phone company customer support. At the same time ptsh how about programming languages

Silent hill - May 3, 2020, 5:01 am

(May 2, 2020 07:05 PM)de_g3ntl3m4n Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) damn i mean knowing a lot of languages can get you into the FBI just like that with a snap of fingers or you can be some translator at a phone company customer support. At the same time ptsh how about programming languages

I'll be including it in my cv.

Pow3r - May 3, 2020, 5:03 am

Very beneficial for travelling of course and also being able to tell when people are talking shit about you when you're around people from other places.

BubbleKush - May 3, 2020, 5:05 am

Your IQ must be higher than the most people

de_g3ntl3m4n - May 3, 2020, 10:12 am

(May 3, 2020 05:01 AM)Stonks Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'll be including it in my cv.

hahahahaha but hey man now that you are fluent in some languages would like to as have you seen any comparisons through out the languages, similar words different meaning or similar words same meaning? at the same time you thinking about mastering some programming languages too?

Ciandra - May 3, 2020, 10:39 am

Go on freelance webs, post your resume job with your skill many languages.

shitmaster - May 3, 2020, 10:50 am

There are a lot of language benefits especially when it comes to looking for jobs. If you are planning to learn more, I'd suggest Mandarin. Unless you hate the Chinese.

Silent hill - May 3, 2020, 11:01 am

(May 3, 2020 10:12 AM)de_g3ntl3m4n Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) hahahahaha but hey man now that you are fluent in some languages would like to as have you seen any comparisons through out the languages, similar words different meaning or similar words same meaning? at the same time you thinking about mastering some programming languages too?

my quote: "the more languages you learn, the easier the next language will be"

all languages have the same conjugation.

similar grammar.

some words can be so similar.

example: kot, cat, chat, kut.

I'm so good at python, c++, java.

now I'm focusing on pentesting and bug bounty.

i already have cisco + CEH + few other things i cant remember.

Present - May 3, 2020, 12:09 pm

Wait was Lebanese even a language? Don't Lebanese people just speak arabic?

Free Kurdistan - May 3, 2020, 12:18 pm

I speak 6 languages too, only benefit for me is understand the tourists here in Denmark when they think you don't.

de_g3ntl3m4n - May 3, 2020, 2:02 pm

(May 3, 2020 11:01 AM)Stonks Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) my quote: "the more languages you learn, the easier the next language will be"

all languages have the same conjugation.

similar grammar.

some words can be so similar.

example: kot, cat, chat, kut.

I'm so good at python, c++, java.

now I'm focusing on pentesting and bug bounty.

i already have cisco + CEH + few other things i cant remember.

hahahhaha aye homie then thats what up if i may ask how long have you been messsing around with the those langauages? but at the same time have you visited the countries of languages you know or not yet?

The Don - May 3, 2020, 2:06 pm

When you travel the world you are able to communicate with many more people other than you're own native people. That is a huge benefit because it enables you to learn other's cultures.

Plista - May 3, 2020, 2:13 pm

Quite impressed you know these many.

I know a bit of Spanish (reading) from my school days. We were forced to do Spanish and French. Spanish for 2 years, then 1 year both then a choice of Spanish or French for final 2 years.

I did Spanish but hated my teacher, one of the only exams I failed.

I'd love to put some time aside to learn more languages. English is widely spoken to obviously I feel like we've got an advantage already but I also think that's very close minded of me.

How and why did you learn so many if you don't mind me asking OP?

Silent hill - May 3, 2020, 3:40 pm

(May 3, 2020 12:09 PM)Present Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Wait was Lebanese even a language? Don't Lebanese people just speak arabic?i explained up

(May 3, 2020 02:02 PM)de_g3ntl3m4n Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) hahahhaha aye homie then thats what up if i may ask how long have you been messsing around with the those langauages? but at the same time have you visited the countries of languages you know or not yet?i visited all the countries that speak these stated languages.

since 8 years.

(May 3, 2020 02:06 PM)Argen Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) When you travel the world you are able to communicate with many more people other than you're own native people. That is a huge benefit because it enables you to learn other's cultures.

yes and it is fun! :)

i wish if i could give my instagram to show you, but i dont wanna get doxed.

Cameron - May 3, 2020, 7:28 pm

(May 2, 2020 06:51 AM)Stonks Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) i'm wondering what are the benefits from speaking 6 languages? should i learn more languages?

i know:

English

Arabic (native)

Russian (almost fluent, i speak Russian better than Russians them self since they don't use correct grammar when they speak.)

French (native)

Lebanese (native)

Turkish (fluent)

i'm planning on learning Spanish, since i know French then Spanish will be peace of cake.
but i do not know what i can earn from all these languages, anything i should do?

if you have any question/answer let me know!
I'd like to be able to tell someone to fuck off in 6 different languages

SIM-3420445 - May 7, 2020, 7:17 am

That's fantastic. I hope you speak my native language as well so it becomes the 7th in your list

Aedan_ - May 7, 2020, 7:19 am

I currently know English (native) and Spanish (3 years of school). I'm gonna try to learn a new language starting soon, anyone have suggestions on where? Should Duolingo do the trick?

Jake Muller - May 7, 2020, 8:28 am

It all depend of you my friend.

With great vision, you can achieve a lot of things if you're speaking 6 languages.

Apocryphon - May 7, 2020, 8:32 am

You can find yourself a translator job or even offer services online. You can also look for diplomatic jobs. Knowing multiple languages is always a good idea.

Astrogen - May 7, 2020, 3:31 pm

You can go around to diff types of people and talk to them with ease. Being a polygot is great.

Mula-B - May 7, 2020, 3:34 pm

Learn world languages, not some bs languages like French. Go learn mandarin.

You can maybe teach kids in school the languages u know, or work for the gov and translate papers, etc.

SIM-4460064 - May 7, 2020, 3:36 pm

(May 2, 2020 07:01 AM)Xen Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well if I had the opportunity to know this many languages I think I'd be traveling to these countries a lot more frequently - also translation jobs earn quite a large salary

The high paying translation jobs usually require a degree in that language I believe, but definitely great on a resume.

Xen - May 7, 2020, 3:40 pm

(May 7, 2020 03:36 PM)Akuma Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The high paying translation jobs usually require a degree in that language I believe, but definitely great on a resume.

Eh I suppose, you can also work towards your degree while doing so. A friend of mine learnt Russian and now teaches Russian businessmen how to speak English and he earns a crazy amount of money. They look after him well too.

SIM-4460064 - May 7, 2020, 3:41 pm

(May 7, 2020 03:40 PM)Xen Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Eh I suppose, you can also work towards your degree while doing so. A friend of mine learnt Russian and now teaches Russian businessmen how to speak English and he earns a crazy amount of money. They look after him well too.

If he's a native language speaker that's a bit different. If he learned Russian and was teaching Russian that would be what I'm talking about.

Xen - May 7, 2020, 3:45 pm

(May 7, 2020 03:41 PM)Akuma Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If he's a native language speaker that's a bit different. If he learned Russian and was teaching Russian that would be what I'm talking about. He's from the UK he just picked up the interest while he was in school to go into languages.

He learned Russian, he's been practicing since he was 17 and he's now 26. He loves it.

SIM-4460064 - May 7, 2020, 3:46 pm

(May 7, 2020 03:45 PM)Xen Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) He's from the UK he just picked up the interest while he was in school to go into languages.

He learned Russian, he's been practicing since he was 17 and he's now 26. He loves it. Russian seems like such a hard language to learn even just looking at their alphabet haha.

Xen - May 7, 2020, 3:54 pm

(May 7, 2020 03:46 PM)Akuma Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Russian seems like such a hard language to learn even just looking at their alphabet haha.

Yeah I honestly don't know how he did it! I can understand some spoken Russian but words? Not a chance!

ethelooking - September 19, 2020, 10:20 pm

if you want to be a better person, you have to learn a lot of languages. If you're like me, then you'll probably prefer learning one or two languages at first. After that, you'll find that they become second nature and will give you an edge in your career. I don't know how much benefit it has for you, but it's good to know that you can learn a few languages in your first few years of life. It's also a good idea to learn some of the basics of a language, so you know what to expect when you're learning it.

jecoylecocoy - September 20, 2020, 1:49 am

Knowing different 6 languages has huge benefit, you can no longer read subtitles when watching movies and can focus well on it. You can earn money also too it.

blkchain - September 20, 2020, 2:31 am seems like it would get confusing. haha. what is your native tongue? Just curious. Do you dream in any of these other languages? You could go work for the government in some capacity.

Mr. Corleone - September 20, 2020, 3:39 am (Sep 20, 2020 01:49 AM)jecoylecocoy Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Knowing different 6 languages has huge benefit, you can no longer read subtitles when watching movies and can focus well on it. You can earn money also too it.

Yeah you CAN earn money, but unfortunately not as much as before the internet I believe.

A someone who has 100% fluency in 3 languages and speaks the 4th one semi-fluent, a down/up-side depending on how you see it, is that you think in different languages lol.

Bacardi Cola Lime - September 20, 2020, 3:50 am

The more the merrier! There are tons of job opportunities that require multilingual individuals! My mom landed a job just because she was fluent in a language that others on the same field weren't.

popZmoke - September 20, 2020, 4:01 am you can do translation work: _)

